

37th World Science Fiction Convention
SEACON '79

ALIEN LANDSCAPES

Robert Holdstock/Malcolm Edwards

This is an exciting visual exploration of ten of the best-known sf worlds with a detailed text by two established writers in the sf field.

The spectacular worlds of Arthur C Clarke's Rama; McCaffrey's Pern; Blish's Okie Cities; Clement's Mesklin; Harrison's Eros; Arrakis from Herbert's Dune; Larry Niven's Ringworld; Trantor from Asimov's Foundation Trilogy; Aldiss's Hothouse and H G Wells' End of the World are all illustrated in 100% original artwork.

280 x 280 mm 120 pages, 60 in full colour £5.50 paper

PLANET STORY

Harry Harrison/ Jim Burns

At last, after two years of solid work from top sf artist Jim Burns, we bring you this stunning book—an ebullient space opera bursting with the irrepressible imagination of best-selling author Harrison, and with 50 full-colour pages of the inspired paintings of Jim Burns.

280 x 280 mm 120 pages, 50 in full colour £5.50 paper £7.95 hardcover

THE FLIGHT OF DRAGONS

Peter Dickinson/Wayne Anderson

This thrilling book combines fact with fantasy, science with romance. Peter Dickinson, award-winning novelist, sets out to prove that dragons did exist. He reveals to us how they actually managed to fly, their distinctive mating system and evolutionary cycle, why they hoarded gold and how their history ties in with folk lore and legend.

Wayne Anderson supports the substantial text with his own brilliant illustrations.

228 x 292 upright 144 pages, over 80 in colour £7.95 hardcover

Pierrot Publishing Ltd
17 Oakley Road
London N1
tel: 01-226 0573

AND DON'T FORGET THE ESSENTIAL HANDBOOK
FOR ANYONE IN THE SF WORLD

THE INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE FICTION YEARBOOK

edited by Colin Lester, is packed with valuable information on conventions, fanzines, publishers, agents, authors, artists, comics, et al.

192 x 127 mm 400 pages with 150 illustrations £2.95 paperback

37th WORLD SCIENCE FICTION CONVENTION

SEACON⁷⁹

METROPOLE HOTEL BRIGHTON ENGLAND 23rd - 27th AUGUST 1979

British Guest of Honour
BRIAN ALDISS

American Guest of Honour
FRITZ LEIBER

Fan Guest of Honour
HARRY BELL

Toastmaster
BOB SHAW

read -
2/21/80

SEACON PEOPLE

Harry Bell	Fan-art
Gerald Bishop	Film Planning
Ron Bounds	Auctions
John Brosnan	Films
Gale Burnick	Author Readings
John Bush	Help
Jack Chalker	Auctions(US)
*Graham Charnock	Publications
*Pat Charnock	Membership Secretary
Clare Coney	Help
*Malcolm Edwards	Programming
John Eggeling	Book Room
Alison Eldred	Young Artists Exhibit
Sally Fink	Fancy Dress Slides
*Eve Harvey	Fan Room
John Harvey	Fan Room
Martin Hoare	Computer
Robert Holdstock	Session Chairman
Coral Jackson	Fancy Dress and Banquet
*Rob Jackson	Fancy Dress, Banquet & Functions
Marsha Jones	Art Show(UK)
*Leroy Kettle	Book Room & Films
David Langford	Hugos & Worldcon Business
Colin Lester	Advertising & Press Officer
Susan Lewis	Art Show (US)
Christine Miles	Dragon's Dream Exhibit
Joseph Nicholas	Auctions
Peter Nicholls	Session Chairman
Roger Peyton	Auctions
David Pringle	Hugos
*Peter Roberts	Fan Programme
Tim Stannard	Legal Adviser
*John Steward	Treasurer
Bob Tucker	Fancy Dress M.C.
Simone Walsh	Staff
*Peter Weston	Chairman
Ian Williams	Fancy Dress
*Kevin Williams	Operations
Sue Williams	Backdrop

*Seacon '79 Ltd Steering Committee

Overseas Agents

Eric Batard	Waldemar Kumming	Herbert Pabst
Judy Blish	Leo Kindt	Fred Patten
Gian Paolo Cossato	Tony Lewis	Matjaz Sinkovec
Jan Howard Finder	John Millard	Ernesto Vegetti
Robin Johnson	Per Osterman

CONTENTS

2	SEACON PEOPLE
4	CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE - by Peter Weston
7	BRIAN ALDISS - a critique and appreciation by Tom Shippey
8	CREATURES OF APOGEE - short story by Brian Aldiss
10	NEW ARRIVALS, OLD ENCOUNTERS - short story by Brian Aldiss
18	A BRIAN ALDISS BIBLIOGRAPHY - compiled by Malcolm Edwards
23	LEIBER: A FEW TOO FEW WORDS - by Harlan Ellison
25	THE MAN WHO WAS MARRIED TO SPACE AND TIME - Original short story by Fritz Leiber
29	IN MEMORIAM
32	A FRITZ LEIBER BIBLIOGRAPHY - compiled by Chris Morgan
34	TOASTMASTER BOB SHAW - by James White
36	TILES OF HORROR - by Bob Shaw
39	HARRY BELL: Fan Guest of Honour - a personal appreciation by Mike Glicksohn
42	HARRY BELL: A PORTFOLIO
46	TAFF & TERRY HUGHES - Rob Jackson on Taff and its 1979 delegate to Seacon
48	EXHIBITION HALL PLANS AND GUIDE TO METROPOLE HOTEL
50	WE DO IT TOO: British sf, 1965-1979 - by Christopher Priest
54	BRITISH CONVENTIONS IN THE SEVENTIES - Part IV of a survey by Peter Roberts
58	THE BRITISH SCIENCE FICTION CINEMA - by John Brosnan
62	1978 HUGO NOMINEES
64	PAST HUGO WINNERS
68	PAST WORLD CONVENTIONS
71	DREAMS OF EMPIRE: Favourite Landmarks of British SF - selected by Mark Adlard, John Brunner, Ken Bulmer, Richard Cowper, Dave Langford, Michael Moorcock, Larry Niven, Frederick Pohl, Christopher Priest, Bob Shaw, Andrew Stephenson, Ian Watson, James White.
81	SPECIAL ART EXHIBITS
90	SEACON '79 MEMBERSHIP
134	INDEX TO ADVERTISERS
	SEACON '79 PROGRAMME BOOK COVER by Pauline Jones
	INTERIOR ARTWORK by Joan Hanke-Woods; William Rotsler; Alexis Gilliland; Rob Hansen; Stu Shiffman; Jim Barker; Victoria Poyser; Richard Litwinczuk

Acknowledgements

"New Arrivals, Old Encounters" first appeared in Galileo, 1978
"Creatures of Apogee" first appeared in Last Orders, 1978

Programme Book Edited & Designed by Graham Charnock
Programme Book Production Assistant: Pat Charnock

Seacon '79 Programme Book
Copyright Seacon '79 Ltd 1979

Copyright re-assigned to individual contributors on publication

APPORTIONING THE BLAME

A Welcome to SEACON '79 by the Chairman, Peter Weston

Five years is a long time.

In fact, the history of the British bid for the 1979 World Convention goes back even further, to September 1970, when in an issue of my fanzine Speculation I suggested British fandom should think about hosting the Worldcon at some time in the seventies.

At the time it seemed a good idea. Hell, it was a good idea! The question was, who would do something about it? I was busily planning the British Eastercon and had quite enough to do, thank you, even though I'd made a vague survey of hotels and concluded that the Brighton Metropole was really the only sensible place.

No-one else obligingly stepped forward, and inevitably my Eastercon rolled around; it wasn't a bad year, though I say it myself, but to my horror I found the Worldcon idea had caught on, and thanks largely to Dave Kyle had been pinned very firmly to my coat-tails.

"No!, no!, no!" I screamed, overwhelmed by Ken Eadie's Vigilantes, people who camped out in the hotel lounge, and the sheer hectic pressure of organising so vast an event. Why, over 200 people attended the Worcester convention!

I went for a soothing walk on the banks of the Severn—it was a beautiful Spring day, I remember—and quietly consigned all thoughts of Worldcons to the deepest part of the river. And there things remained for nearly three years.

The credit for reviving the idea must go to Malcolm Edwards, himself an energetic organiser and also prone to the temptation to plan ever bigger and more spectacular projects. "Wouldn't it be nice to run the World Convention?" he whispered seductively in my ear. And Peter Roberts, too, was similarly beguiled, to the extent that our triumvirate made a bold declaration of intent at the 1974 Tynecon.

We would make a bid!

We'd show those Yanks what British fandom could do!

"Britain's fine in '79" applauded Ruth Kyle, thus completing what her husband had begun, providing our slogan, and setting us irretrievably on a path which ends in Brighton on August 23rd.

Why did we do it? Why does anyone do it? I've been looking through my back-issues of Speculation to try and gain some insight into the motives of that strange, earlier self. A fanzine is like a diary, you know, prompting memories or events long forgotten, preserving odd chunks of thought and introspection and a wonderful exercise in nostalgia.

Here's a comment from a time when my committee and I were enthusiastically planning the 1971 Eastercon:

"I used to wonder why on Earth anyone should want to take on the job of organising something as demanding and complex as a large convention. I now know the answer — there is a certain feeling, not of "power", which would be ridiculous, but of satisfaction in making arrangements and exploiting opportunities to the best advantage." (September 1970)

Then there's the other side of the coin, a more melancholy assessment of my attitude after the event was all over:

"I can't in all honesty say that other commitments alone have kept me silent; rather, as some of those who met me this summer will know, I think I must have felt a bit disenchanted with the whole business of Eastercon. I seemed to have spent the entire time rushing around without sitting down to actually listen to anything, meet anybody, or otherwise enjoy myself. After completing an exacting four days I felt that I wanted to relax at a convention—and suddenly discovered there wouldn't be another one for six months or more." (October 1971)

But time is a great healer; after Tynecon I was once more full of energy, plotting and scheming with Malcolm and Peter, weighing up the chances of success in our efforts to bring the World Convention to this side of the Atlantic again, for the first time since 1965.

We didn't have a proper committee, at this stage; we didn't have a chairman or even a name. But we had decided upon one very important thing, which was the date—1979 was the year when we would face the weakest competition on the North American continent.

I won't go into the rules which govern the selection of Worldcon sites, but suffice to say that while overseas bids are welcome in any year, they must face opposition from any U.S. group who would normally be entitled to bid. And we knew that we would inevitably lose if any American city made a strong effort; we just didn't have the firepower to win without the wholehearted consent of a large slice of U.S. fandom.

So we conceived the idea of a "pre-emptive strike", whereby we would go all out for support long before any competing force could get off the ground. We produced campaign buttons, advertisements, began selling supporting memberships and published a Progress Report—and I went across to the 1974 Worldcon in Washington (through the generosity of the TAFF fund) to lobby for votes when the time arrived.

I don't know if this story is true—my memories of Discon are confused for all the usual reasons—but on the Sunday night I seem to remember that Mike Resnick, prospective chairman of a bid for Chicago in '79, suddenly discovered that all his potential committee members were supporting our efforts. With good grace he bought me a beer and signed-up too!

If that is true, then our 'strike' was worthwhile, for we would have surely lost against a united Chicago contingent. As it was we only had to face some hastily-organised opposition from a New Orleans group, and by 1977 the actual voting was almost an anti-climax. An enjoyable anti-climax, of course; this time Peter Roberts went across with TAFF to the World Convention in Miami, along with Rob Jackson and myself and other supporters. We had a fine time—and were suddenly confronted with a huge pile of money and the reality which now seems to grow more daunting every day; we had to do it in 1979!

That's very largely the story of the last nine years, although there is an interesting sub-plot in the genesis of our name, "SEACON '79".

You see, Malcolm was really bitten with the organisation bug in 1974; not only did he launch the British Worldcon bid, but during the same weekend he also took on the job of chairman for the Eastercon in the following year. Afterwards we rationalised it, as a good chance for Malcolm and his team—most of whom, like Leroy Kettle and Graham Charnock, are on the present committee—to gain actual experience of running a convention.

That's true, it was. But Malcolm's bid really originated during a crazy Saturday night when certain members of fandom decided that the prospective Manchester bid for 1975 would be a certain recipe for chaos. Something Had to be Done; a group composed mostly of London fans conceived the idea of a seaside convention as a more palatable alternative—and "SEACON" became the immediate title for what proved to be a very enjoyable event. In Coventry.

Well, yes, they realised Coventry is 100 miles from the sea, just about as far from the coast as it is possible to go in Britain. Malcolm made a few brave attempts to suggest "SEACON" stood for South East Area Convention, but his heart wasn't really in it. The truth of the matter was that British seaside hotels proved a fairly negative lot and the committee simply couldn't find a site anywhere along the coastline.

There isn't anywhere! Except the Metropole at Brighton. And in a sub-sub-plot, Eve Harvey and husband John tried to arrange a 1978 Channelcon at the Metropole, as a sort of try-out for this coming August. Their bid collapsed and they joined the SEACON '79 committee instead; now do you see why our title simply had to be what it is, even though we apologise to Seattle, one of the bidders for 1981. For if they win, you know what they're going to call their convention, don't you? . . .

Having written the above, I suddenly realise that a large proportion of the people who read this programme book will probably have little or no idea what I'm talking about. Once upon a time that would have worried me; today, after these nine years, it doesn't. I've put in a lot of effort (and enjoyed every minute of it) and my committee members have probably put in more. So forgive us our little indulgences, the anecdotes we tell during our brief moments in the sun, and remember that despite all the serious stuff about Science Fiction, SEACON '79 is about people, it's a chance to have fun.

And if anything goes wrong don't blame me—blame Malcolm. I never wanted to be chairman, anyway!

Peter Weston

BOB SHAW
BRIAN ALDISS
PHILIP K. DICK
FREDERIK POHL
ALFRED BESTER
HARLAN ELLISON
DOUGLAS ADAMS
CHRISTOPHER PRIEST

BRIAN STABLEFORD
ROBERT SHECKLEY
VONDA N. McINTYRE
ROBERT HEINLEIN
ARTHUR C. CLARKE

PAN SCIENCE FICTION

BRIAN ALDISS

There are some obvious things to say about Brian Aldiss: that he is a distinguished novelist, not only in the science fiction field, that he has compiled many influential anthologies, beginning with the Penguin Science Fiction one that did as much as anything to break British sf out of its ghetto, that he won the Pilgrim Award of 1974 for his critical book Billion Year Spree.

What I have remembered about him for longest is the lift of the heart I felt fifteen years ago, in 1964, when I came upon a copy of his then-just-published The Dark Light Years. That means more than you might think, because just at that moment there wasn't a lot of lift left in my heart, since I was newly graduated from Cambridge, newly entered on my chosen career as a marketing manager, and newly fired out of it as redundant-to-requirements-and-recruited-in-error. The shock to the psyche was considerable, and mooching round Maida Vale looking for work no great fun either. Still, there I was, and there the book was in the Public Library (an institution about which Brian in his role as ex-Chairman of the Society of Authors has considerable doubts), and things looked better straight away. I still recall that first great moment of incomprehension in chapter 1, as the Earthman looks at the utods and their grorgs wallowing in the mire, and the utods look right back: 'if he were a utod he would now be a thousand years old', remarks Quequo. 'Then we must expect he will soon evolve into the carrion stage', replies Snok Snok Karn. 'That, I take it, is what the fungus on his skull signified by changing to white', confirms his mother.

Polite, reasonable, logical speech full of subjunctives and qualifiers, and all of it wrong! After only a few brief months of marketing I knew enough to realise that was funny and not-funny too. Writing like that is one of the qualities that single Brian out from all the other authors who ever lived. Everybody remembers his robots in 'Who Can Replace A Man?': 'We are not in the city. We should not go into the city.' 'We are country machines.' 'Therefore we should stay in the country.' 'There is more country than city.' 'Therefore there is more danger in the country!' And in the same collection, The Canopy of Time, there's the classic scene of the future film presentation dominated by the tactics of yesmen's yesmen, and dialogue which inside its own treacherous conventions means exactly the opposite of what it says. Even the early space-opera The Interpreter (also published as Bow Down to Nul! one of the great publisher-derived titles) was about interpreting: its basic point even in a cliché-haunted plot was that words turn upon themselves and baffle the understanding of the wisest. You cannot separate expression from content. Brian knew that all along, well before the medium started getting itself touted as the message; it's a lesson sf has learnt, a bit slowly, from Brian as from others.

But Brian's stories have also continually gone for genre clichés of plot. Non-Stop was among other things a kind of answer to Heinlein's Orphans of the Sky, Barefoot in the Head a twist on the whole set of 'after the Bomb' stories. One of his most daring ideas has, several times, been to deny the convention that says sf characters (besides being male and white) have to be young. Greybeard is not only about a society which has no young people, it's about a whole society creeping down the ladder we all individually have to descend; Hothouse is about the old age of the Earth, with the entire planet hot, stuffy, festooned with spider-webs that reach out to the unturning Moon, like some people's visions of Hell. The short story 'Old Hundredth' has ancient characters and characters from an ancient past, megatherium and baluchitherium, preparing themselves for a sort of death: releasing themselves into musicolumns, like the sloth who becomes 'Old Hundredth' itself, 'All creatures that on Earth do dwell . . .'

Dreary? No. Sad? A bit. Sometimes sf is short on facing facts, like death, failure, unemployment, taxes (though not entropy, scale, and cold equations). It would be a mistake to think Brian isn't properly appreciative of life — as indeed will be evident to those who see his burly frame loping down hotel corridors. But to see where he's at, read The Malacia Tapestry, if you haven't already, not his last nor even his latest novel, but his latest big one. In a lot of ways it stitches together what Brian has been writing about for a long time. It's funny; the main character is Perian de Chirolo, a vain lecherous butterfly-minded joculator. It's far-fetched: this 'alternate universe' took off from the famous Battle of Itssobeshiquetzilaha, over three million, one thousand and seven hundred years ago, in which homo saurus was not wiped out but survived to contest with homo simius the domination of the planet (Perian is a homosaurus too). It's full of the traditional themes of science fiction: Galileo-like innovator executed by the forces of repression, hydrogenous balloon sows bacterial warfare on invading army, hero retires to plot further revolution, etc. Yes, but it's about art too.

Some of the art in The Malacia Tapestry is good, some sad, and some silly, which is a fair selection. At one extreme you have the folk art of the magic lanterns and marionette shows of old Malacia; at another you have perfectionist Risorgimento glassmakers and frescoists. In between, Otto Bergsohn from Tolkhorm, the Galileo who is also a kind of mad Ernie Wise, is trying to immortalise on camera, or anyway zahnoscope, the godawful play (what he has just wrote) called Prince Mendicula, or The Joyous Tragedy of the Prince and Patricia and General Gerald and Jemima. No words can do justice to the horrors of this scientist's vision of art; but the medium is the message, which is why the story of the play gets replayed in the story of The Malacia Tapestry too. Sometimes life is like soap-opera, and I dare say (somewhere) like space-opera as well. The characters of all three pay more attention to joculating (and worse) than to theories about themselves. Still, the art survives, aere perennius, as us cultured Britons like Peter Weston often animadvert one to another.

You might even go so far as to say that it's better to be a lover upon a Grecian Urn (or has that thought been used somewhere before?): in the middle of Malacia butterfly-minded Perian comes upon a poor hurdy-gurdy man with the images of his grandchildren, now dead, engraved for ever upon his instrument by the brilliant Giovanni Bledlore. The images are like the characters in The Malacia Tapestry itself, or like the living musicolumn in 'Old Hundredth', hanging on the edge between being and not-being, but hanging there for ever as we cannot.

Perhaps I should add that Brian's own idea of heaven is an enormous console in the sky, full of whisky, where you can lounge, talk to your friends, and watch it all happen. Coarse fellows, some of these authors. Terrible shock, meeting them in the flesh. Better than the Public Library, though.

CREATURES OF APOGEE

BRIAN ALDISS

From a distance, the one-storey palace appeared to float on the ocean like a wafer.

Three beings came springing out of the lighted rooms of the palace behind the long colonnade, he, She, and she. They ran over the flagstones, laughing. Night crackled overhead in tones of deep blue and sherbet. Joy flared like lightning across two opposed points.

From the chambers behind them, music overflowed. In that music moved nothing but harmony itself, complete in its own cadences, yet the key in which it was pitched carried an oblique reference to the particular loaded time changes of this world. Things grew, eyes sparkled, joints were as nimble; yet this was this fateful planet and no other in the universe.

Take that great terrace, paved with flagstones in which mica emicated beneath advancing feet: across its expanse, illumination played with as many variations as the music. The night itself was a great source of light and, like an upturned cauldron, the sky spilled its nourishments over the intricacies of the building. Into the vaulted ceiling behind the colonnades, the sea smuggled its own messages of light, for oceans have better memories for heat and day than does air. The glaciers, too, and seven tiny moons, all contributed their share of luminance.

And yet those three who ran laughing – they rejoiced in night, he, She, and she, rejoiced and lived for its qualities. Now they had reached the very end of the terrace, and rested against the last slender column, with its faded paintings of sorcerers and cephalopods. Their regard went first, instinctively, to the lapping waves, as if to penetrate beneath them and view the creatures who lay waiting in the depths, waiting for the appropriate season. They smiled wryly. They raised their heads. Together, they gazed across the auroral sea, watching great glaciers floating on pillows of their own cool breath. Dawn was coming. Dawn, without responding pallor in the sky.

Dawn, the magnet of life. Take their great eyes, set in faces pale, evanescent, baroque; inescapably, the gaze of those eyes was drawn to an iceberg that floated in the east. It lay on the deeps like a memorial to time itself. Its cliffs were of a remembered grey, sombre, stony . . . until the moment of dawn. Then the ice lit like a distant signal.

As a flower unfolds from its bud, revealing its voluptuous couchy pinks, the iceberg changed inward colour. The grey became dove-grey. The dove-grey turned chalk, turned to a tender pink wash, all promise.

Between day and night was no severance: their embrace was not to be prised apart by dawns such as this. As the sun rose further, as the iceberg, forgotten by its lamp-bearer, sank back into gloom, it was not radiance which changed but sound. The music ceased. Stale inside their satins, the musicians were stealing home.

The sun was just a point of pleading light, too far from anywhere to prevail. A pearl tossed into the sky would have cast more lustre.

The three turned away, he, She, and she. Very calm, they walked hand in hand upon the edge of the terrace, where the deep ammonias of the sea cast reflections like passing thought upon their countenances.

'Is it brighter?' she asked, referring to the Sun.

'Brighter than in our childhood,' he replied.

'Brighter than yesterday, even,' She said.

Now that the music of the night was hushed, the sussurus of ocean and air moved closer, speaking to them of the whole poignant fulcrum of existence. Overhead, a seabird sped between the high arches, coming from nothingness momentarily into the orbit of civilization before it disappeared again into the void. At their feet, a concatenation of waves tossed spume on to the terrace, where it soon evaporated into space.

In the three of them moved an intense love for one another, so that they drew closer and walked like one. Not only was life short: far more touchingly, it was cyclic. The leaves that turned brown and died would spring up verdant again in many generations' time.

He said, 'We are now so far from apogee.'

She said, 'The sun grows nearer, and nearer to the Time of Change.'

And she said, 'Our world has its set course – without a course there is no world.'

Their silence was assent; but inside them, where things tangible met things intangible, was a great sense of awe, transcending joy or sorrow, as they considered the planetary motions within which their delicate part was cast. They were the life of their world; but on this world, all life was a mirror image. Two types of life – as different, as dependent, as yin and yang – existed . . . yet never met, yet never held converse, yet could not even breathe the other's atmosphere. Each type of life existed only in the death of the other. At the Time of Change, the centuries of being changed sentries.

So She said, 'As a creature of apogee, I fear . . .'

To which she added, '. . . yet also perforce love, the creatures of perihelion.'

Which he finished as, 'For they and we together must form the sleeping and the waking of one Spirit.'

They paused to look again across the rolling liquids, as if hoping for sight of that Spirit, before they made the decision to go inside their palace. In turning, they cast their united gaze upon a broad flight of steps which led down from the terrace into the ocean. That was not their way to go. Other feet, of different shape and intent, would walk those steps, when the terrible Time of Change was past.

The steps were worn, their very grain obnubilated, as much by centuries as by tread. Many atmospheres, many oceans, had washed over them, as the world moved on its attenuated elliptical course. Small the world was, and a slave to its lethargic orbit; for in the course of one year, from the heats of perihelion to the cools of apogee and back again, not only lives but generations and whole civilizations underwent the cycle of birth and decay, birth and decay.

As the three looked at those broad steps leading down into the opaque fluids of the ocean, they held inside them the knowledge of what would happen in the spring of the year, when the sun showed a disc again and Change overthrew their kind.

Then the oceans would boil away in fury.

The tides would withdraw.

The steps would dry.

The palace – their palace – would be transformed, would stand revealed as merely the top floor of a mighty pyramid with many floors. The steps would lead down to the distant ground. That ground, no longer an ocean bed, lay over ten kilometres below.

All would be hushed after the storms of Change, except for the wail of atmosphere with its new winds.

Then the creatures of perihelion would muster themselves, and would begin to ascend the stairs. Under the blaze of the swollen sun, they would march up to this topmost place. In their own tongues, with their own gestures, they would obey their own deities.

Until the autumn came round again.

The three beings took firmer hold of each other and retired into the palace, to rest, to sleep, to dream.

ENCOUNTERS WITH NEW ARRIVALS, BRIAN ALDISS

It was a quiet planet. The quiet had reigned for century piled on century. Until the Earth ship came.

Beings externally resembling humans lived on the quiet planet. Their hamlets, villages, towns, slowly covered the habitable parts of the globe. As they spread – slowly, slowly – they drove out the species of animal which had occupied the land. But the animals were not ferocious, and in many cases lived in the hedgerows and copses close by humanoid habitation. They did not prey on the humanoids, or the humanoids on them.

The quiet planet's sun was old long before the first amoebae stirred in its ocean. Although it occupied a fifth of the sky at noon, the sun's red warmth was thin. Evolution was a slow affair. The pain of life, its joys, were muted. Even the struggle for existence was curiously muted.

Over a half of the planet was land. The oceans were small and shallow. Much of the land was not habitable and the humanoids spread out only slowly from the equator. They encountered deserts where the sand never stirred. Storms were rare. Periods of calm prevailed for hundreds of years. Great silences lay over the land. Until the Earth ship came.

Muffled against heat, the people moved through barren regions before settling in clement valleys. Their villages were modest. They were great cultivators. It was their pleasure to tend the land, to groom it, to serve as its acolytes. The god they worshipped lay in the soil, not in the sky.

They bred domestic animals, obtaining from them eggs, milk, cheese, in great variety. Their rapport with the animal kingdom was so close that they hesitated to slaughter anything for fear of the pain it brought them.

The humanoids procreated rarely. Group marriages took place between four people and lasted throughout the years of life. The children remained many years in childhood, but often became independent when young; then they would strap a few necessities on their backs and move into the hills, to live among the wild things. With adolescence, some inner call would bring them back to the nearest town. In a short while, they would settle down at congenial work, marry, and enjoy life of domesticity without regret. After death, they were buried in cemeteries under the open sky, with a carved stone to preserve their names. This was the way of existence on the quiet planet for many millenia. Until the Earth ship came.

The humanoids were in some respects a simple folk. When they slept, they did not dream. When they suffered, they rarely wept. Their pleasures were muted. Yet the sloth of their evolution, its iron peacefulness, had given them integration. They were whole.

Within that wholeness, they enjoyed much complexity. From the outside, their lives might have appeared dull. Their interior life was so rich that they required no foolish distractions.

In a village called North Oasis, because it was in the high latitudes, on the fringes of a vast, stoney, desert, lived a marriage group of four which served as leaders of the community. Their name was Brattangaa. Many generations earlier, the Brattangaas had commenced to build a Common. Now the present generation of Brattangaas completed it.

The village lay in a valley, sheltered by hills. The Common stood on the edge of the village.

After the work of the day was done, the people of North Oasis came to the Common. They had no particular reason for meeting face to face. But they derived a mild pleasure from each other's physical company. They sat together on benches round peat fires, touching each other. They drank their sweet-sour parsnip wine. Nerdligs moved among them, slow and woolly. The evenings were unbroken in companionship. Until the Earth ship came.

The senior male Brattangaa stood at the window of the tower of the Common. Evening was fading into dusk, dusk into night, in the slow dying of the day. He looked out at the landscape, which at this hour appeared almost lighter than the sky. As was the case with his people, Brattangaa's interest was much less in the sky and the heavens than in the things of earth.

He could see the stone roof of his own marriage home-stead from the tower. Inside him, he could sense the mind-bodies of his domestic stock, easily distinguishing the shapes of one from the next. He could sense the roots in the ground, growing towards a slow fruition.

His attention moved to the cemetery. There, under the ground, he could still catch a faint scent of his parents, grandparents, and even great-grandparents. Their presences, ever fading, were like faint lights caught in a great fog.

It was all of fifty miles to the next little town, also clinging to a brook at the fringe of the stoney desert. It had no tower like this. Brattangaa could sense the lives of the people of that town; he knew them well, exchanged peaceable greetings with them, learned the news of the day. He could sense those whose mind-warmth was most akin to his own, his friends, as well as those whose mind-warmth was so different as to make them especial friends. Some welcomed him in – most did – others put him away with a friendly image, a wreath, a stained wooden door, an empty pewter plate, because they were too occupied with other things.

Brattangaa also sensed the people he knew by eyesight, the people of North Oasis, including his companions in the room below. He was not absent from them, or they from him. A jostling and enriching harmony prevailed. Until the Earth ship came.

As he sensed contentedly over the land, up the hillside, he saw with sudden terror a great flame standing in the sky. Such was his startlement that all in the room of the Common below also sensed it and turned their full attention towards what Brattangaa saw. In North Oasis, people did the same. More faintly, many people in the distant town did the same. Under the earth, even the dead generations protested.

All watched as the flame burned in the darkening sky. Ferocious light and flame beat upon the hillsides. And then the Earth ship came.

In the ship were five women and four men. They were of many colours and many nations. They talked in one language but they dreamed in nine.

Great excitement seized them on landing, as they set about their pre-exploration tasks.

"Kind of a drab-looking place, I'd say. Still, signs of habitation right enough."

"Can't wait to get out of this damned can. How many months we been cooped up in here?"

"Break out the carbines. Don't talk so goddam much."

"Chance to get in some big game hunting, maybe. Just imagine a great big bloody steak, fresh off the bone!"

"Atmosphere great. We can land ten thousand colonists right here within a twelve-month."

"We're made, you realise that, made! Grab a few of the higher life forms, take them back to Earth. Imagine the sensation."

"Could be some nasty things out there."

"We can handle anything that goes. From now on in, we're in charge, baby."

"And remember we come in peace."

They went through an hour of rigorous sterile-drill, moving from chamber to chamber, bathed in changing wavelengths and liquids, designed to prevent them from contaminating the atmosphere of the planet they had discovered.

At last the great ground-level hatch slid open, grating slightly as it went. The nine stood there in their foil cover-alls, weapons slung easily on their shoulders. Then they stepped out, walked on the hillside.

In their heads, in their minds, thoughts raced. A tremendous voltage of various thought-levels, some rising from depths beyond the conscious, beyond control, images hammered on the anvil of a ferocious evolutionary past. They looked down on North Oasis.

To Brattangaa in the tower, and to those who sensed him in the room below, in the little town, and in the distant town, nine strange flesh-like shapes formed on the hill. From that moment of contact, poison spread. Emanations, streamers, dark clouds, poured out of their minds. The emanations assumed definite configuration.

All the myths of Earth – the whole husbandry of the imagination – burst upon the startled people of the quiet planet. From clashing cultures, warring climates, ancient enmities, the images came, as the nine space-travellers moved forward unknowing. With them came a terrible music – such music as had never been heard before upon the quiet planet, music that slashed at the eardrums like heavy claws.

Accompanying the music came wind. It blew upon their mind-senses like a storm. It whirled upon their mental landscapes, it hammered upon the doors of their consciousness. It blew down chimneys and roofs. It was irresistible.

And on the pinions of the storm, on the surge of the music, above the brows of the clouds, rode the legends of Earth, all those terrible things in near-human form which haunt the human mind.

Pale Nazarene and sweating Buddha, elephants, cats, monkeys, serpents, gods, goddesses, grotesques with many heads, beasts, dragons, things of fire, streamed forth from the hill. Demons, devils, angels, ghouls. Never had such things been loose upon the brow of this placid world. They formed a plague to which there was no local immunity.

Immediately, their bad news spread across the face of the globe. Neighbour communed with neighbour, town with town, province with province, until every being on the quiet planet, humanoid or animal, stood and stared transfixed at the terrible monsters unleashed upon their defenceless minds.

Last to emerge from the psyches of the nine figures on the hill were four creatures more terrible than any other. Even the frenzied music, even the storm, died as they arrived, as they rose in the saddles of their steeds. Darkness fell upon the face of the planet. Beneath the soil, the lights of the dead flickered out.

Fourth streamed the four horsemen. Eyes staring, foreheads ablaze, muscles straining, they goaded on their great steeds. With flaring manes, the four horses leaped eagerly forward, rejoicing to be free.

The planet was theirs. As the nine space-voyagers began slowly to descend the hillside, they saw nothing of what the humanoids saw – the flowing manes, the flashing hooves, the brandished weapons.

Pestilence, Famine, War, these were their names, with Death close behind riding an old grey nag. Death's long beard fluttered in the wind as he galloped into the valley. Over his shoulder he swung his long scythe. The broken minds fell before him.

Breathing ash, he stooped to gather up the bodies lying in his path, stooped laughing over the dying and the dead.

There was a plentiful harvest for him on the quiet planet, when the Earth ship came.

Following the Ace Science Fiction Tradition...

Destinies

the paperback magazine of science fiction and speculative fact
Edited by James Baen

A breakthrough in publishing
—the very first paperback science fiction magazine is a tremendous success! Thanks to you, the readers, who know that DESTINIES offers only the best articles and stories from the best writers

Now you can subscribe to DESTINIES—send your name and address, and a check or money order made out to BOOK MAILING SERVICE,
for $13.50. The next 6 issues of DESTINIES will be sent to you on publication.
Mail subscription orders to:

BOOK MAILING SERVICE
ACE SCIENCE FICTION DIVISION
BOX 650
ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y. 11571

POUL ANDERSON
BEN BOVA
ORSON SCOTT CARD
JOE HALDEMAN
FRANK HERBERT
DEAN ING
LARRY NIVEN
FREDERIK POHL
JERRY POURNELLE
SPIDER ROBINSON
FRED SABERHAGEN
G. HARRY STINE

 Ace Science Fiction
A Grosset & Dunlap Company

"One of the most imaginative, exciting talents to appear on the SF scene in recent years."

—Publishers Weekly

Charles Sheffield

THE WEB BETWEEN THE WORLDS

Arthur C. Clarke says:
"An idea whose time has come ...
the Space Elevator... may be the great engineering achievement of the Twenty-first Century, making travel round the solar system no more expensive than any other form of transportation."

$4.95 / Special Trade Publication

 Ace Science Fiction A Grosset & Dunlap Company

JERRY POURNELLE

JANISSARIES

They knew they were going to die...

Surrounded by Cuban "advisors" and "Nationalist Front" native Marxists, they knew that if they fought on they would be annihilated. If they surrendered there would be a show-trial first, but death lay at the end of that road too. There was, however, a third alternative...

Thus begins a spectacular novel of High Adventure, the newest and best work yet by the co-author of the national best-seller, Lucifer's Hammer. Enter and be swept away into a world imbued with that combination of the fantastic and the utterly believable that is the Pournelle trademark. With the aid of over seventy pages of gorgeous illustrations by Bermejo, you will live

the life of the
JANISSARIES

ACE SCIENCE FICTION
A Grosset & Dunlap Company

the British Science
Fiction Association's Best Writer of the Year

IAN WATSON

"For sheer inventiveness and intellectual brilliance, Ian Watson has already established himself in the front rank of contemporary writers."

—The London Sunday Times

The Very Slow Time Machine $1.95
Alien Embassy $1.75
Miracle Visitors $1.95
The Martian Inca $1.95

Ace Science Fiction
A Grosset & Dunlap Company

the British Science
Fiction Association's Best Novel of 1977:
Orbitsville

Bob Shaw

"Bob Shaw may well be the most important science fiction discovery of this decade."
—Lester Del Rey

Vertigo $1.95
The Two-Timers $1.75
Ship of Strangers $1.95
Orbitsville $1.95
Who Goes Here $1.75

Ace Science Fiction
A Grosset & Dunlap Company

Winner of Virtually Every Major Award Science Fiction Has to Offer

Gordon R. Dickson

The Spirit of Dorsai

The Childe Cycle is the lifework of one of science fiction's greatest practitioners, Gordon R. Dickson. The centerpiece of that lifework is the planet Dorsai and its people. This, then, is their story.

Magnificently illustrated by Fernando Fernandez.
$5.95 / Special Trade Publication

Ace Science Fiction
A Grosset & Dunlap Company

AUSTRALIA IN '83

HUGO WOMBAT
EDITOR

TODAYS' FICTION-TOMORROWS' FACT!

Brian Aldiss Bibliography

First book publications listed in chronological order.

THE BRIGHTFOUNT DIARIES (Faber, 1955)

SPACE, TIME AND NATHANIEL (Faber, 1957)

Contents: T; Our Kind of Knowledge; Psychlops; Conviction; Not for an Age; The Shubshub Race; Criminal Record; The Failed Men; Supercity; There is a Tide; Pogsmith; Outside; Panel Game; Dumb Show.

NON-STOP (Faber, 1958)

THE CANOPY OF TIME (Faber, 1959)

Contents: Three's A Cloud; All the World's Tears; Who Can Replace a Man?; Blighted Profile; Judas Danced; Oh Ishrail!; Incentive; Gene Hive; Secret of a Mighty City; They Shall Inherit; Visiting Amoeba.

VANGUARD FROM ALPHA (Ace, 1959)

(See also EQUATOR)

NO TIME LIKE TOMORROW (Signet, 1959)

US version of SPACE, TIME AND NATHANIEL

Omits: Conviction; The Shubshub Race; Criminal Record; Supercity; There is a Tide; Pogsmith; Panel Game; Dumb Show.

Adds: Carrion County; Judas Danced; Poor Little Warrior; Gesture of Farewell; The New Father Christmas; Blighted Profile.

GALAXIES LIKE GRAINS OF SAND (Signet, 1960)

US version of THE CANOPY OF TIME

Omits: Three's a Cloud; Blighted Profile; Judas Danced; They Shall Inherit.

Adds: Out of Reach; connecting material.

BOW DOWN TO NUL (Ace, 1960)

Published in UK as THE INTERPRETER

EQUATOR (Digit, 1961)

Contains BOW DOWN TO NUL plus Segregation (The Game of God)

THE MALE RESPONSE (Beacon Books, 1961)

THE PRIMAL URGE (Ballantine, 1961)

HOTHOUSE (Faber, 1962)

Published in US as THE LONG AFTERNOON OF EARTH

THE AIRS OF EARTH (Faber, 1963)

Contents: A Kind of Artistry; How to Be a Soldier; Basis for Negotiation; Shards; "O Moon of My Delight!"; The International Smile; The Game of God; Old Hundredth.

GREYBEARD (Faber, 1964)

THE DARK LIGHT YEARS (Faber, 1964)

STARSWARM (Signet, 1964)

US version of THE AIRS OF EARTH

Omits: Basis for Negotiation; The International Smile.

Adds: The Under-Privileged; Legends of Smith's Burst, connecting material.

BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES OF BRIAN W.

ALDISS (Faber, 1965)

Published in US as WHO CAN REPLACE A MAN?

Contents: Who Can Replace a Man?; Not for an Age; Psychlops; Outside; Dumb Show; The New Father Christmas; Ahead; Poor Little Warrior!; Man on Bridge; The Impossible Star; Basis for Negotiation; Old Hundredth; A Kind of Artistry; Man in His Time.

EARTHWORKS (Faber, 1965)

THE SALIVA TREE AND OTHER STRANGE

GROWTHS (Faber, 1966)

Contents: The Saliva Tree; Danger: Religion!; The Source; The Lonely Habit; A Pleasure Shared; One Role with Relish; Legends of Smith's Burst; Day of the Doomed King; Paternal Care; The Girl and the Robot with Flowers.

AN AGE (Faber, 1967)

Published in the US and later in the UK as CRYPTOZOIC!

REPORT ON PROBABILITY A (Faber, 1968)

BAREFOOT IN THE HEAD (Faber, 1969)

A BRIAN ALDISS OMNIBUS (Sidgwick & Jackson, 1969)

Contents: The Saliva Tree; The Impossible Star; Basis for Negotiation; Man in His Time; THE PRIMAL URGE: THE INTERPRETER.

INTANGIBLES, INC. AND OTHER STORIES (Faber, 1969)

Contents: Neanderthal Planet; Randy's Syndrome; Send Her Victorious; Intangibles Inc.; Since the Assassination.

NEANDERTHAL PLANET (Avon, 1969)

US version of INTANGIBLES, INC.

Omits: Randy's Syndrome; Send Her Victorious. Adds: Danger: Religion!

THE HAND-REARED BOY (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1970)

THE MOMENT OF ECLIPSE (Faber, 1970)

Contents: The Moment of Eclipse; The Day We Embarked for Cythera . . . ; Orgy of the Living and the Dying; Super-Toys Last all Summer Long; The Village Swindler; Down the Up Escalation; The Uncomfortable Pause Between Life and Art . . . ; Confluence; Heresies of the Huge God; Circulation of the Blood . . . ; And the Stagnation of the Heart; The Worm That Flies; Working in the Spaceship Yards; Swastika!

BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES OF BRIAN W.

ALDISS, revised edition (Faber, 1971)

Omits: Psychlops; Dumb Show; The New Father Christmas; Ahead; Basis for Negotiation; A Kind of Artistry.

Adds: Shards; Girl and Robot with Flowers; The Moment of Eclipse; Swastika!; Sober Noises of Morning in a Marginal Land; Judas Danced; Still Trajectories; Another Little Boy.

A SOLDIER ERECT (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1971)

THE BOOK OF BRIAN ALDISS (DAW, 1972)

Published in the UK as COMIC INFERNO

Contents: Comic Inferno; The Underprivileged; Cardiac Arrest; In the Arena; All the World's Tears; Amen and Out; The Soft Predicament; As for our Fatal Continuity; Send Her Victorious.

BRIAN ALDISS OMNIBUS 2 (Sidgwick & Jackson, 1972)

Contents: SPACE, TIME AND NATHANIEL; NON-STOP; THE MALE RESPONSE

FRANKENSTEIN UNBOUND (Jonathan Cape, 1973)

THE EIGHTY-MINUTE HOUR (Jonathan Cape, 1974)

THE MALACIA TAPESTRY (Jonathan Cape, 1976)

BROTHERS OF THE HEAD (Pierrot, 1977)

Illustrated by Ian Pollock.

LAST ORDERS AND OTHER STORIES

(Jonathan Cape, 1977)

Contents: Last Orders; Creatures of Apogee; Enigma 1: Year By Year the Evil Grows; Enigma 2: Diagrams for Three Stories; Live? Our Computers Will Do That For Us; The Monster of Ingratitude IV; Enigma 3: The Aperture Moment; Backwater; Enigma 4: The Eternal Theme of Exile; The Expensive Delicate Ship; Enigma 5: Three Coins in Clockwork Fountains; An Appearance of Life; Wired for Sound; Journey to the Heartland.

ENEMIES OF THE SYSTEM (Jonathan Cape, 1978)

A RUDE AWAKENING (Weidenfeld & Nicolson)

BROTHERS OF THE HEAD (Panther, 1979)

Paperback edition omitting illustrations but adding the story "Where the Lines Converge"

PILE (Jonathan Cape, 1979)

Poem illustrated by Mike Wilks.

NEW ARRIVALS, OLD ENCOUNTERS (Jonathan Cape, 1979)

Contents: New Arrivals, Old Encounters; The Small Stones of Tu Fu; Three Ways; Amen and Out; A Spot of Konfrontation; The Soft Predicament: Non-Isotropic; One Blink of the Moon; Space for Reflection; Indifference; Song of the Silencer; The Impossible Puppet Show.

*Forthcoming at time of compilation.

2. NON-FICTION

CITIES AND STONES: A TRAVELLER'S YUGOSLAVIA (Faber, 1966)
THE SHAPE OF FURTHER THINGS: SPECULATIONS ON CHANGE (Faber, 1970)
BILLION YEAR SPREE: THE HISTORY OF SCIENCE FICTION (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1973)
SCIENCEFICTIONART (New English Library, 1975)
*THIS WORLD AND NEARER ONES: ESSAYS EXPLORING THE FAMILIAR (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1979)

Contents: Ever Since the Enlightenment; James Blish and the Mathematics of Knowledge; Dick's Maledictory Web; Why They Left Zirn Unguarded: The Stories of Robert Sheckley; Nesvadba: In the Footsteps of the Admirable Capek; Verne: The Extraordinary Voyage; Vonnegut: Guru Number Four; Barefoot: Its first Decade; The Gulf and the Forest: Contemporary SF in Britain; Looking Forward to 2001; The Hiroshima Man; From History to Timelessness; The Hashish Club; 1951: Yesterday's Festival of the Future; The Sower of the Systems: Some Paintings by G. F. Watts; "The Fireby-Wireby Book"; SF Art: Strangeness with Beauty; the Film Tarkovsky Made; Kissingers Have Long Ears; Spielberg: When the Mundane Breaks Down.

*To be published in AUGUST 1979

3. ANTHOLOGIES

(Those edited with Harry Harrison are asterisked)
PENGUIN SCIENCE FICTION (Penguin, 1961)
BEST FANTASY STORIES (Faber, 1962)
MORE PENGUIN SCIENCE FICTION (Penguin, 1963)
INTRODUCING SF (Faber, 1964)
YET MORE PENGUIN SCIENCE FICTION (Penguin, 1964)
*NEBULA AWARD STORIES TWO (Doubleday, 1967)
*FAREWELL, FANTASTIC VENUS! (Macdonald, 1968)
Abridged version published in the US as ALL ABOUT VENUS.,
*THE YEAR'S BEST SCIENCE FICTION Nos 1-9 (Sphere Books, 1968)
Annual anthology published 1968-1976: US title BEST SF 1967 etc.
*THE ASTOUNDING - ANALOG READER, Vol. 1 (Doubleday, 1972)
Divided into two volumes for UK publication (Sphere Books).
*THE ASTOUNDING - ANALOG READER, Vol. 2 (Doubleday, 1973)
PENGUIN SCIENCE FICTION OMNIBUS (Penguin, 1973)
Contains: PENGUIN SF, MORE PENGUIN SF & YET MORE PENGUIN SF.
SPACE OPERA (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1974)
*HELL'S CARTOGRAPHERS: Some Personal Histories of Science Fiction Writers/ Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1975)
SPACE ODYSSEYS (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1975)
*DECADE: The 1940s (Macmillan, 1975)
EVIL EARTHS (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1976)
*DECADE: THE 1950s (Macmillan, 1976)
GALACTIC EMPIRES, VOLS 1 & 2 (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1976)
*DECADE: THE 1960s (Macmillan, 1977)
PERILOUS PLANETS (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1978)

"I learned much from Karin Blair's book . . . about STAR TREK AND MYSELF. A most unusual and interesting analysis of our television show. I enjoyed it thoroughly."

— Gene Roddenberry

"... a very thorough, intelligent and meaningful piece of work . . . it will add much to the body of literature on the subject."

— Leonard Nimoy

Meaning in STAR TREK

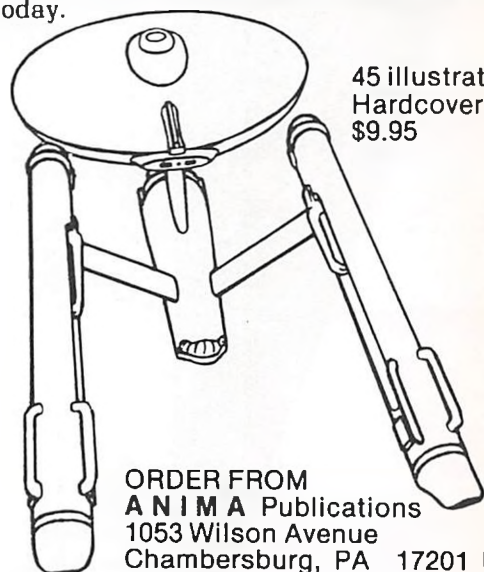

Karin Blair

Why did STAR TREK give birth to an entire new sub-culture? Why, years later, do reruns hold a later generation spellbound?

Moving from outer space to inner space, Karin Blair plumbs the depth of both STAR TREK and our unconscious inner space to show how this contemporary myth resonates deep in human nature. She sees all of us as travelers aboard the Enterprise and uses specific episodes to show how Spock, Kirk, McCoy, and the others project our own fears and aspirations.

Analyzing Spock's strong appeal to female viewers, Karin Blair uncovers STAR TREK's vision of basic human polarities: man and woman, youth and age, good and evil, known and unknown. She sees Mr. Spock, half-Vulcan and half-human, as the embodiment of the alien in each of us. Through him we learn to cope creatively with our own existence as we go where no human has gone before.

Meaning in STAR TREK is not only for trekkies but for anyone concerned with what it means to be human today.

45 illustrations
Hardcover
$9.95

ORDER FROM ANIMA Publications
1053 Wilson Avenue
Chambersburg, PA 17201 USA

Please send _____ copies of Meaning in STAR TREK, postpaid at $9.95 each to

_____ Zip _____
() Payment enclosed () Charge my VISA or Mastercharge.
Please copy all numbers
on the card.
Signature required.

INNOVATIVE SCIENCE FICTION

Nebula winner 1978

"A very beautiful work indeed... richly and beautifully imagined...
a very satisfying book indeed."
Spectator

PUBLICATION: OCTOBER 12th

Boldly goes where no SF has gone before...

A Pan Original

Winner of the BSFA
Media Award

PAN SCIENCE FICTION

Berkley
is proud to be a sponsor of the
Seacon 1979

World Science Fiction Convention

We hope that the contributions of our outstanding science fiction authors will continue to enrich the field and bring you many hours of reading pleasure.

Poul Anderson

J.G. Ballard

Ben Bova

Philip José Farmer

Harry Harrison

Robert A. Heinlein

Frank Herbert

Fritz Leiber

Richard Matheson

Michael Moorcock

Joanna Russ

Robert Silverberg

FRITZ LEIBER

A FEW TOO FEW WORDS BY HARLAN ELLISON

On the night wind the request comes in. Like clockwork. Say a few words in praise of Fritz Leiber. Would you mind? We know you're busy, but would you mind? We know you've done this a dozen times already, but would you mind?

Yes, at long last, yes, I mind very much.

This is foolishness. In the last three years I have sat down behind the typewriter on eight different occasions to "say a few words about Fritz Leiber."

I have said that he is one of the perhaps dozen writers in the history of literature whose command of the language, whose inventiveness, whose shining genius intimidates me. I have said that I have no hesitation in ranking him with Poe and Kafka and Borges and Collier and Blackwood and Machen and Shirley Jackson and Gerald Kersh and Rambo and Stanley Ellin; than whom there are no greater. I have said that none of us working in the genre of the fantastic today are free of the lessons taught by Leiber. I have said that he sets a high water mark for all of us struggling to be perfect, that simply cannot be reached. I have said that he is an original and when - dark the day - he leaves us, we will never see his like again. I have said all this, and it's foolishness.

If, after forty years, anyone is foolish or ignorant enough to need words from punks like me about Fritz Leiber, it is a sorry pass indeed.

Honoring him at science fiction conventions is amusing time-waste and perhaps even a touch heartwarming after all this time, but the truth of the matter is that if Fritz Leiber had not devoted his life and his life's work to the insular community category fantasy, Seacon '79 might well be honoring a Nobel Laureate in Literature. But since he did, and since the Nobel juries seem utterly unaware of the laborers in this hideously insular community, he comes to this year and this moment as the totem of fans, rather than as a major entry in every important study of literary forces in the Twentieth Century. I find that tragic and disgraceful.

To be blunt, and make no friends doing it, Fritz Leiber is - and has always been - too good for his audience. His talent was always too big for the category, his dreams too rich, his goals too noble for us. He deserves far better, much more, than merely being feted at science fiction conventions.

And so I will say no more for such tiny tributes.

He does not need these words from me, or from any of us. He is better than we can ever hope to be; he is grander, finer, deeper, and worthier than any words can say.

After forty years he commands all our love and all our admiration; and what we have to give him now is inadequate.

The words that need to be said about the man and the work called Fritz Leiber are the words spoken by time and posterity. When lesser names like Lovecraft and Merritt and Burroughs are consigned to the academic's shelf of curiosities, the stories written by Fritz Leiber will continue to burn with their own hellishly beautiful blue glow, and the books will continue to be passed down from generation to generation for lesser writers to study and emulate; the stories that make dilettantes wither and poseurs ashamed. Time will say what must be said about Fritz Leiber.

So don't ask me again. I have said all I can say about him. He begs description, and his words outshine the best of ours. Honor him if you will, but it's only gilding your own lily. He doesn't need it, he needs and deserves far more; that which we crawlers cannot provide.

For what he has given us, over forty years, no amount of cheap, self-congratulatory accolades, intended to make us look important by our merest association with him, count for the smallest tribute.

Time and posterity will say what has to be said for Fritz Leiber. And even they will never speak eloquently enough.

HARLAN ELLISON
Los Angeles
28 April 79

Copyright 1979 Harlan Ellison

Joan
Hankel
Woods
c
79

The Man Who Was Married to Space and Time

Old Guy Manning was in love with space and time all of his life, not only during the months preceding his mysterious yet oddly unspectacular disappearance. He didn't write poetry about them, although he sometimes spoke of them poetically, and it did not lead him to become a professional physicist or astronomer (the stars being supreme examples of distance and of great use in timekeeping). No, it was altogether a humbler sort of affection and in his last years, after his wife's death (there were no children) and his retirement from his minor editorial job, when he was living alone in a big-city apartment he leased by the year, it had some of the humdrum elements (elements of bondage, almost) that one sees in most long marriages. The sort of affection or devotion that kept him interested in science and science fiction all his life, and staring speculatively into the distance more than most people do, and toward the end compulsively concerned with small numbers and with counting (which is, after all, the simplest way we measure both time and space).

And yet this humble, humdrum, rather metaphysical love was so obvious to the few friends of his last years that none of them was exactly startled by the fanciful suggestion made after his casual yet eerie disappearance (though by no means agreeing with the suggestion, of course) that old Guy had somehow melted away into space and time, become "married" to them in the sense of becoming merged with them.

And indeed, old Guy Manning's disappearance did have an unstudied air to it, as if he had simply stood up one day (as if going to get a drink of water) and walked out of life, or at least away from life as we know it. Though in what direction that would be it's puzzling (or perhaps meaningless) to ask.

It was the girl Joan Miles who made the fanciful "melting into space-time" suggestion. She was a mildly hippie young person, unseriously addicted to astrology, white witchcraft, and other pastel superstitions, who had the distinction of living and keeping time by her personally-embellished lunar calendar, in which all the full moons have names, not just the Harvest and Hunters. There are the Sowers Moon and the Loners, for example, the Ghosts, and of course the Lovers. By her calendar, incidentally, old Guy Manning disappeared on the night of the Murderers (or Adulterers – Joan liked both names and couldn't choose between them) Moon, the one nearest the summer solstice, the full moon that steals across the sky low in the south, latest to rise and earliest to set, short and dim as a December day (in contrast, the Lovers Moon is of course the one nearest the winter solstice, riding shamelessly high in the heavens and shedding an intoxicating silver radiance all the long, long night.

BY FRITZ LEIBER

Manning's other young friend (who was also Joan's friend) was Jack Penrose, a restless chap with a keen interest in both the occult and science, and with ambitions too of becoming a writer of fantasy romances. He was the one to whom Manning told some of his dreams.

Then there was Mr. Sarcander, a sallow and lean-jawed clinical psychologist working mostly in geriatrics. Originally Manning had consulted him about his recurrent depressions, but their relationship had become social also. Those who knew him well found Mr. Sarcander the most cynical and sardonic man alive, shockingly harsh in his evaluation of human motives, and they were occasionally hurt when they found such value judgements being applied to them or their friends. Such had never learned, or else temporarily forgotten, that Mr. Sarcander was harshest of all on himself, expending all his optimism, flattery, and merry mood on his patient-clients, reserving his honesty for the people he could relax with.

And then there was the amiable and tolerant Dr. Lewison, Manning's medical doctor, with whom he had something more than a purely professional relationship. He had keys to Manning's apartment, as did Jack Penrose.

These four persons had become acquainted while Manning was still alive (undisappeared, rather) and after his vanishing they met a few times to talk about it and him, especially when police investigations developed no leads – or any push at all, for that matter.

Such was the surprisingly small circle of Manning's last friends unless we include (and we probably should) Mr. Breen, a burly, dark, not unhandsome Irishman with permanently bewildered eyes and given to fits of absentmindedness, who was the apartment manager of the building where Manning lived on the top floor. Breen wasn't the first to notice Manning's absence (Joan did) but he made a small discovery in connection with it that became somewhat puzzling as he recalled more of the attendant circumstances.

"I was up on the roof," he said, "when I noticed this small ring of keys sitting on one of the steps leading up to the little room over the shaft that has the elevator motor and relays in it. Right next to the edge of the roof too. At first I didn't think of Manning specially but then I remembered – You know how he'd go up there once or twice a day, nights too, to check out the weather or the stars, he'd say? – I remembered times when he'd forgotten and left other things in about the same spot – his pipe or matches or a half-filled cup of coffee, and once his binoculars. So I checked out the keys and they were Manning's. Which is sort of funny because you need them to get down from the roof. The one for the front door to the building also unlocks the door in from the roof. The police have them now."

"No," Jack Penrose contradicted, "the lock on the roof door doesn't snap shut unless you make it. He took me up there several times and he always left the door hanging ajar and then pulled it tight shut, so it locked, after we came back in. And even if you were locked out on the roof without a key, you could always climb down the outside ladder to the fire escape."

"That's true," Breen admitted, frowning doubtfully.

Dr. Lewison smiled to himself, thinking of how lightly young people contemplated such athletic feats.

Meanwhile Joan Miles was visualizing an ovoid space shuttle landing as silently as death on the pale, tar-set gravel overhead by the light of the Murderers Moon. And a door opening in its glassy skin and old Guy Manning bowing courteously toward it and then climbing inside. He wouldn't have needed a key to get down from the roof then, she thought. Or any Earth keys any more, if it were going to be that sort of journey.

What she said was, "He had a way of narrowing his eyes and moving his head around from side to side as he looked out at the city. I wondered about it and then I realized he was lining up things very precisely – buildings, flagpoles, clouds, stars. He'd move his head the same way when he used his binoculars. He was learning all the stars, he told me once, not just the constellations but the smaller asterisms too that make them up and often look so much alike. He said it was a job that would last out his time. He had a geometric mind.

Mr. Sarcander snorted faintly. "Old people," he said, "are forever checking out their eyesight, trying to prove to themselves that it's as good as ever – or even better."

Jack Penrose said defensively, "He was very careful about all his sensations. They were more like observations. He paid attention to details. He watched the city – almost as if that were his special job."

"All old people do that," Mr. Sarcander said. "You see their white faces at windows and in shadowed porches. They watch their little world, their microcosm in which each has been God all of his life, waiting for the cracks to appear and it to crumble. It's the only occupation life has left them."

"Mr. Manning," Joan murmured, mostly to herself, a little primly, "became more and more immersed in distance and duration."

And indeed that was a very fair way of describing the way Guy Manning's life had gone. Early on, he'd travelled as much as he could, experiencing distance that way. He'd liked to watch the sea. Later on this urge had expressed itself in a love of maps. He liked to measure distances on them with a small ivory ruler he carried. When he took walks he'd head for the nearest hill or high place so that he could see distance emerge from the scene around him as he mounted. And always there were the vastly far, infinitely regular stars at night, or in their absence the clouds filling the middle distances. During one period his interest shifted to great interiors, those of cathedrals, industrial assembly buildings wherein small aircraft could fly, and huge country-size extraterrestrial structures such as those imagined in Arthur C. Clarke's Rendezvous with Rama and John Varley's Titan.

As with distance, so with duration. At one time of his life he was greatly interested in clocks, and if he'd had more money he might have become a collector and ended up with a house full of tickings and chimings. But in the long run he was more drawn to the commoner and more ordinary aspects of timekeeping, the adjustment of watches and alarm clocks, the calls to Time of Day, the counting out of seconds accurately, the estimation of the duration of a moment of awareness (that vital surface which patches together the subjective and objective, the mental and material, the microcosm and the macrocosm), and the slow circling march across the sky of the time-keeping stars.

"He never cared for those new digital watches and clocks," Dr. Lewison remarked, "especially the kind that show a black empty face until you press a button. Neither do I for that matter. For a wrist watch or clock he preferred the simplest kind of face: upright black numerals evenly spaced, minute markings around the rim, and all three hands."

"I know," Joan Miles agreed. "He said you could see the face of time that way, judge its expression, and sometimes guess what it was up to."

Jack Penrose lifted his eyes. "He once told me a desert dream he had," the young man reminisced. "He was standing on this perfectly flat expanse of fine silvery sand. The illumination was general but he knew he was in a desert. He could feel on his back the infrared rays of a very hot sun beating rhythmically down through a thin cloud layer. And as if in time with the beating of those rays he could feel the hard-packed sand vibrating very rapidly – about five or six tight tiny shakes to every one of his heartbeats, as if the earth beneath were quaking constantly. There was mist all around him, but it was slowly dissipating upward. Yet as it rose, he could at first see nothing but the endless silver (and invisibly vibrating) plain extending out in all directions. He felt terribly lonely.

"Then, as the mist continued to rise by slow stages, there came into view – about two miles away, he judged – a squat dark tower of considerable width – more like a fort, really. Then he noticed two rather thin dark aerial wings jutting out from the tower for miles and miles – an impossible job for cantilevering. He could barely make out the end of one of them in the far distance. And then as he swung his eyes back to the other wing, the longer one, and continued to watch it, he got the impression it was very slowly moving toward him over the silver sand.

"At that point the mist rose another stage. He noticed a shadow rapidly travelling across the plain toward him. He looked up and saw the tower's third and highest-set wing slicing through the misty air a quarter of a mile overhead like a gigantic revolving dark scythe. He glanced down at his wrist to time the scythe's speed . . . and as he saw the skinny sweep second hand of his watch crawling rapidly in infinitesimal five-a-second jerks around the silvery dial, he realized where he was."

"Trapped under a wrist watch crystal," Joan heard herself say. "Its ticking the vibration of the sands? Did the mists clear all away? Was it his room outside? Did he peer down?"

"He woke up feeling the watch band gripping his wrist oppressively. He'd forgotten to take it off the night before. He said you became more aware of tiny pressures like that as you grew older." Jack's eyes widened a trifle and then frowned as faintly – as though what he had just said had reminded him of another memory, one more difficult to disentangle.

"A wristwatch does tick five times a second," Dr. Lewison observed, "though it's harder for me to hear it these days. That compulsion to count . . . the concern with small numbers – you know, somewhere Guy picked up the habit of segregating his coins in different pockets according to their value (some joke about putting a use to all the pockets in a pair of pants) and then he found he'd acquired the additional habit of reaching in and counting them by touch –"

"A test of tactile acuity!" Mr. Sarcander put in sharply. "The elderly reassure themselves that way, filling their empty time with little tasks, so they won't have to think unpleasant thoughts about what's coming."

"He had another habit involving small numbers and counting," Dr. Lewison pressed on. "He'd read or been told by someone (he told me) about how people have been traced down by the characteristic pattern in which they tear matches out of matchbooks. That inspired him to experiment with different patterns of tearing out matches when he smoked his pipe – every other match in a rank, every third one, from in front, from behind, from the sides in, from the centre out, sometimes (he said) he'd give each match a weight from its position and try to tear them out in such a way that the two sides continued to balance without being symmetrical –"

"Anyone tracing him would have thought he was a dozen different people," Jack couldn't help interrupting, relieved to be able to grin at something.

"He told me about that too," Joan Miles said rapidly. "Eventually he came to think of the matches mostly as people – or actors on a stage, rather, with the matchbook cover their backdrop. The trick was to tear them out in such a way that you'd always have an effectively balanced stage, though that consideration only became apparent, mostly, when they'd got thinned down in numbers –"

Mr. Sarcander's small brusque shrug gave his evaluation of such matchbook charades.

Dr. Lewison leaned forward a little. "But the strongest indication by far," he said, "of Guy's obsession with counting and the fascination small numbers held for him, was when he gave up chess for backgammon. In that game you're constantly counting and you're always juggling small numbers in your head, combining and recombining them as you hunt your move. In a way the largest number you work with is six, because there is none higher on a single die.

“One of the reasons (he told me) he made the change,” the doctor continued, “was that he’d come to think that backgammon is much more like real life than chess is. In chess you’re operating in an ideal universe where all the laws and forces are known to you and you control half of the pieces. You can make the most far-reaching and elaborate plans and nothing can upset them but your adversary. But in backgammon blind chance enters the picture on each move, at every throw of the dice. There are no certainties, only possibilities and probabilities. You can’t plan in the same way as in chess. All you can do is make your arrangements so that whatever comes, good or (more often it always seems) bad, you can best endure it or take advantage of it.” His voice was growing more animated. “It exemplifies the Pythagorean injunction: Believe that anything that can happen in the world can happen to you. You can only fight on for victory or survival, while chance rains down its blows unendingly.” He took a deep breath and settled back.

“He once told me another dream he had,” Jack Penrose broke in. “He was on this rather large flat square roof that seemed strangely familiar. It had a parapet a little less than waist high. There was also a wall the same height that went across the middle of the roof, dividing it into equal rectangles – later in the dream he figured it was the roofs of two buildings the same height and shape abutting each other, because the central wall was thicker with a crack down its middle and when he had to cross over that wall (as he did several times in the dream, moving rapidly) he was always afraid there’d be nothing on the other side or that something else drastic would happen.

“It was night with a heavy overcast pressing down and a biting wind that blew irregular splatters of rain, but enough light leaked up from the streets so that he could make out his surroundings. He was wearing some sort of dark gray uniform – it felt uncomfortable and harsh to the skin, like a uniform – but without any insignia he could discover.

“He wasn’t alone. In fact, there were quite a few other people on the roof, but they were all crouched down against the outer walls (or at least along three of those walls) just as he was himself, some of them alone, some in pairs and small huddles, so that he couldn’t see them too well. In fact, during his whole dream he never got to look one of them in the face – or address a single word to any of them, or they to him – though later on he occasionally got comfort, or at least a sense of safety, from being close to one of them and moving side by side together without their ever looking at each other. They all seemed to be wearing the same sort of nondescript gray uniform as his own, only quite a few of them – about half, in fact – were wearing uniforms of a lighter shade of gray; being near one of the latter never gave him a sense of reassurance.

“Most of the time all of these figures held very still, though watching each other closely, he supposed, as he was doing. But every so often a couple of them would scurry-crawl along the wall they were huddled against for a short (or sometimes quite long) distance and then as suddenly hold still again. If one of them had to cross the central wall in the course of his crawling rush, he’d hump over it as swiftly as he could through the chill swooping wind, always keeping a low profile. It struck him that their actions were a lot like those of soldiers practicing to advance across a broken field under enemy fire.

“And every once in a while he’d get the overpowering urge to do likewise. He’d crawl as fast and inconspicuously as he could for as long as he felt the urge. When it left him he’d hold still wherever he happened to be, alone or beside others, but always as close to the wall as he could get. That part was like musical chairs, he said, except there was no music to tell you when to start and stop. It was only the urge that gave you those orders.

“He noticed that the dream soldiers in lighter gray always moved in one direction along and around the walls, while he and the ones in the same darker uniforms always advanced in the opposite direction. When opposing soldiers neared or went past each other the sense of peril increased. Whenever the light gray soldiers moved, especially if he were alone against the wall, he’d huddle down, trying to hide his head, in horrid anticipation of one of them landing on his back or just so much as touching him.

“Yet whenever in spite of all his efforts that did happen, there wouldn’t be any terrible pain or shock such as he anticipated, but only a break in the dream, a momentary black-out after which he’d be back at the point where the dream had started, or near it, and all that crawling and terrified crouching in the dark windy wet to do again, and no comfort except sometimes a like-uniformed faceless gray soldier to crouch against, shoulder to shoulder.

“It was only when he’d at last made it all the way around and was huddled down with all the other dark gray dream soldiers and they began without warning to vanish two by two (yes, just like that) that he finally realised he was part of a backgammon game being played with living, feeling men – like chess played with living pieces who didn’t know they were that. And as he waited his unpredictable turn to be borne off (vanished), there began to build up in him a fear and a pressure –”

Jack snapped his fingers as he broke off. “Pressure!” he said, “– that’s what I was trying to remember. Once, apropos of nothing special, maybe we’d been talking about science fiction, certainly not backgammon, Mr. Manning asked me if I’d ever had the feeling of being under a kind of pressure that would suddenly squeeze me out of the world altogether, shoot me away in any direction like an appleseed or –”

“– or just melt away into space-time,” Joan murmured.

“Seriously, Joan,” Jack asked her, “how could something like awareness melt away into the material?”

“Everything has an awareness side, even the atoms, else reality wouldn’t balance out. Mr. Manning once said that. And I remember another thing he told me – that a person ought always keep a packed suitcase handy, in case he were called away at short notice. Only

I don't remember whether he said he followed his own advice."

Mr. Breen broke in. He'd been listening to everything with the same worried, hunting look. "I seem to remember there always used to be a little suitcase at the foot of his bed," he said. "And it's not there now." He continued to look worried and puzzled.

"After you found his keys," Jack addressed him, "I went up and searched every inch of the roof. I found three items that could have been Mr. Manning's - a backgammon doubling cube, a lens cap that fitted his binoculars, and a matchbook with five matches left in a pattern of two side by side, one alone, and two one space apart."

"There's five of us," Breen groped. He touched the side of his head and winced his eyes. "I knew I'd remember," he said guiltily. "When I found the keys they were on a scrap of paper, holding it down. I started to pick the paper up too, though I never thought it might be important then, but it blew off the roof. It was ragged along one side, like it was torn out of a spiral notebook. I think it had writing on it, tiny capitals."

They looked around at each other for a while. Then, as though by common consent, they went up to the roof together and watched the rising of the Loners Moon, which is also often the Overlapper linking each year with the next.

© FRITZ LEIBER 1979

IN MEMORIAM

Lief Andersson
Dennis Dobson
Ron Graham
Brian Lewis
Richard C. Meredith
Robert Bruce Montgomery
Hope Murrlees
Ed Earl Reep
Michael Rosenblum
Eric Frank Russell
Stephen Takacs
Sylvia Townsend Warner
Norman Weedall
Mortimer Weisinger
Jay Williams
Robert Moore Williams
Jeff Yates

The Science Fiction Research Association

congratulates SEACON '79 and its guests of honor, one of whom,

BRIAN ALDISS

was the 1978 recipient of the SFRA Pilgrim Award. He joins the illustrious role of past winners: J.O. Bailey, Marjorie Hope Nicolson, Julius Kagarlitski, Jack Williamson, I.F. Clarke, Damon Knight, James Gunn, and Thomas D. Clareson.

SFRA Executive Committee: Joe DeBolt, President; Marshall B. Tymn, Vice-President; Robert Galbreath, Secretary; Elizabeth Cummins Cogell, Treasurer; Arthur O. Lewis, Jr., Immediate Past President; Roald Tweet, Newsletter Editor.

SPHERE BRING YOU THE BEST IN SCIENCE FICTION

BRIAN ALDISS: POUL ANDERSON: ISAAC ASIMOV: SAMUEL R. DELANY:
GORDON R. DICKSON: H. ELLISON: HARRY HARRISON: ROBERT SHECKLEY: THEODORE STURGEON:
ROBERT SILVERBERG: A. E. VAN VOGT: H. G. WELLS: ARTHUR C. CLARKE:
ROBERT HEINLEIN: FRANK HERBERT

AND THE SPARKLING NEW TALENTS OF THE SCIENCE FICTION MASTERS OF THE FUTURE . . .

GEORGE TURNER'S
BELOVED SUN, OF WHICH THE SPECTATOR SAID
'THE BEST DIALOGUE AND CHARACTERIZATION TO COME FROM SCIENCE FICTION
IN YEARS . . . THE REAL THING'

RICHARD A. LÚPOFF'S
SPACE WAR BLUES IS DESCRIBED BY THEODORE STURGEON AS 'A TOUR-DE-FORCE!'

AND

GREGORY BENFORD
CO-AUTHOR OF THE NEBULA AWARD WINNING STORY, IF THE STARS ARE GODS, DESCRIBED BY THE TIMES AS
'THE KIND OF READ THAT GETS A TENTACULAR GRIP ON YOUR MIND'

SPHERE - FIRST IN SCIENCE FICTION
PAPERBACK PUBLISHING

Our best wishes to Seacon 79

Swedish publishers of alpha science fiction

Poul Anderson
Isaac Asimov
Leigh Brackett
Philip K Dick
Inger Edelfeldt
Joe Haldeman
Robert A Heinlein
T A Heppenheimer
C M Kornbluth
Ursula K Le Guin
Dénis Lindbohm

John D McDonald
Vonda M McIntyre
Bertil Mårtensson
Frederik Pohl
Joanna Russ
Robert Silverberg
Clifford D Simak
George R Stewart
Theodore Sturgeon
Wilson Tucker
Jack Vance

A E Van Vogt
Gore Vidal
Kate Wilhelm

and the Alpha Anthologies and the Alpha paperback line and Alpha Magazine, featuring science fiction and science fact

Alpha Science Fiction: a subsidiary of Kindberg
Publishing, Inc. Editorial address: P O Box 3273,
S-103 65 Stockholm, Sweden

Editors: John-Henri Holmberg, Per W Insulander, Olle Kindberg, John A L Ågren

Illustration for Poul Anderson's People of the Wind by Inger Edelfeldt

Fritz Leiber Bibliography

First book publications listed in chronological order
Compiled by Chris Morgan

NIGHT'S BLACK AGENTS (Arkham House, 1947)
Contents: Smoke Ghost; The Automatic Pistol; The Inheritance; The Hill and the Hole; The Dreams of Albert Moreland; The Hound; Diary in the Snow; The Man Who Never Grew Young; The Sunken Land; Adept's Gambit.

GATHER DARKNESS (Pellegrini & Cudahy, 1950)

DESTINY TIMES THREE (complete in Five SF Novels, ed. Greenberg, Gnome, 1952)

CONJURE WIFE (complete in Witches Three, ed. Anon, Twayne, 1952)

THE GREEN MILLENIUM (Abelard, 1953)

THE SINFUL ONES (bound with Bulls, Blood & Passion by Williams, Universal, 1953)

TWO SOUGHT ADVENTURE (Gnome, 1957)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: Two Sought Adventure; The Bleak Shore; The Howling Tower; The Sunken Land; Thieves' House; Dark Vengeance; The Seven Black Priests. (See also Swords Against Death, 1970).

THE BIG TIME (bound with The Mind Spider, Ace 1961)

THE MIND SPIDER (bound with The Big Time, Ace 1961)

Contents: The Haunted Future; Damnation Morning; The Oldest Soldier; Try and Change the Past; The Number of the Beast; The Mind Spider.

THE SILVER EGGHEADS (Ballantine, 1961)

SHADOWS WITH EYES (Ballantine 1962)

Contents: A Bit of the Dark World; The Dead Man; The Power of the Puppets; Schizo Jimmie; The Man Who Made Friends with Electricity; A Deskful of Girls.

A PAIL OF AIR (Ballantine, 1964)

Contents: A Pail of Air; The Beat Cluster; The Foxholes of Mars; Pipe Dream; Time Fighter; The 64-Square Madhouse; Bread Overhead; The Last Letter; Rump-Titty-Titty-Tum-TAH-Tee; Coming Attraction; Nice Girl With Five Husbands.

THE WANDERER (Ballantine, 1964)

SHIPS TO THE STARS (bound with The Million Year Hunt by Bulmer, Ace, 1964)

Contents: Dr Kometevsky's Day; The Big Trek; The Enchanted Forest; Deadly Moon; The Snowbank Orbit; The Ship Sails at Midnight.

THE NIGHT OF THE WOLF (Ballantine, 1966)

Contents: The Lone Wolf; The Wolf Pair; Crazy Wolf; The Wolf Pack.

TARZAN AND THE VALLEY OF GOLD

(novelisation of screenplay, Ballantine, 1966)

THE SECRET SONS (Rupert Hart-Davis, 1968)

Contents: The Winter Flies; The Man Who Made Friends With Electricity; Rump-Titty-Titty-Tum-TAH-Tee; Mariana; Coming Attraction; The Moon is Green; A Pail of Air; Smoke Ghost; The Girl With the Hungry Eyes; No Great Magic; The Secret Songs.

THE SWORDS OF LANKHMAR (Ace, 1968)

SWORDS AGAINST WIZARDRY (Ace, 1968)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: In the Witch's Test; Stardock; The Two Best Thieves in Lankhmar; The Lords of Quarfall.

SWORDS IN THE MIST (Ace, 1968)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: The Cloud of Hate; Lean Times in Lankhmar; Their Mistress; The Sea, When the Sea King's Away; The Wrong Branch; Adept's Gambit.

A SPECTER IS HAUNTING TEXAS (Walker, 1969)

NIGHT MONSTERS (bound with The Green Millennium, Ace, 1969)

Contents: The Black Gondolier; Midnight in the Mirror World; I'm Looking for Jeff; The Casket-Demon.

THE DEMONS OF THE UPPER AIR (poem, Squires, 1969)

SWORDS AGAINST DEATH (Ace, 1970)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: The Circle Curse; The Jewels in the Forest; Thieves' House; The Bleak Shore; The Howling Tower; The Sunken Land; The Seven Black Priests; Claws from the Night; The Prince of Pain-Ease; Bazaar of the Bizarre. (Two Sought Adventure, 1957, with 3 additional stories).

SWORDS AND DEVILTRY (Ace, 1970)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: Introduction; The Snow Women; The Unholy Grail; Ill Met in Lankhmar.

YOU'RE ALL ALONE (Ace, 1972)

Contents: You're All Alone; Four Ghosts in Hamlet; The Creature from the Cleveland Depths.

THE BEST OF FRITZ LEIBER (Sphere, 1974)

Contents: Sanity; Wanted - an Enemy; The Man Who Never Grew Young; The Ship Sails at Midnight; The Enchanted Forest; Coming Attraction; Poor Superman; A Pail of Air; The Foxholes of Mars; The Big Holiday; The Night He Cried; The Big Trek; Space-Time for Springers; Try and Change the Past; A Deskful of Girls; Rump-Titty-Titty-Tum-TAH-Tee; Little Old Miss Macbeth; Mariana; The Man Who Made Friends With Electricity; The Good New Days; Gonna Roll the Bones; America the Beautiful.

THE BOOK OF FRITZ LEIBER (Daw, 1974)

Contents: The Spider; A Hitch in Space; Kindergarten; Crazy Annaoj; When the Last Gods Die; Yesterday House; Knight to Move; To Arkham and the Stars; Beauty and the Beasts; Cat's Cradle. Also articles: Monsters and Monster Lovers; Hottest and Coldest Molecules; Those Wild Alien Words; Debunking the I Machine; King Lear; After Such Knowledge; Weird World of the Knight; The Whisperer Re-examined; Masters of Mace and Magic.

THE SECOND BOOK OF FRITZ LEIBER (Daw, 1975)

Contents: The Lion and the Lamb; Trapped in the Sea of Stars; Belsen Express; Scream Wolf; The Mechanical Bride; A Defense of Werewolves. Also articles: The Mighty Tides; Fafhrd and Me; Ingmar Bergman: Fantasy Novelist; Those Wild Alien Words (2); Through Hyperspace with Novel Jenkin.

THE WORLDS OF FRITZ LEIBER (Ace, 1976)

Contents: The Hatchery of Dreams; The Goggles of Dr Dragonet; Far Reach to Cygnus; Night Passage; The Nice Girl With Five Husbands; When the Change-Winds Blow; 237 Talking Statues Etc.; The Improper Authorities; Our Saucer Vacation; Pipe Dream; What's He Doing in There?; Friends and Enemies; The Last Letter; Endfray of the Ofay; Cyclops; Mysterious Doings in the Metropolitan Museum; The Bait; The Lotus Eaters; Waif; Myths My Great-Granddaughter Taught Me; Catch That Zeppelin!; Last.

OUR LADY OF DARKNESS (Putnam, 1977)

RIME ISLE (Whispers, 1977)

SWORDS AND ICE MAGIC (Ace, 1977)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: The Sadness of the Executioner; Beauty and the Beasts; Trapped in the Shadowland; The Bait; Under the Thumb of the Gods; Trapped in the Sea of Stars; The Frost Monstre; Rime Isle.

BAZAAR OF THE BIZARRE (Grant, 1978)

Fafhrd & Gray Mouser collection: Bazaar of the Bizarre; The Cloud of Hate; Lean Times in Lankhmar.

THE CHANGE WAR (Gregg, 1978)

Contents: No Great Magic; The Oldest Soldier; Knight to Move; Damnation Morning; Try and Change the Past; A Deskful of Girls; The Number of the Beast; The Haunted Future; The Mind Spider; Black Corridor.

HEROES AND HORRORS (Whispers, 1978)

Contents: Sea Magic; The Mer She; A Bit of the Dark World; Belsen Express; Midnight in the Mirror World; Richmond, Late September, 1849; Midnight by the Morphy Watch; The Terror from the Depths; Dark Wings.

SHIP OF SHADOWS (Gollancz, 1979)

Ship of Shadows; Catch that Zeppelin!; Gonna Roll the Bones; Ill Met in Lankhmar; Belsen Express; The Big Time.

WISDOM of the AGES

The Silver Eggheads
• by FRITZ LEIBER

Sam Fink
©79

TOASTMASTER BOB SHAW

BY JAMES WHITE

The primary function of a toastmaster at a science fiction convention is to introduce certain programme items, people and things to each other and to the attendance in general. The man chosen for this key job has to be a special individual indeed, for he must continue to introduce even when his toasts and the continually recharged glass which accompanies them are making the people look like things and the things, naturally, look like nothing on Earth — and he must go on steadfastly doing unto others that which is not being done to him.

It is for this reason that I have been asked to perform the traditional, and as it happens totally unnecessary, job of introducing the introducer. Because if there is anyone at Seacon '79 who does not already know all about this renowned, soft-spoken, diminutive (he is barely six foot two) Irish fan and author called Bob Shaw then he, she or it is attending the wrong convention.

For nobody here has to be told that Bob Shaw has for the past twenty years been producing consistently fine and original sf, from the unforgettable and much anthologised — thirty-two times at the last count — short story Light of Other Days to novels such as Nightwalk, The Palace of Eternity and Orbitsville, which are singled out because they happen to be my own particular favourites.

Bob's early struggles are also well-known to his friends throughout fandom, as well as to HMG and the Mounties. To these more mundane activities — structural draughtsmanship, small game hunting, Canadian taxi driving, journalism and public relations — he brought the same high degree of professionalism and human insight which marks his science-fiction work.

My local cinema, whose steelwork was measured and stressed by Bob over twenty years ago, still stands to this day despite two car bombs, conversion to a Bingo hall and the meteorological onslaughts of last winter. And it was while he was going through his Gunner Cade period — some of you are too young to remember that story — he once shot a spider with an air-gun at thirty feet, killing it instantly. A measure of the man is that he derived no pleasure from this achievement, but explained afterwards that it was difficult to wing a moving spider because it didn't have any. Later he converted to the water-pistol and became an expert at drowning butterflies and wasps on the wing. Soft-heartedly he invariably placed the sodden butterflies on a fence-post to dry out in the sun but where the wasps were concerned, he was once stung to retort, they could expletive deleted sink or swim. Regrettably no discussion is possible regarding his reasons for leaving Canada since, as you already know, these matters are still sub judice.

His later career as a journalist was also highly successful and full of incident, as were his years as a publicist and press officer for the Belfast aircraft company, Shorts, where we had the honour or misfortune — depending on what sort of humour the Boss was in — to share an office. Six years ago he decided to give up publicising these new-fangled heavier-than-air machines and changed to plugging submarines (maybe I should re-phrase that) for Vickers at Barrow-on-Furness — surely, one feels, a retreat into inner space — for a couple of years before he returned to writing full-time. But he is still remembered in the publicity office of Shorts — at least, his puns are.

For this is the fan, you will doubtless remember, who during an Irish Fandom party for a visiting BNF, on being asked if he had tried the ginger-bread replied, "Yes, and found it not gilty." At that time, and for many years afterwards, he produced one of the funniest fan columns ever written. Entitled The Glass Bushel — Bob did not take modesty to extremes, and this was the only kind of bushel he was willing to hide his light under — it very often achieved a Chaplinesque dimension in its humour in that the jokes made one think after the freshly split sides had healed.

There were lots of other fan humourists about in those golden days of Irish Fandom — Walt Willis, George Charters, John Berry, and that other fellow who became a vile pro — but I have to remember that I am writing a totally unnecessary introduction to Bob Shaw, not just to the Bob Shaw we know but to the young, earnest, rangy, clean-shaven Bob Shaw with the beautiful wavy brown hair. As we all know now, Bob's hair at this time was straight and it was his head which was corrugated, but this problem he has since ironed out.

There is also a keen, scientific brain inside that overly hairy (alright, so I'm jealous about his hair) head. You will remember the well-known incident when my balsa model spaceship which, because of a design flaw, weighed two ounces and was powered by a solid fuel jet engine which delivered a maximum thrust of only one-and-a-half ounces. The poor thing used to sit on the tiles of Walt Willis's back yard and just strain upwards and hiss piteously. Bob, in a flash of Einstein-like insight, suggested attaching one end of a length of thread to the nose-cone and the other to a bunch of keys and passing the end with the keys over Madeleine Willis's clothes-line, which was convenient to the launch pad. With this counterweight attached the rocket lifted off with no problems, and this suggestion came from a man who was not even a member of the British Interplanetary Society!

However, a word of advice to those of you who may be thinking of approaching and actually talking to him. He is very easy to approach — visually a bit like a hairy Post Office Tower except that his head doesn't spin, at least, not unless he has been engaged on a long and concentrated session of toasting — and he is even easier to talk to. Just introduce yourself and charge his glass and toast him for a change. Whether you are a new writer seeking advice or a reader asking for clarification of some subtle philosophical point in one of his stories — or in one of anybody else's stories, for that matter — he will gladly give you the benefit of his hard-won experience in the field.

You will already have noticed that wherever he goes, and whether the company is fannish or professional, people laugh at him. Try not to laugh at him because everyone else does. The pressure on your sides will be extreme as he talks to you in his quiet, serious, sober voice — his voice, at least, is teetotal — as he rips apart the fabric of reality with some horrendous pun. Try hard. It will be difficult, I know. On second thoughts, it will be impossible.

TAFF & TERRY HUGHES

by Rob Jackson

This article was almost too late for publication; it was all Terry Hughes's fault.

Any research into the achievements which make him an excellent and very popular TAFF delegate inevitably involves looking through back issues of his fanzine Mota, which is the main reason he's so popular and well-known in Britain. And that isn't something I find possible to do quickly, as even if I intend just to skim rapidly through I am drawn into the fanzine by the sheer quality of its contents and sit totally absorbed for hours. I've got something like twenty issues of Mota, and reading them took a long time when I should have been getting on with this.

So it's all Terry's fault for producing such a funny, fascinating fannish fanzine.

Terry's first real contact with fandom was, I gather, at Columbia University, Missouri, where he met Hank and Lesleigh Luttrell, and started to put out issues of Mota. The first issue actually had some real live sf book reviews in it, and even a mention of some films, but he soon realised the error of his ways and decided he had more to contribute through good-humoured observation of fans and their little ways than through attention to the advancement of sf itself. He quickly published six issues from Columbia, then shelved Mota for a couple of years and travelled around for a while. Eventually he settled among Fabulous Falls Church fandom, being influenced by Ted White, rich brown and other colourful fannish characters, and resumed publishing Mota in 1974. He's been publishing it with a fair degree of regularity ever since — and it's become the doyen of gentle, funny, level-headed fannish fanzines to the extent that he's had regular contributions from Bob Tucker, Bob Shaw, Lee Hoffman, Bob Shaw, Ted White, Harry Warner Jr., and Bob Shaw, and brilliant artwork, generally humorous, from Dan Steffan, Grant Canfield, Joe Staton, Dan Steffan, Harry Bell, Alexis Gilliland, and Dan Steffan. Terry's own sense of humour shines through in his editorials, but even more obvious is his genuine appreciation of and gratitude for other people's senses of humour. In particular, his appreciation of the sometimes wacky sense of humour of British fannish fans has given him a stronger connection with British fanzine fandom than almost any other North American fan. Mota is on the Hugo ballot this year; deservedly so, and not before time.

As well as editing fanzines, Terry is a regular convention attendee and was Guest of Honour at Autoclave III last year. In person he's tall, well-built (better so than some copies of his fanzine) and genial, with flowing blond hair that must be the envy of many of the girls on the block. His nose is the subject of fannish legend, but I'm not going to say anything about that here for fear of embarrassing him.

Welcome to England, Terry. I hope we entertain you as well as your fanzine entertains us.

Now Terry has won TAFF, he is expected to do two things: produce a fanzine reporting on his trip to England, and become TAFF's North American Administrator until he himself is replaced by a subsequent American winner. TAFF stands for the Trans-Atlantic Fan Fund, and for 26 years now it has been transporting well-known and popular fans to conventions on the opposite side of the Atlantic, to meet people often only aware of the fan through fanzines who are keen to meet the winner in person. The Fund takes people alternately westwards from Europe to North America for the Worldcon, and eastwards from North America to Britain (generally for the British Eastercon, but because of the British Worldcon this year the trip was arranged for Seacon instead). Anyone who wants to run for TAFF submits five nominations, three from fans on his or her own side of the Atlantic and two from fans on the other, with $5 good faith bond; Terry Hughes, Suzle Tompkins and Fred Haskell were nominated this year. When nominations close, ballots are prepared by the Administrators and distributed through fanzines, conventions, clubs, etc., and fans send their votes in along with a donation to the fund. At the end of the voting period the ballots are counted and the winner is given a sum of money to help pay his or her way to the convention. The winner is thus a special guest at the convention, selected by the whole of fandom.

TAFF depends entirely on fandom for its support. Voters contribute, of course, but much of its financial support comes from conventions which donate parts of their surplus or organise auctions and other events, and from clubs who organise fund-raising events for the fund. The Administrators are very grateful for all the help and contributions they receive and I'd like to encourage everybody to continue to support the fund. A TAFF winner will be going to Noreascon II next year, which isn't too long hence!

Harry Bell

HAPPY ILLOS

I don't know how he does it, but I'm glad he does. Harry Bell should be declared a National Resource of fandom; for at least five years he has produced a stream of work that is as good as anything being done in the field and he remains as prolific as any active fan. And beyond all that he has given fandom, Harry is still a quiet, shy and extremely human being. If you can, get to know Harry Bell at the 1979 World Convention. Buy him a drink, talk with him, and don't bug him for artwork. You'll be the richer for having done so, and perhaps you'll understand how I feel about him.

It was Harry Bell who sent me the drawing of a weird beastie pronouncing, "Reality is an illusion created by a shortage of scotch . . . or Newcastle Brown . . ." Help keep reality at bay at SEACON! In return you'll meet one of the best people it's been my pleasure to know in thirteen years of hyper-active fanning on three different continents.

Thirteen years. That's really not too many. And Harry Bell is my friend.

It's things like that that make fandom all worthwhile.

HANSEN'S IDENTIFICATION GUIDE TO SELECTED BRITISH FANZINE FANS

- I. EVE HARVEY - Ghas, Wallbanger, Matrix
2. JOSEPH NICHOLAS - Another Bloody Fanzine!
3. HARRY BELL - Grimwab, Out of the Blue
4. DAVE LANGFORD - Twll Ddu, Drilkjis
5. ROB JACKSON - Maya, Inca
6. MIKE DICKINSON - Adsum, Bar Trek, Sirius
7. BRYN FORTEY - Relativity
8. GRAHAM CHARNOCK - Phile, Vibrator
9. D. WEST - Daisnaid
10. GREG PICKERSGILL - Foulter, Ritblat,
Stop Breaking Down
- II. ROB HANSEN - Epsilon

And he was getting better with every drawing in every issue. All at once everyone wanted a Harry Bell cartoon (or seven); and a fan named Glicksohn in a city named Toronto realized that a major new force had arrived on the fanzine scene.

What we didn't know (then) was that this was the Second Coming of Harry Bell. If you want all the biographical background on Harry look elsewhere in this Program Book or buy Harry a double whisky in the Metropole bar and I'm sure he'll fill you in on dates, names and places. At least, that's what he told me to say . . . But the fact remains that Harry arrived on the North American fannish scene as a fully developed and extremely talented cartoonist.

When I went to SEACON in 1975, Harry Bell was a name I knew well. The walls of my apartment are covered with the humorous artwork of Kirk, Canfield and Barr and I'd become a Bell energumen as soon as I'd encountered his work. Within a matter of months, Harry had established himself as one of the most recognizable and powerful artists in fandom. I looked forward to meeting him.

But history never really observed when the two people who had made "scotch" and "Newkie Brown" synonymous with fanac actually met. I remember though. I may not be able to describe the cartoon that first fixed Harry's enormous talents in my mind and I may not recall precisely where and when in the De Vere hotel in Coventry we first were formally introduced but I remember when I first "met" Harry Bell. In 1975 I was a visitor to English fandom, a stranger in a (very) strange land. I didn't know the acceptable rituals to observe. I tended to "go along with the crowd".

A strange little troll by the name of Williams gathered a bunch of us together to partake in some sort of esoteric Anglofannish rite of passage: we were to watch the latest episode of something known as "Dr Who". As a foreigner, I decided to take my cue from my hosts.

Ian was like a small boy on Christmas morning when everything was new and shining and wonderful. Unfortunately I was still moderately sober. So what I remember most was a solid, chunky, cherubic, soft-spoken, smilingly sarcastic Devil's Advocate who sat and smiled and quietly muttered to himself — and a few lucky people nearby — throughout the show. I'd previously been introduced, in passing, to Harry Bell, but for me that was our introduction. And I knew from that moment on that completely apart from my admiration for his artwork I was going to like this sharp-tongued, soft-voiced, rotund gentleman with the choirboy face.

Over the next two years it was a pleasure to publish Harry's work in my own infrequent fanzines. His sheer expertise was always a joy to behold, and his sense of humour was a constant delight. Quickly he became a fannish super-star; not just because he was British and hence in some way different from the previous pantheon of fannish artists but simply because he was good. As a technician, he was unrivalled. And to that unparalleled drawing skill he added an understanding of fans and fandom and an incisive (and very British) sense of humour that could deflate fannish pomposity, capture the occasional moments of poignancy that make fandom worthwhile or just perfectly preserve the essential spirit of fannishness. Within a year, Harry had won a FAAN nomination, indicative of how quickly and completely fanzine fans throughout fandom took to the Bell style and philosophy.

In 1977, Harry won the FAAN Award as the Best Humorous Artist in fandom and, coincidentally, that was the summer I was able to visit with Harry and sundry other odd (careful choice of words) Newcastle fans. The accompanying picture shows the largest collection of FAAN Award winners ever assembled in the known history of mankind. Harry Bell is the hairier of the two clean-shaven winners: the one who looks as if he needs a psychiatrist rather than is one.

Getting to know Harry better was one of the highlights of that summer for me. I was delighted to discover that what I'd sensed in a crowded hotel room in Coventry two years earlier was completely correct. In addition to being one of the finest artists it's been my privilege to work with in fandom, Harry Bell is one of the nicest damn people I've ever met. Perhaps he's a bit on the quiet side, a little shy, and not exactly the Harlan Ellison of the artist world, but he's also one of the most decent individuals it's ever been my pleasure to know. He's a kind and amazingly generous person, with a truly inspired sense of humour. He sees every foible of fandom and yet retains an openness of spirit and an exuberance that seems to grow from year to year. And damn me if he doesn't get better as an artist with every passing fanzine!

left to right: Bob Shaw, Rob Jackson
Harry Bell, Mike Glicksohn.

HARRY BELL

by Mike Glicksohn

HA HA HA

somewhat sparsely-populated fanartist field.

It may surprise the current generation of English fanzine fans, whose roots are firmly entrenched in such fancy attractive fanzines as MAYA, SEAMONSTERS and SCIENCE FICTION MONTHLY, to learn that as little as a lustrum ago artwork in English fanzines was almost a wasteland. (Those who claim it then turned into a waistland haven't seen the new Harry Bell!) Older fans had fond memories of the on-stencil genius of artists such as ATom and Cawthorn but whereas North America had produced a generation of truly inspired fanartists like Tim Kirk, George Barr and Alicia Austin, English fandom seemed to have fallen behind. There were several very valid reasons for this, admittedly, but it still seemed to be true that if a North American fan happened to get an English fanzine, he or she would find that much of the artwork would be a contribution from an American fan. Or else it would look as if it had been drawn directly on stencil by a cat suffering from its first serious hangover.

But somewhere around 1974 A Very Definite Change became evident. The English fanzines that I was getting on a reasonably regular basis (as opposed to Pickersgill fanzines which always arrived on an unreasonable basis) as a form of fannish lend-lease for expatriate Englishmen started to contain humorous artwork that was not only good but was also English! And this was obviously not just a local phenomenon because the same distinctive and admirable style started to appear in quite a few of the North American fanzines that were reaching my mailbox at the rate of 1.37 each day. Thus it was that over a period of time the name of Harry Bell began to make a very definite and positive impression on a certain Canadian fanzine fan.

You must understand that I bear as much resemblance to an artist as Pickersgill does to a diplomat. The only time I ever drew anything worthwhile in my life was three eights to a pair of aces to beat a Jim Odbert straight in a high-stakes game in Minneapolis. But for thirteen years I've been a collector of fantasy and science fiction artwork and in particular of that style of illustration that is known as cartooning. (In fact, Derek Carter credits his staying in Canada instead of returning to England to the fact that once a month at local sf club meetings he knew he could sell me some drawings and eat once again. The fannish worlds of What If could have a field day with that one!) So as I gradually became aware of this new and exciting force in fanart, I became more and more impressed.

At any given time there is a definite dearth of really fine fanartists. If there are five top names at a time then faneds can consider themselves lucky. So the appearance of a new and immediately recognizable talent is something to remember. It doesn't happen often: most fanzine artists undergo a fairly extensive period of apprenticeship during which their potential develops and gradually establishes them among the top-ranked, award-worthy artists. It wasn't like that as far as Harry Bell and North American fandom were concerned. Harry seemed to spring, fully developed, from out of a bottle of Newcastle Brown. Suddenly, he was a part of the fannish scene. Fully established, his artistic talent took the world's largest concentration of fanzine fans by storm. He wasn't some neophyte gradually learning his trade; he was already as good as the top North American artists who had dominated fanzines for so long.

When Napoleon met Wellington, history took notice. When Jerry Rubin encountered Mayor Daley, the whole world was watching. When Rocky finally took on Apollo Creed, a hundred million eyes saw every movement. When Mike Glicksohn met Harry Bell, a goblin and a dalek were too busy to pay any attention. Of such non-events is fannish history made.

One of the drawbacks of international fanzine fandom is that the distances and the time-delays involved often make it impossible to pinpoint precisely when two given fans became aware of each other. It's unlikely in the extreme that Harry Bell remembers when he first realized that there was a Canadian fan named Glicksohn who seemed likely to stay around for longer than a generation of BSFA members. In the same frustrating way, I could never pinpoint the precise cartoon or the exact fanzine that first made me aware of a vast talent in England's

Fortean Times

The Journal of Strange Phenomena.

PRICE: 75p/$2.00

ISSUE No.

Stranger than Truth or Fiction.

Nessie, in colour; Haunted Places; 16th. Century Chapbooks; Incorrupted Corpses; Vampires; Swarms; Coloured Rains; Kid Spoonbenders; Columns; Letters; Reviews; Cartoons; and much much more.

Send 75p today. 1 year subscription: £3.00.

Fortean Times 9-12 St Annes Court, London W1.

One mustn't be too hard on British bathrooms, however. I find them superior to their American and Canadian counterparts in one important respect – the doors are usually fitted with traditional shootbolts which, once engaged, let you know you are safely locked in. The first time I went to the toilet on emigrating to Canada I was dismayed to discover that the door appeared to have no lock. I dithered around for a while, then noticed a little button sticking out of the doorknob. Being naturally quick on the uptake and having a trained engineering mind, I thought: Ahah! If I press that button in it will lock the door. I did so and was about to proceed with the matter in hand when another thought occurred: How do I know the door is locked? I twisted the knob just to make sure and it turned easily and the door sprang open. A moment's calm reflection would have told me that was the way things had to be, otherwise Canadian toilets would have acted like Venus fly traps, but it's hard to reflect calmly at a time like that and an agonising minute of clicking and punching that button went by before I accepted that I just had to trust it, and even then I remained highly uneasy. No, you're definitely better off with a shootbolt. You know where you are with a shootbolt. You're safe with a shootbolt.

Perceptive readers may have noticed my anxiety creeping back again at the end of the preceding paragraph – it's because of all this stuff on bathrooms. I tried exorcising the fixation about finding bodies in the bath by putting the hero of my latest novel, DAGGER OF THE MIND, through the whole thing – writing is a good catharsis – and so as not to skimp the job I put two bodies in the tub and removed all their skin. It might have worked, except for the fact that shortly afterwards I read Stephen King's book, THE SHINING, and had a highly uncomfortable experience with it.

The story is set in a huge spooky hotel which has been closed up for the winter and is being looked after by a couple and their small son, Danny. The boy is sensitive and knows he must stay away from room 217, where a woman had died in the bathtub some years earlier, but – as people always do in horror stories – he goes into it anyway. Coincidentally while reading that part, I was staying in an unfamiliar and rather gloomy hotel. I hadn't been able to sleep and finally, at about 4 a.m., I had given up trying and started to read. The joyless grey light of pre-dawn was leaking in through the window, and I don't like that sort of light – it is worse than outright darkness, with a graveyard feel to it and a knack of making things appear to change shape when you stare at them. Those were the circumstances when I read:

So he pulled the shower curtain back.

The woman in the tub had been dead for a long time. She was bloated and purple, her gas-filled belly rising out of the cold, ice-rimmed water like some fleshy island. Her eyes were fixed on Danny's glassy and huge, like marbles. She was grinning, her purple lips pulled back in a grimace . . .

Danny shrieked. But the sound never escaped his lips . . . He took a single blundering step backwards, hearing his heels clack on the hexagonal tiles . . .

The woman was sitting up.

At that moment I suddenly became aware that the door to my bathroom was open, creating a rectangle of crawling darkness. I don't mind admitting that I had got the creeps. Like most people, I'm usually immune to old-fashioned superstitious dread, but sometimes a kind of psychic switch gets thrown in the brain and, for no reason at all, I became prey to vague terrors. It happened while I was staring at that dark opening to the bathroom, and a conviction stole over me that I would feel a lot easier in my mind if I closed the door. There were two problems, however – firstly, I would have to get out of bed and reach into the bathroom to grasp the doorknob; secondly, and more serious, doing that would be admitting that something bad was going on, giving way to fear. In the end I decided to be level-headed and sensible by putting the bathroom out of my thoughts. I was turning back to the book when, at that precise instant, one of the taps in the bathroom gave a kind of sigh and water began to run from it.

Hell's bells, I thought, this just isn't fair. Hotel plumbing can play all kinds of pranks, but it has absolutely no right to happen at this moment. There's no justice.

The noisy gasping and spluttering of the tap lasted only a few seconds. When it had finished I raised the book again and, trying to ignore the cold sensation at the nape of my neck, read:

He ran full tilt into the outside door of 217, which was now closed. He began hammering on it, far beyond realising that it was unlocked, and he had only to turn the knob to let himself out . . . He could only hammer on the door and hear the dead woman coming for him, bloated belly, dry hair, outstretched hand . . .

And he was . . . just beginning to realise that the door must be unlocked and he could go, when the years-damp, bloat, fish-smelling hands closed softly around his throat and he was turned implacably round to stare into that dead and purple face.

That was the end of a chapter so I risked another glance at the bathroom, just to reassure myself that everything was all right – and the damned faucet did it again! It was louder this time, a sort of fiendish hissing cough, as though an obscene something which should never have existed was striving to express rage and hatred.

I put the book on the floor, slid further down into the sheets and lay there – sad, reflective and chastened – until the room was filled with sunlight. There was no more strange behaviour from the taps during the rest of my stay, but I never managed to feel entirely at ease in that bathroom.

During the time it has taken me to write this article I have drunk several cups of coffee and a quick trip downstairs to the toilet would be in order, but I'm alone in the house and oddly reluctant to go. My bathroom door is fitted with a shootbolt, you see, and those things have a habit of sticking. If there was something in the shower cubicle and it clawed the curtain aside and came after me I mightn't be able to get the bolt open in time. I think I'd be better off with one of those button-type things. You're safer with one of those buttons. You can get away faster with one of those buttons . . .

© Bob Shaw 1979. Fanzine editors who may wish to reprint this article will be granted permission by the author.

Have you ever walked into a bathroom and found a horribly bloated corpse in the tub?

I have.

It happens to me quite regularly, and the fact that it occurs in dreams is in a way more disturbing than the same event in real life. I mean, any normal citizen could be unfortunate enough to discover a body in a bath – but the fact that I keep dreaming about it means there is something wrong with me.

It's a rather distasteful subject, I know, and the only reason I bring it up is that when asked to write something for the Seacon programme booklet I decided to go all public-spirited and produce an article which would acquaint overseas visitors with the idiosyncracies of British hotel bathrooms. Useful though the information would be, such an article doesn't provide much scope for snappy introductions, and I was forced to cheat by fishing around in the murkier depths of the old subconscious for something which might hook the casual reader. It shows you how unprincipled and unscrupulous authors can be.

Actually, bathrooms do seem to exert a baleful influence over many people, especially writers working in the horror genre. (If you pronounce genre with very little emphasis on the last syllable that last sentence contains a neat bilingual pun.) It's possibly because a bathroom is a contrivance, a totally unnatural environment, and when it is fully tiled the association with operating theatres and morgues is hard to escape. For me anyway. In the movies the best, most horrific and most disturbing murders tend to take place in bathrooms, and the reason they work so well is that every member of the audience has known all his life that in the bathroom he is at his most vulnerable. The noise of rushing water is an important factor in this – it advertises the user's exact location to intruders while at the same time deafening him to the approach of danger, and just to round the thing off in a workmanlike manner it masks the sounds of struggle, obliterates screams.

I'm not, of course, suggesting that any visiting fan is likely to be murdered in the bath or shower at a British convention – even though some attendees do look rather like Anthony Perkins, and I myself have heard high-pitched female voices issuing from rooms I knew were booked out to men. The biggest danger the visitor has to face probably lies in the bathroom fittings themselves. Plumbers in most countries appear to have solved what could be regarded as a fairly elementary engineering problem, namely that of mixing hot and cold water to produce a controlled and stable flow, but here in Britain what emerges from faucet or shower rose is usually highly capricious as regards temperature and volume.

The first rule, especially with showers, is to make all the adjustments from outside before you venture in. I can recall cases in which quite solidly built fans, who were incautious enough to step straight into a shower cubicle, turned control knobs by no more than a millimetre and were promptly blasted off their feet by thunderous jets of ice cold or boiling hot water. Lightly built individuals have been pinned to the opposite wall for considerable periods, squirming and bleating piteously, before a sudden drop in water pressure allowed them to slide down and crawl away, their bodies leaden blue or lobster crimson according to which extreme of temperature prevailed at the time. A useful general hint is to examine all faucets before experimenting with them. If you detect a dull cherry-red glow or the presence of icicles – be careful!

Bidets, I am glad to say, are as yet very rare in British hotels. I'm in favour of the general principal of the bidet, but in this country the water supply problems I have just mentioned render them dangerous objects indeed. I, for one, am not prepared to risk cleaners coming into the room and finding me bobbing helplessly atop a column of water like a ping-pong ball in a shooting gallery. It might not be so bad if they had the presence of mind to turn the water off gradually, but . . .

GOLLANGZ

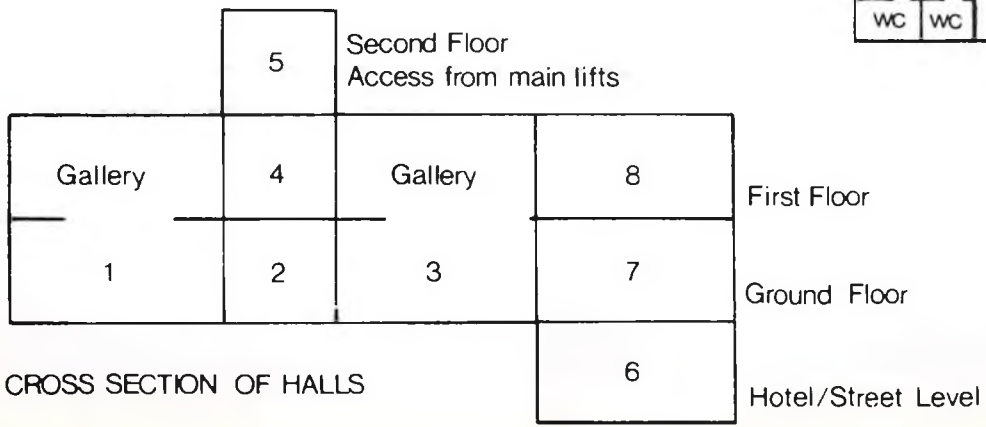

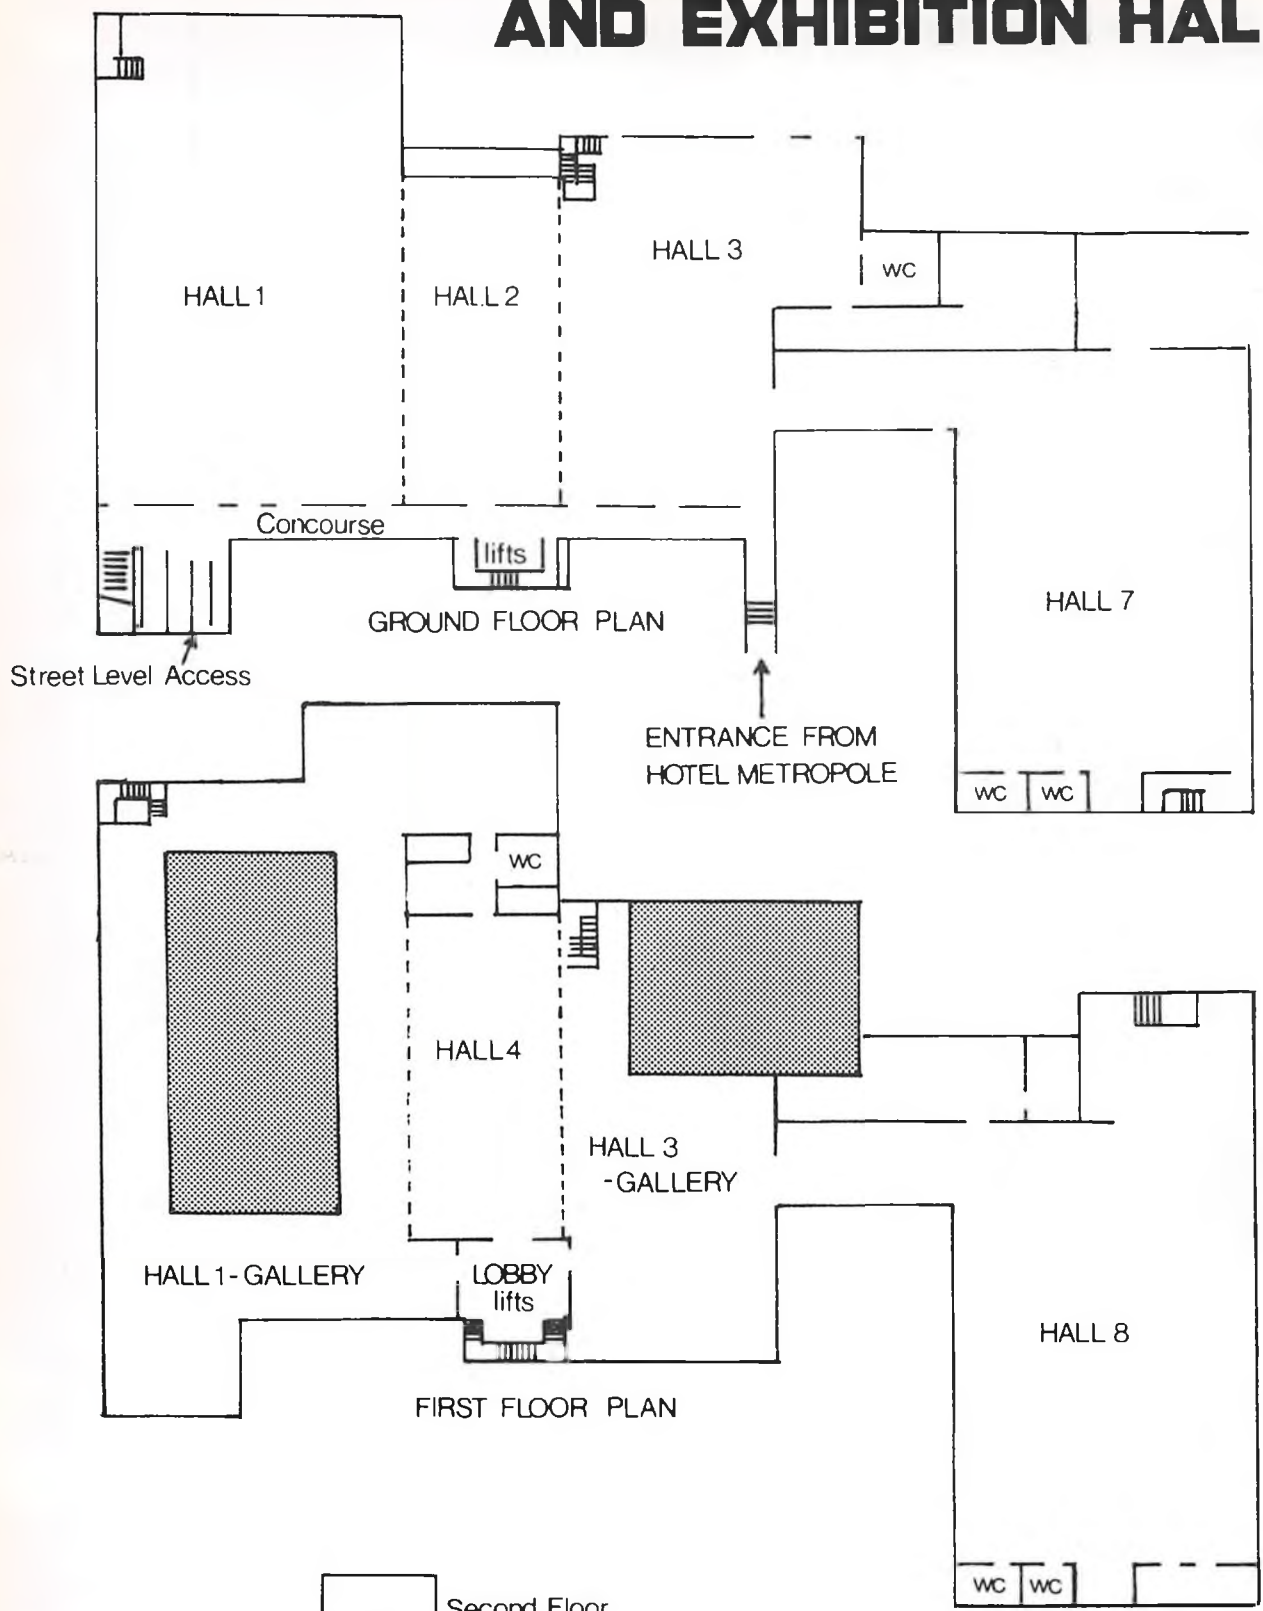

'83 WORLD CON TITLE FIGHT

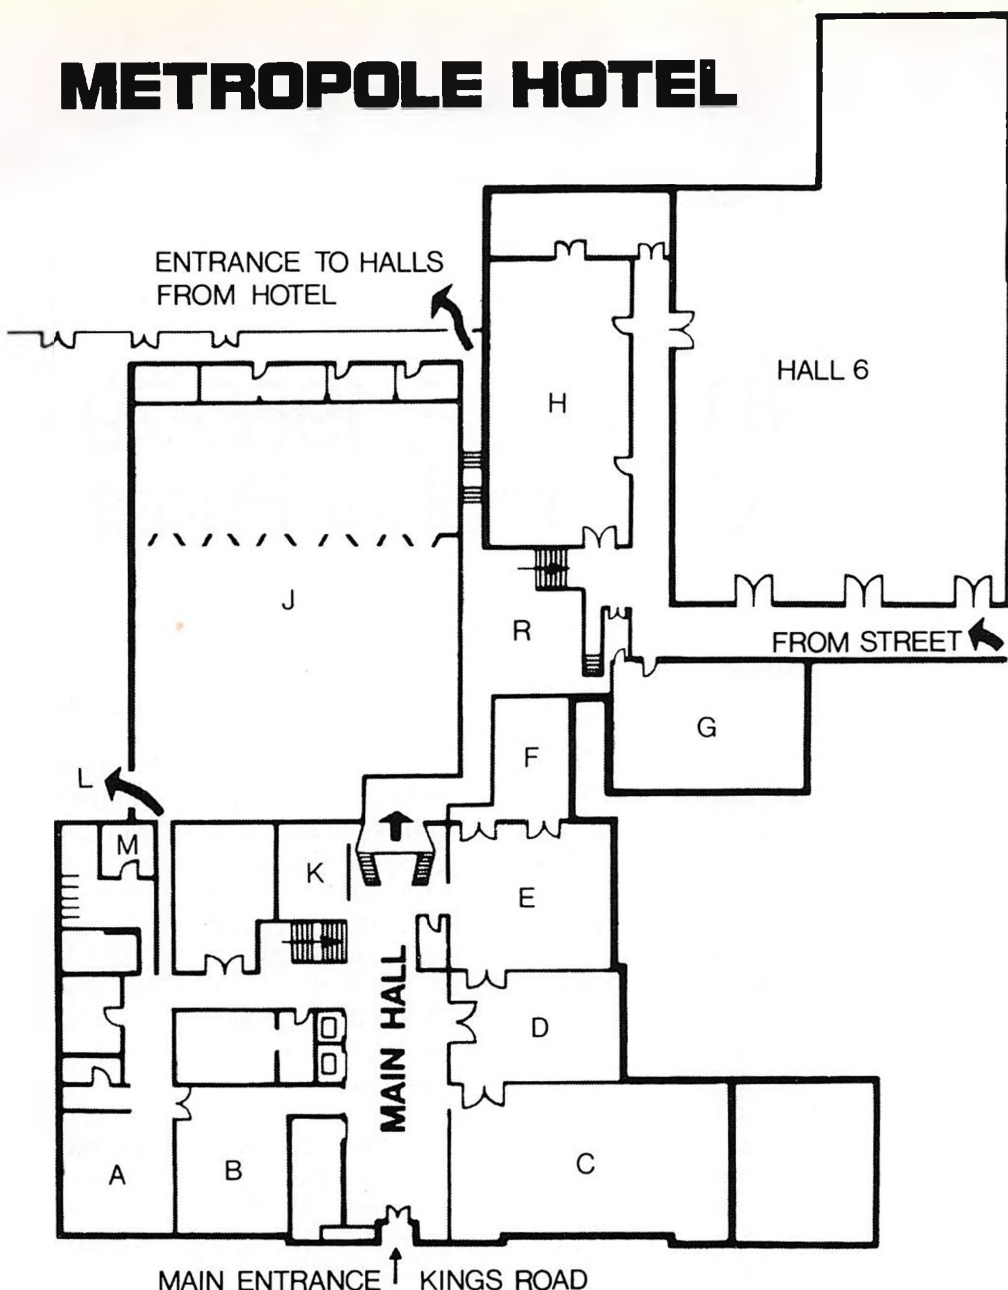

JOHNSTON
©79

SEACON: CONFERENCE AND EXHIBITION HALLS

METROPOLE HOTEL

On a preliminary visit to the Metropole Conference Centre our Chairman went unaccountably missing for several hours. Unfortunately he eventually turned up – with some story of being lost in labyrinthine corridors which seemed to obey the dictates of a strange alien geometry, and of encountering several staircases on which he appeared to descend eternally.

These plans are intended as a guide to the layout of the conference halls and hotel convention facilities and we hope it may prevent a similar fate befalling our members. If you should feel panic setting in at any stage, however, head for the main information office in the Churchill Room (K). Alternatively if you see someone about with a silly badge proclaiming them to be a SEACON RUNNER, try buttonholing them and asking them to point you in the right direction. They're our Gophers and they should have a reasonable grasp of the hotel geography.

For timings of individual programme items and information on the various Shows, Exhibits, Functions, and Events you should of course consult your Pocket Programme.

ART SHOW

The main Art Show will be mounted in Hall 7 on the ground floor.

There will be two art show auctions: 3.30-5.00pm on Saturday and on Sunday. Written bids may be made beforehand in the art show hall. Only a selection of the material on display will be offered for auction.

Payment for purchased art may be in traveller's cheques in sterling, sterling cheques backed with a banker's card, or by cash. Cheques or cash in any other currency except sterling cannot be accepted.

The art show awards will be made by popular vote and ballots will be available at the art show administration desk in Hall 7.

OLD SHIP HOTEL

Originally a simple Inn at the heart of the fishing village of Brighton, the "Old Ship" first became famous during the 17th century when a former Innkeeper saved the life of Charles II. The hotel grew with the popularity of Brighton and during the 18th century became a well-known coaching Inn for travellers on their way to France.

There are two bars – the spacious TETTERSELLS on the ground floor and the small, intimate 'below-decks' GALLEY BAR.

THE BEDFORD HOTEL

The Bedford Hotel is a modern, spacious luxury hotel. There are beautiful views of Brighton's seafront from the terrace lounges.

The Bedford Restaurant offers an excellent table d'hôte menu, and some original letters written by Charles Dickens to the first Bedford Hotel, which used to occupy this site, are displayed in the comfortable Dickens Bar.

Underground parking is available for 100 vehicles.

CONFERENCE & EXHIBITION HALLS

HALL 1 & GALLERY

Main Convention Programme/ Selected Feature Films/Fancy Dress (Saturday evening)/Hugo Presentation (Sunday evening)

HALL 2 (Ground floor)

Bar and lounge/Fancy Dress assembly and changing area, plus pre-judging and photography (Saturday evening)

HALL 3 & GALLERY

Book Dealers/Huckster's tables

HALL 4 (First floor)

Alternative Programme items

HALL 5 (Second floor)

Fandom Room and Programme

HALL 6 (Hotel / Street level)

Dragon's Dream/Paper Tiger Art Exhibition

HALL 7 (Ground Floor)

Art Show/Film Exhibit/Young Artists Special Exhibit

HALL 8 (First floor)

Bar and lounge/Snacks and refreshments

METROPOLE HOTEL GUIDE

A Resident's Lounge

B The Buttery

Luncheons and Dinners

C The Cameo Room

Breakfast and meals throughout the day

D/E Cocktail Bar / Ambassador Room

The main convention bar area, open until late. 24 hour lounge service for drinks and other refreshments

F Primrose Room

Registration Room

G Norfolk Room

Alternative programme items

H Clarence Room

Main film programme

J The Winter Garden Ballroom

Friday evening: Disco/Dance
Saturday evening: Banquet

K Churchill Room

Convention Information Office

L Ladies Hairdressing

M Men's Hairdressing

R Bar/Photography Display

Starlit Room: 7th Floor
– Gourmet cuisine

WE DO IT TOO

BRITISH SF, 1965-79

by Christopher Priest

Writing science fiction in Britain is rather like living in the suburbs of a great city. If we agree that the city-centre is America, where we find the market-place, the money-changers and all the fashionable night-spots, then British sf is somewhere out on the fringes. Britain bears the same sort of relationship to the centre of the science fiction city as, say, Brighton bears to London. It is a noticeable distance away, the architecture is quaint and it has certain pretensions to urban convenience... but to make up for this there is great amenity-value, the inhabitants are friendly (if sometimes eccentric) and they do speak the same language. Although the city-dwellers might cast the occasional envious eye in its direction, for most of the time they can be forgiven for forgetting that it's there.

This suburban quality is still present in British sf, but in 1965, when the Worldcon last descended on our shores, it was the one distinguishing feature.

We had, for instance, very few publishers of sf. Gollancz, Whiting & Wheaton, Faber and Dobson shared the hardcovers: Corgi, Panther, Four Square, Penguin and Mayflower looked after the paperbacks. Most of the books that came out were American in origin, and most of those were reissues of old stuff.

There were very few British sf novels on sale. There was STORMBRINGER by Michael Moorcock (plus a couple of paperback expansions of his magazine stories); THE SQUARES OF THE CITY by John Brunner; EARTHWORKS by Brian Aldiss; A WRINKLE IN THE SKIN by John Christopher; THE QUALTY OF MERCY, D. G. Compton's first novel; A MAN OF DOUBLE DEED by Leonard Daventry; SUNDOG by Brian N. Ball. Ted Carnell's NEW WRITINGS IN SF series had established itself and was appearing quarterly, but few stories showed much vitality. Not, frankly, an exciting bunch. Brunner's best was yet to come, and even the Aldiss was below par (though not nearly so bad as some critics made out at the time).

Fourteen years later we find that there are seven or eight hardback publishers who either maintain a science fiction list and label it as such, or who regularly publish sf in with their general fiction. Every major trade paperback firm publishes sf for a competitive market. In any one year you will find rather more than a handful of British books.

As the wealth of the American City has grown, so too has its major suburb prospered.

But to speak of it only in terms of market expansion is to put a misleading emphasis on commercialism. If it was just a question of increased profitability, Britain would still be a passive importer of foreign produce.

What has happened is that there has been a renaissance of the spirit here.

In 1965, the signs of it were not obvious. There was no clue to it in the world of books, as I have suggested. Nor was it evident in the film and TV worlds, although DOCTOR WHO had just started, 2001 - A SPACE ODYSSEY was in early production, and STAR WARS (most of which was filmed in suburban London) was years away.

In fact, the renaissance had begun in 1964, and was well under way by the time of the London Worldcon, if known only to a favoured few. These were the readers who bought, and the writers who contributed to, the New Worlds, edited by Michael Moorcock.

The story of "the British new wave", as it was known to friend and foe alike, is a bit like the story of sf itself. Just as we Europeans first invented science fiction (Mary Shelley, Jules Verne, H. G. Wells), then exported it across the Atlantic to prosper in its rightful environment, so we led the way in the 1960s with the new sf.

New Worlds was a rowdy-house of revolutionary fervour. Boring old writers were booted out ignominiously, boorish young writers rushed in to take their place. British science fiction had once been about middle-class Anglo-Saxons exploring alien planets; now it was about disjointed time, electric guitars, automobile accidents, turds in bedsitters. Horizons expanded and contracted appropriately, and Ladbroke Grove became a place of pilgrimage. At the centre of it all sat the quixotic Moorcock, a hairy, large and generous man, hacking out sword-and-sorcery books to pay the printing bills. It was a mad time, full of paradox.

What are you to make of the new wave now? Some of the stories that came out were genuinely original and exciting, though most were not. If you go back to New Worlds and read through the stories, it is certainly arguable whether or not things were improving, but one thing was sure: there was a new, stimulating mood in the air.

Until Mike Moorcock took over New Worlds the traditional way for a British sf writer to make a name was to take on the Americans at their own game, but to do it in a peculiarly British sort of way. There were exceptions (notably J. G. Ballard and Brian Aldiss), but a typical issue of the magazine in the pre-Moorcock days would be full of stories which appeared to have been rejected from Campbell's Astounding SF. Most of them actually had been; a lot of British manuscripts in those days had the grime of travel on them, from repeated crossings of the Atlantic.

What Moorcock did was to encourage British writers to kick over the traces of the sf idiom, to reject half a century of accepted ideas and plots and to look within themselves for a sharper vision of the universe. Inevitably, some writers took this to mean that they ought to angle their work for a different kind of market, perhaps to write "new wave" self-consciously. (This certainly happened a couple of years later when the new wave was exported to the States. By then a new wave "type" of story had emerged – sexy, downbeat, usually obscure – and many literary atrocities were committed in its name, both here and abroad. One finds much sympathy with those who felt that science fiction had taken a turn into a blind alley.) It is interesting to see, with hindsight, that those writers who did spring forward to supply what they probably saw as a different kind of market were unable to continue when the new wave fell from favour.

Because the new wave had its day. It surged forward, frothing and foaming, broke on the uncaring beaches of literature, and withdrew. It was spectacular to watch, exhilarating to ride, it dislodged great clumps of mouldy old seaweed and made a thrilling noise on the shingle. But at the end of the day, all a big wave can hope to achieve is to make a stretch of sand slightly wetter than before. What really matters, before this aquatic metaphor dries up, is not a freak wave but tidal influences.

Now we are in 1979 and New Worlds still exists, but its day has passed and it is no longer central to British sf. What has replaced it, not too ironically, is the very thing Moorcock tried to encourage. Modern British sf, if it has a collective identity at all, is represented by a large number of individual writers all going their own way.

Perhaps that doesn't sound too interesting, but writers have to relinquish something personal if they follow a party line. This was always a problem with the new wave: it rapidly developed a private language, a set of OK attitudes and a distinct desire to be thought cool and laid-back . . . a new set of clichés, in other words. Justifiably, many of the writers who served the party whip in 1965 are today as obscure as their stories were then. Those who took inspiration from the idea of the new wave, however – the idea that there was more to speculative writing than imitating Heinlein or Wyndham – found their own voices and have become recognized in their own right. At the same time other writers have come to prominence; either writers who had nothing whatsoever to do with the new wave, or writers who have started work since.

Survivors from the new wave include Ian Watson, Keith Roberts, Robert Holdstock, Josephine Saxton, Michael Moorcock and M. John Harrison, although only Moorcock and Harrison were closely identified with the New Worlds movement. Richard Cowper, D. G. Compton, Bob Shaw and Michael Coney have responded to the new enlightenment, and each treads his own path. New writers (new in the sense of being post new wave) include Andrew Stephenson, Garry Kilworth, Chris Boyce and Christopher D. Evans.

Other writers, who were not only well established before the last Worldcon but who survived the new wave and continue writing today, include Arthur C. Clarke, John Brunner, J. G. Ballard and our British guest of honour, Brian Aldiss.

Nor is it just the British who respond to the bracing qualities of our erratic climate; several Americans have committed themselves to varying terms of exile here. Harry Harrison qualifies as a sort of honorary Brit, having lived here or in Europe for years; now he has absconded to Ireland, where Anne McCaffrey also lives. James Blish came to England for the last years of his life. John Sladek is here. Ursula Le Guin, Robert Sheckley, Greg Benford, Bill Butler, Frank Herbert, Norman Spinrad, Judith Merril, Thomas M. Disch . . . all have lived and worked here at various times.

On a less happy note, we have lost a few writers since 1965. John Wyndham, who visited the London Worldcon, died in 1969 (WEB, a posthumously published novel, appeared earlier this year). We lost Eric Frank Russell in 1978, and E. J. ("Ted") Carnell in 1972. Arthur Sellings, also at the 1965 Worldcon, died in 1968; J. R. R. Tolkien in 1973. It has been said that Michael Moorcock died of lung-cancer in 1971, a fact reported by James Colvin, who himself had perished in 1969, when a filing-cabinet full of unpublished manuscripts fell on him.

So what do we have to show for fourteen years of suburban industry? If the books I listed as the output of 1965 were, for the most part, an uninspiring lot, I think it can be claimed that we have made amends since. I was intending to prove the point by listing a few of the British books that have appeared between the two Worldcons, but research has shown that the task is beyond either my stamina or your patience. It's enough to say that all the following authors have been active and successful in the last decade and a half:

Mark Adlard, Brian Aldiss, Kingsley Amis, Hilary Bailey, Brian N. Ball, J. G. Ballard, Barrington J. Bayley, Chris Boyce, John Brunner, Kenneth Bulmer, Anthony Burgess, Angela Carter, John Christopher, Arthur C. Clarke, D. G. Compton, Michael G. Coney (Coney is British but lives abroad, like Burgess and Clarke), Edmund Cooper, Richard Cowper, Peter Dickinson, David S. Garnett, Stuart Gordon, Terry Greenhough, M. John Harrison, Philip E. High, James P. Hogan (exported to the States), Robert Holdstock, Colin Kapp, Garry Kilworth, Tanith Lee, Charles Logan, Peter Macey, Donald Malcolm, Douglas R. Mason, David I. Masson, Ian McEwan, J. T. McIntosh, Michael Moorcock, Dan Morgan, Dick Morland, Brenda Pearce, John T. Phillifent, Christopher Priest, Keith Roberts, Josephine Saxton, Bob Shaw, Martin Sherwood, Brian Stableford, Andrew M. Stephenson, Peter Tate, Emma Tennant, J. R. R. Tolkien, E. C. Tubb, Ian Watson, James White, and John Wyndham.

The list is probably incomplete, as all lists are, and open to interpretation. Amis, Burgess, Carter, McEwan and Tennant would probably be horrified to see themselves listed as sf writers, yet they all wrote books which we can claim for sf. Equally, many of the names in the same list, whom we know for their sf, have made successful forays into the wider world of general fiction. Perhaps we could agree, though, that we have around fifty writers whose names are not entirely unknown to the sf world. Not a bad score for a small country, especially when you consider that the majority of these authors are in the prime of their careers, and at least half are full-time writers.

But how many of them are "major" authors? This is something that is not easy to discuss without seeming sour, but I believe it is fundamental to an understanding of where British writers stand in relation to the rest. We have no Robert Silverbergs here, no Larry Nivens or Ursula Le Guins. No one, in effect, who can instantly command the centre of the stage by simple force of name. John Brunner, Arthur C. Clarke, Michael Moorcock and Brian Aldiss have won major awards, and J. R. R. Tolkien probably sells more books than the rest of the writers in the world added together... but these are exceptions, and exceptional for the writers. Clarke aside, a new novel from any of these people does not automatically attract a flurry of award-nominations. We are rarely stricken by award-fever here, adopting the well-known British phlegm about such matters. It is a hidden strength, albeit a perverse one. Because we do not have the twin spotlights of fame and success on us we are free to grow, free to develop character-roles in the dimmer recesses downstage.

Perhaps this is a suburban attitude, one which is the literary equivalent of making garden cultivation or car washing into a symbol of superiority over the sordid urban types. Some truth in that, maybe, but let's not take it too far. The average British sf writer, if there is any such thing, is modest about his work, sure of his own direction, imitates no one and is himself inimitable. British sf keeps its end up, as we say down here in Brighton.

Lan-Kern

Peter Tremayne

It is the world of the very distant future. Our civilisation has collapsed and mankind is struggling to build a new one. David Dryden is a Twentieth Century man, a botanist, who goes through a form of cryogenic suspended animation and wakes up in this future world.

He encounters three very different types of society in various stages of development, from feudal to totalitarian.

The way in which the author examines these new civilizations through Dryden's adventures, romances, and intrigues, lifts the work far above the normal Sword and Sorcery tale. As well as being pure escapist adventure, the three stories have a deeper, subtly unfolded meaning.

We won't make the usual clichéd comparisons with Tolkein: Lan-Kern is too individualistic for that. It could best be described as a modern rendering of the Celtic Odyssey, a work that can be read on several levels, each one thoroughly enjoyable and thought-provoking.

Book I - The Fires of Lan-Kern
296 pages, to be published in October 1979,
£5.25

Book II - Destroyers of Lan-Kern Autumn
1980

Book III - Buccaneers of Lan-Kern
Autumn 1981

Bailey Bros. &
Swinfen Ltd.
Warner House,
Folkestone,
Kent.

British Conventions in the 70s By Peter Roberts

The first three parts of this series, published in the Seacon 79 Progress Reports, looked at British conventions from 1937-1970 and traced their development from small, lecture-hall meetings to large hotel conventions mixing sf discussion with fannish socializing. This final part brings us up to date with a brief look at British cons in the seventies and the rapid growth that's characterized them.

Eastercon 22, the 1971 Worcester convention, was in many ways a model for conventions to come: though attendance was still fairly small at around 250, there were enough fans on hand to fill an entire hotel – and a modern and comparatively luxurious hotel at that. The Giffard indeed probably gave many attendees a taste for creature comforts that made previous accommodation seem suddenly shabby and second-rate. Additionally the Worcestercon, with Anne McCaffrey as Guest of Honour, presented a balanced and entertaining programme that mixed sf and fan items and managed to please just about everyone – a rare enough feat as any committee will tell you. Peter Weston, incidentally, was the con chairman, and that's one of the reasons we're still trusting him (though at that time, during a discussion on the possibilities of a British worldcon, Pete roundly claimed he'd never be chairman of anything again. So it goes.). At any rate, Eastercon 22 was a substantial success, even if certain popular innovations like the Monday morning boat trip (with bar) have never been repeated.

If the Worcestercon set a pattern for Easter conventions, then the first Novacon, held in Birmingham later that year, topped it by establishing an entirely new series of conventions in Britain. Originally conceived by Vernon Brown and the Aston Group, and only later becoming attached to the newly reformed Birmingham Group, the Novacon was a success from the start. About 150 fans, many more than were anticipated, turned up at the old Imperial Centre Hotel, for the first con and the light programming and general informality seemed to be just about the right mixture for the more fannish, less sf-oriented fandom of the seventies. There's not going to be room here to go through all the individual Novacons since 1971 and, indeed, there's no real need, since in a sense there's only one Novacon and it's virtually impossible for anyone who's been to all eight to distinguish one from another – the one true Novacon simply adds a few more days and a few more anecdotes to itself each year. However, there have been some changes – the con has doubled in size in recent years and in 1975 left the Imperial Centre for the newer and larger Royal Angus (with a one-off stab at the Holiday Inn in 1978). Committees have changed too, though the Brum Group's resident expertise has always been on hand to ensure a generally smooth running of affairs. The essence of the Novacon remains, however, unchanged – it's a relaxed and slightly smaller counterpart to the Eastercon, always held in Birmingham, and at the time of year when you feel the need for a bit of fannish company – the first weekend in November.

The larger Eastercons, meanwhile, continued with the Chessmancon in 1972. Originally termed the Slancon, it was moved from Blackpool to Chester after the original hotel fell through. The new hotel, the Blossoms, proved quite inadequate for the numbers attending and many fans found themselves booked, and even double-booked, in remote parts of the town (the Peacock Hotel deserves a special mention – it turned out to be no more than a big pub which didn't allow guests inside till 6.00 pm and asked them to be back by 10.30 pm sharp, when the doors closed). Larry Niven was GoH and the programme was less than inspiring – there were no fan items, for example, except perhaps the amazing sale of the BSFA's fanzine library which caused some furore after the event. However, at least some of the chaos and gloom was dispersed by the hotel's bars and bar-staff: the Buttery was the meeting place for Chester's campier gay community – it was here that Ian Williams gained the name 'Tiger' – whilst the bar next door was run by a charming lady who sold fanzines, bought artwork, and treated people to free sandwiches. As if this wasn't enough, the third place was run by a barman with remarkable good humour – even at six in the morning when Pete Weston was giving forth his own, inimitable version of "Danny Boy" (consisting chiefly of the song's title shouted intermittently between bouts of tuneless howling). The con incidentally, ended with a giant paper aeroplane battle, started by kids and finished by professional authors. Strange things happen at conventions.

The following year members of the Off-Trial Magazine Publishers' Association collaborated to stage the Bristol OMPACON in the Grand Hotel – almost certainly the only time an apa anywhere has gone in for full-scale conventioneering. Samuel Delany was GoH and odd events included a robot invasion of the fancy dress, a banquet notorious for its first course of lettuce & rice pudding, and an all-night open party where the GoH, Brian Aldiss, James Blish, and some forty other fans were still going strong at breakfast time.

Though OMPACON was considered a reasonable if not exactly a notable convention, its memory has probably suffered through comparison with the convention that followed. Tynecon 74, held in the Royal Station Hotel, Newcastle on Tyne, was certainly one of the best British conventions of recent years and even today it's still used as a yardstick by which all other cons are measured. The hotel helped, being pleasantly laid out and with ample room for a record attendance of some 350; but all credit really goes to the Gannetfan committee, an active and enthusiastic group who planned well and worked hard at the convention. Surprisingly perhaps, there weren't that many odd incidents at Tynecon, though GoH Bob Shaw witnessed one at his room party that's worth quoting:

"On the Sunday night our room was so crowded that if you spilt a drink capillary attraction made it go up. I managed to find a comfortable spot by nestling in between the embossings on the wallpaper, and spent the entire night there, trapped. From this vantage point I didn't see a great deal of what was going on, and consequently was intrigued when – round about 3.00 am – I observed Brian Aldiss shooting up into the air, almost reaching the ceiling, and then sinking back down out of sight. He repeated this feat about a dozen times, gracefully, each time seeming to hang motionless just below the ceiling in defiance of gravity, with a look of beatific contemplation on his face. I grew quite entranced by this spectacle, and therefore felt disappointed when the initially perfect symmetry of his movements decayed into ordinary parabolas and he began colliding with other people and had to abandon his ethereal ballet.

"I must admit that for a while my faith in Brian was slightly shaken, but I needn't have worried. The thing that went wrong was that two legs of my bed, which he was using as a trampoline, had proved unequal to his artistry, and the weight of about ten other people, and had gradually folded up, inclining him further and further off course. Given a perfectly horizontal launching pad he could have gone on bouncing on the spot all night."

Despite broken beds it was probably the Tynecon that helped lengthen the average Eastercon by at least another day, since a large number of fans turned up on the Thursday before the con – a practice that had started in a small way two or three years earlier. Certainly by the following Easter a large Thursday contingent was ready and waiting for the start of Seacon 75. Originally conceived as the South East Area Convention with a probable site in Brighton, it somehow ended up in the De Vere Hotel in Coventry – and you can't get much further away from the sea than that. Harry Harrison was GoH and the rapidly increasing popularity of conventions was reflected in a new attendance record of over 400. Though suffering in comparison with Tynecon, this earlier Seacon was really quite successful and brought in some innovations which have more or less settled down as standard items at modern British cons. It was here, for example, that the idea of a fan room and alternative fan programme began, and it was here too that Graham Charnock and Group bravely agreed to play for a Sunday night dance – it was feared that fans wouldn't take to this (a disco at Tynecon had been one of the convention's few failures), but amazingly they did, providing strange sights and bruised shins. There were parties too, like the oddly straggling one Peter Nicholls encountered on the main staircase:

"Overwhelmed, I began to walk spiralling down the stairs. With every successive landing, it was like entering a yet more inward circle of Dante's Hell. The circle of the drunkards was followed by a circle of limbo, where aimless neofans trudged in passive circles, seeking a way out to the great unreachable room party in the sky, which no one could locate. The next circle was the circle of the sleepers. Picking my way through them, I spiralled down through the circle of the failed gamblers, commiserating with another about the difficulty of filling inside straights. Further down was the circle of the lost. They sat, unreachable in their desolation, crooning to themselves "I need a woman". The pain and anguish of it all was too much to bear. I feared to descend to the lowest of all the circles, half-expecting to meet the horned one himself, haunches sunk in ice, endlessly chewing on the body of some long-damned fan. In practice, showing that dramatic metaphors don't always work out, the only people at the bottom were Peter Roberts and Karel Thole, apparently sober, talking intelligently about Art in apparent ignorance of the fact that it was 4.00 am and life and hell."

The De Vere was a large, modern, and expensive hotel – a fact which may have caused the reaction which led to Mancon 5. This programme book is not long enough to detail the many horrors of that infamous convention. Apart from the fact that, as with almost all Mancons, the committee was to a greater or lesser degree incompetent and bored with the affair, the con had the peculiar (and so far unique) misfortune of being held on a university campus, in this case the squalid barracks of Manchester University's Owens Park. Though Robert Silverberg was GoH, the programme was a shambles – and quite what happened to the fan side of it never became clear. The only event of note was a self-organized football game (Ratfan Dynamo v Gannet Flyers – referee, Bob Shaw) which might have started another new convention trend if real hotels only had football pitches.

Chastened by Mancon 5 and Owens Park, Eastercon 77 returned to the De Vere (an hotel, incidentally, which has made most of British fandom paranoid about static electricity) for what was essentially a re-run of Seacon 75, though the fan room was larger and better and the dancing even more dangerous (Eric Bentcliffe gave an impressive demonstration of jitterbugging and Gerry Webb an equally exciting exhibition of falling over). John Bush of Gollancz was GoH.

Meanwhile a couple of new conventions had sprung up in 1976, both of them small and with little or no official programme. The Faancon, first organized in Blackpool by Graham Boak and then moving in following years around the country, was (and apparently still is) held early in the year; never attracting more than a few dozen fans, it seems a rather shadowy and little-known convention. More obviously successful is the Silicon, staged by the North East Gannetfans over August Bank Holiday. Though intentionally small, with an attendance around fifty, it attracts many of the more active fans from around the country and seems essentially to be a continuous weekend party, which can't be bad.

Both these small conventions reflected a growing feeling that the Eastercon (and even the Novacon) was becoming too large for comfort, and as if to prove this the 1978 Skycon moved to the Heathrow Hotel near London and attracted some 600 attendees – easily an all-time record for any British conventions up till now. Despite this massive turnout, the convention seemed lost in the hotel which in turn paid little attention to con attendees who were shunted off into crowded subterranean rooms (presumably for fear of falling aeroplanes) where they were nightly harassed by hired thugs, posing as security men. It was not a nice place.

The con went on, though, with Robert Sheckley as GoH and the committee introducing some considerable sweetness and light by declaring free drinks at the bar – an action which caused something close to a stampede and the swift swallowing of most of the Skycon funds.

And that just about brings us up to date, with a new regional convention, the Glasgow Faircon, starting up in 1978 and the latest Eastercon, the Leeds Yorcon at the Dragonara Hotel, with Richard Cowper as GoH, managing to be both smaller and friendlier, and consequently more enjoyable, than the previous year's extravaganza. Including the new Faircon, we're left with five annual conventions in Britain, as well as a fairly new crop of fantasy, Star Trek, and other fringe and specialist conventions which are beyond the scope of this article (and its author – though I was kicked out of the first ever British Star Trek con, if that's any claim to fame).

So that's it: a biased and probably inaccurate account of sf conventions in Britain over the last 42 years. I hope it's provided some sort of background to Seacon 79; at the least it may have shown newcomers that the Brighton worldcon is not an isolated event, but is part of a long tradition of British conventioning; and it may also, with any luck, have jogged a few memories of conventions long past. If anyone's interested in further information, whether deeply historical or plain foolish, you can probably find me wandering around the con. Mine's a Guinness.

Peter Roberts

BRITISH CONVENTION LISTING

	1937	Leeds
	1938	London
	1939	London
	1941	London	Bombcon
	1943	Leicester	Midvention
	1944	Manchester	Norcon
		London	Eastercon
		Leicester	Midvention II
		Leeds	Norcon II
1	1948	London	Whitcon	(GoH: Bertram Chandler)
2	1949	London	Loncon
3	1951	London	Festiventon	(GoH: Forrest Ackerman. Fan GoH: Lyell Crane)
		Bradford	Necon	(GoH: Ken Slater)
4	1952	London	Loncon
		Manchester	Mancon	(GoH: John Russell Fearn)
5	1953	London	Coroncon
		Chatham	Medcon
6	1954	Manchester	Supermancon	(GoH: John Russell Fearn)
7	1955	Kettering	Cytricon I
8	1956	Kettering	Cytricon II
9	1957	London	LONCON I	(GoH: John W. Campbell)
10	1958	Kettering	Cytricon III
11	1960	Birmingham	Brumcon
12	1961	London		(GoH: Ted Carnell. Fan GoH: Don Ford)
13	1962	Gloucester	LXIcon	(GoH: Kingsley Amis)
14	1963	Harrrogate	Ronvention	(GoH: Tom Boardman)
15	1964	Peterborough	Bullcon	(GoH: Edmund Crispin)
16	1965	Peterborough	Repetercon	(GoH: Ted Tubb)
		Birmingham	Brumcon 2	(GoH: Harry Harrison)
		London	LONCON II	(GoH: Brian Aldiss)
17	1966	Yarmouth	Yarcon	(GoH: Ron Whiting)
18	1967	Bristol	Briscon	(GoH: John Brunner)
19	1968	Buxton	Thirdmancon	(GoH: Ken Bulmer)
20	1969	Oxford	Galactic Fair	(GoH: Judith Merrill)
21	1970	London	Scicon 70	(GoH: James Blish)
22	1971	Worcester	Eastercon 22	(GoH: Anne McCaffrey. Fan GoH: Ethel Lindsay)
		Birmingham	Novacon 1	(GoH: James White)
23	1972	Chester	Chessmancon	(GoH: Larry Niven)
		Birmingham	Novacon 2	(GoH: Doreen Rogers)
24	1973	Bristol	OMPACON 73	(GoH: Samuel Delany)
		Birmingham	Novacon 3	(GoH: Ken Bulmer)
25	1974	Newcastle	Tynecon 74	(GoH: Bob Shaw. Fan GoH: Peter Weston)
		Birmingham	Novacon 4	(GoH: Ken Slater)
26	1975	Coventry	Seacon 75	(GoH: Harry Harrison)
		Birmingham	Novacon 5	(GoH: Dan Morgan)
	1976	Blackpool	Faancon 1
		Manchester	Mancon 5	(GoH: Bob Silverberg. Fan GoH: Peter Roberts)
		Newcastle	Silicon 1
		Birmingham	Novacon 6	(GoH: Dave Kyle)
	1977	Derby	Faancon 2
28		Coventry	Eastercon 77	(GoH: John Bush)
		Newcastle	Silicon 2
		Birmingham	Novacon 7	(GoH: John Brunner)
	1978	Manchester	Faancon 3
29		Heathrow	Skycon	(GoH: Robert Sheckley. Fan GoH: Roy Kettle)
		Glasgow	Faircon 1	(GoH: James White)
		Newcastle	Silicon 3
		Birmingham	Novacon 8	(GoH: Anne McCaffrey)
	1979	Cheltenham	Faancon 4
30		Leeds	Yorcon	(GoH: Richard Cowper. Fan: Graham & Pat Charnock)

● EASTERCON NUMBER.

DARK
THEY WERE

and GOLDEN EYED

9-12
ST. ANNE'S
COURT, LONDON, W.1.
(OFF WARDOUR ST.)

THE LARGEST

PHONE: 01-734-4260

SF BOOKSHOP IN THE WORLD

J-CARTER-77

WE'VE AN EVEN LARGER SELECTION OF FINE SF AT THE SHOP, SO...

CAPTAIN CLEAN SEZ:

WHY DON'T YOU BEAM UP AND SEE US?

John Brosnan: The British Science Fiction CINEMA

The Big Problem with trying to discuss British science fiction films is that most of the better ones were made by Americans or other foreigners. Admittedly a lot of the worst British sf films were also made by Americans but that's beside the point. The fact is that truly British sf films have always been rare and never more so than now, Things To Come, for instance, which is often paraded as the flagship of the British sf cinema was in reality produced by a Hungarian, Alexander Korda, directed by an American, William Cameron Menzies, and mainly scripted by another Hungarian, Lajos Biro (H. G. Wells did write the original screenplay but it underwent a series of 'modifications'). And though filmed in a British studio it was given visual substance by a large number of Hollywood technicians imported to England for the picture by Korda.

Thirty years later it was a similar situation with 2001: A Space Odyssey – again the basic source material was British but the controlling artistic influence was American (actually 2001 has a greater claim to be called British because most of the technicians involved in its making, unlike Things To Come, were members of the British film industry). Other examples? Well, Village of the Damned was directed by the German-born Wolf Rilla and scripted by American Stirling Silliphant, The Damned was directed by American Joe Losey, The Bedsitting Room was directed by American Richard Lester, and Dr Strangelove, 2001 and A Clockwork Orange were, of course, the work of American Stanley Kubrick. Those, in my opinion, are some of the more interesting 'British' sf movies but among the worst are: Day of the Triffids which was written and produced by American Philip Yordan (though some unkind people maintain that he is an Australian) and directed by Hungarian Steve Sekely (with some additional footage by Britisher Freddie Francis), Doppelganger, directed by American Robert Parrish, Zero Population Growth was directed by Michael Campus (nationality unknown) and written, if that's the right word, by Americans Max Ehrlich and Frank DeFelitta and No Blade Of Grass was produced and directed by American Cornel Wilde.

The truth is that the British film industry as a whole is, and has been for decades now, a colony of Hollywood and nowhere is this better reflected than in the science fiction cinema. This situation really became established in the 1950s when not only did most of the big American companies set up operation in England to take advantage of cheaper film making costs, easy money etc, but also when many of the British companies, in order to break into the lucrative American market, began making films as American as possible. The Hammer company was one of the pioneers of this trend, having formed a co-distribution deal with American producer Robert L. Lippert, king of the cheap exploitation films (Rocketship XM, Project Moonbase, etc). The device they came up with to ensure that Americans would not suffer culture shock when faced with a movie made in a foreign land and filled with characters talking with quaint accents was to feature some fading American star in the lead role (for some reason British audiences have always been able to watch American films without a reciprocal arrangement). This is why Professor Quatermass, the epitome of the British boffin, is played by Brian Donlevy in Hammer's two 1950s Quatermass films, and why Howard Duff stars in Spaceways, why Dean Jagger is in X-The Unknown, and Forrest Tucker stars in The Abominable Snowman and The Trollenberg Terror. Another small British company, Amalgamated Films, carried this trend as far as it could go by making two movies in England, First Man Into Space and Fiend Without A Face that both pretended to be completely American.

Before the 1950s the British cinema still maintained some independence from Hollywood and it's in this period that one finds a few (very few) British sf films. In 1919, for instance, there was the first version of First Men In The Moon (the second version, made in 1964, was produced and directed by Americans though Nigel Kneale did contribute to the script) but there was a gap of ten years before another major sf production came along. This was High Treason in 1929 which was directed by Maurice Elvey and set in the 'future' of 1940 when an imminent world war prompts the formation of an international Peace League. Idealistic in the extreme, its pacifist message is somewhat undermined by the fact that the Peace League leader has to commit murder to prevent the war.

Four years later Elvey returned to sf with the English remake of the German film Der Tunnel. German script writer Kurt Siodmak adapted his original screenplay for the English production and the story concerned the building of a tunnel under the Atlantic linking Britain with America in order to "... establish a permanent peace between the English-speaking nations". Presumably Siodmak thought that relations between the two countries weren't too healthy in 1934 and needed some assistance (not that help was quick in coming – the tunnel took 20 years to build). That's prophetic science for you.

Alexander Korda's arrival in Britain in 1930 had enormously far-reaching effects on the British film industry, not least in the area of sf and fantasy where his relationship with Wells resulted in Things To Come and The Man Who Could Work Miracles, but ironically one of the best film versions of a Wells novel made in the 1930s came out of an American studio, Universal, yet was the work of a British creative team. This was The Invisible Man, directed by James Whale, scripted by R. C. Sherriff and with a predominantly British cast.

The 1940s didn't see much in the way of sf movies from Britain (or from Hollywood for that matter) but one that almost qualifies as sf is the 1948 Counterblast. Directed by Paul L. Stein (an Austrian) it was about a German scientist who disguises himself as an Australian (the cad) in order to perfect a plague virus in Oxford that will wipe out everyone except Germans. Significantly he is gassed to death in a ship's hold while trying to escape the country.

The following year saw The Perfect Woman, a comedy about a female robot that fell apart at the box office, and in 1950 the Boulting Brothers made the prophetic Seven Days to Noon about a scientist who steals a small (very small) atom bomb and threatens to blow up London unless Britain junks all its atomic weapons.

Another typically British approach to a familiar sf theme was The Man In The White Suit which starred Alec Guinness as a scientist who invents something that causes endless trouble – in this case a fabric that never wears out. But after that – and by then the sf movie boom was in full swing – the American influence took over and the British sf movies lost whatever individuality they may have had, though to be fair one must admit that films like the Quatermass series, in spite of following the American monster-from-outer space formula, are essentially British with their underlying Wellsian pessimism and their mood of profound unease . . .

The situation hasn't changed much since then. With the exception of films like The Final Programme, Zardoz (ugh) and The Man Who Fell To Earth, most of the major sf movies that have been made in England in the 1970s have been American, such as Star Wars, Superman, Alien, Saturn 3, The Empire Strikes Back etc. But at least the British contribution in these films, in both the creative and technical sense, is greater than ever and shows that if Britain still had its own film industry it might be making some marvellous movies, even sf ones.

● A footnote on the subject of British film technicians: the last 12 months has been a veritable Year of the Jackpot for technicians who have contributed much to sf cinema. Late last year Geoffrey Unsworth, who photographed 2001, Zardoz and Superman among many other films, died. Then, at the beginning of the year, Les Bowie died. Bowie was a special effects expert who was responsible for almost all the effects in British-made sf and fantasy films in the 1950s and 60s (The Quatermass Experiment, Dracula etc) and also trained most of the new generation of effects men working in Britain today. The last film he worked on was Superman. And in June this year John Barry, the production designer on such films as A Clockwork Orange, Star Wars and Superman, died. Earlier in the year he had made his directing debut on Saturn 3, which was based on his original story idea, but various problems forced him to leave the production. He was working on The Empire Strikes Back at the time of his death.

(John Brosnan is the author of FUTURE TENSE – THE CINEMA OF SCIENCE FICTION)

Copyright 1979 John Brosnan and Peter Nicholls

Harry Harrison, one of the most exciting writers of science fiction, and Malcolm Edwards, Administrator of the Science Fiction Foundation, have collaborated on this original survey of spacecraft both as imagined since the beginning of civilization, and as realized in the explosion of achievement. The illustrations range from pictures of early fantasies through to the moon landings and space shuttle and on to far-reaching visions of future interstellar travel.

HARRY HARRISON AND MALCOLM EDWARDS SPACECRAFT
 IN FACT AND FICTION

120 pages
 40 colour, 100 black and white illustrations
 £4.95
 0 85613 192 X
 PUBLISHED 24 SEPTEMBER 1979

See it on the ANDROMEDA BOOKS stand and place an early order

ORBIS PUBLISHING

FROM THE PUBLISHERS OF
 BRIAN ALDISS · ISAAC ASIMOV · JOHN BRUNNER
 ARTHUR C. CLARKE · ROBERT A. HEINLEIN
 FRANK HERBERT · FRITZ LEIBER · ROBERT SILVERBERG
 A. E. VAN VOGT · COME FOUR NEW AUTHORS TO NEW ENGLISH LIBRARY

George Zebrowski

ASHES AND STARS
 AND THE SEQUEL
 THE OMEGA POINT

Alan Dean Foster's brilliant sequence featuring Flinx of the Commonwealth

COMING SOON "THE BLACK HOLE" FILM TIE-IN

All the stories in TWENTY HOUSES OF THE ZODIAC have been specially written, and selected by Maxim Jakubowski, himself a writer with an international reputation.

Brian Aldiss
 J G Ballard
 Adam Barnett-Foster
 Philippe Curval
 Ion Hobana
 Shin'ichi Hoshi
 Teresa Ingles
 Maxim Jakubowski
 Stanislaw Lem
 Sam Lundwall
 Gerd Maximovic
 Michael Moorcock
 Hugo Raes
 Bob Shaw
 Robert Sheckley
 John Sladek
 Strugatsky Brothers
 Elizabeth Vonarburg
 Daniel Walther
 Cherry Wilder

JOHN MORRESSY

NAIL DOWN THE STARS
 STARBRAT
 UNDER A CALCULATING STAR

NEW ENGLISH LIBRARY SCIENCE FICTION

Del Rey Shows You the Future

Coming Soon in Paperback...

THE FOUNTAINS OF PARADISE

Arthur C. Clarke

A masterpiece of future science and modern myth-making.

HARPIST IN THE WIND

Patricia A. McKillip

The long-awaited third volume in the Morgon of Hed trilogy.

THE RETURN OF NATHAN BRAZIL

Jack L. Chalker

Fourth in the popular Saga of the Well World.

THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK

The heroes and villains of STAR WARS return.

...And watch for OZ, coming in November

DEL REY

Coming First
in Hardcover and Then in Paperback...

BEYOND THE BLUE EVENT HORIZON

Frederik Pohl

Sequel to the award-winning Gateway.

THE WOUNDED LAND

Stephen R. Donaldson

Book Four in the Chronicles of Thomas Covenant, the Unbeliever.

SPLIT INFINITY

Piers Anthony

Volume One of a remarkable new trilogy.

THE ELFSTONES OF SHANNARA

Terry Brooks

Sequel to the international bestseller The Sword of Shannara.

DRAGON'S EGG

Dr. Robert L. Forward

The hardest hard sf novel in years—life on a neutron star!

CAMBER THE HERETIC

Katherine Kurtz

Newest volume in the continuing saga of the Deryni.

THE #1 PUBLISHER OF SCIENCE FICTION AND FANTASY

Published by Ballantine Books
A Division of Random House, Inc.

1978 HUGO NOMINEES

The Science Fiction Achievement Awards, popularly known as the Hugos, after Hugo Gernsback, editor and founder of Amazing Stories, are voted on by members of each annual World Science Fiction Convention and represent the foremost and most prestigious award in the genre. There are categories for both professional and fanish achievements in the field. The design of the Hugo, a gleaming, archetypal rocket ship originated at the 1955 Clevention after a design by Ben Jason; the Hugos to be presented at Seacon '79 have been cast from the original moulds. The current categories of award were established by the informally organized World Science Fiction Society at Aussiecon in 1975.

NOVEL

- BLIND VOICES by Tom Reamy (Berkley-Putnam)
DREAMSNAKE by Vonda McIntyre (Houghton Mifflin; Gollancz)
THE FADED SUN: KESRITH by C. J. Cherryh (DAW; SFBC: Galaxy February-May)
UP THE WALLS OF THE WORLD by James Tiptree Jr. (Berkley-Putnam; Gollancz)
THE WHITE DRAGON by Anne McCaffrey (Del Rey; Sidgwick & Jackson)

NOVELLA

- ENEMIES OF THE SYSTEM by Brian Aldiss (F&SF, June)
FIRESHIP by Joan D. Vinge (Analog, December)
THE PERSISTENCE OF VISION by John Varley (F&SF, March)
SEVEN AMERICAN NIGHTS by Gene Wolfe (Orbit 20; Harper & Row)
THE WATCHED by Christopher Priest (F&SF, April)

NOVELETTE

- THE BARBIE MURDERS by John Varley (IASFM, January/February)
DEVIL YOU DON'T KNOW by Dean Ing (Analog, January)
HUNTER'S MOON by Poul Anderson (Analog, November)
THE MAN WHO HAD NO IDEA by Thomas M. Disch (F&SF, October)
MIKAL'S SONGBIRD by Orson Scott Card (Analog, May)

SHORT STORY

- CASSANDRA by C. J. Cherryh (F&SF, October)
COUNT THE CLOCK THAT TELLS THE TIME by Harlan Ellison (Omni, December)
STONE by Edward Bryant (F&SF, February)
THE VERY SLOW TIME MACHINE by Ian Watson (Anticipations - Faber; Scribner's)
VIEW FROM A HEIGHT by Joan D. Vinge (Analog, June)

DRAMATIC PRESENTATION

- HITCH-HIKER'S GUIDE TO THE GALAXY (BBC)
INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS (United Artists)
LORD OF THE RINGS (United Artists)
SUPERMAN (Columbia - EMI - Warner)
WATERSHIP DOWN (CIC)

PROFESSIONAL EDITOR

- JAMES BAEN (Ace, Destinies)
BEN BOVA (Analog, Omni)
TERRY CARR (Universe, Years Best SF)
EDWARD FERMAN (F&SF)
GEORGE SCITHERS (IASFM)

PROFESSIONAL ARTIST

- VINCENT DI FATE
STEPHEN FABIAN
DAVID HARDY
BORIS VALLEJO
MICHAEL WHELAN

FANZINE

- JANUS (Janice Bogstad & Jeanne Gomoll)
MAYA (Rob Jackson)
MOTA (Terry Hughes)
SCIENCE FICTION REVIEW (Richard E. Geis)
TWLL-DDU (Dave Langford)

FAN WRITER

- RICHARD E. GEIS
LEROY KETTLE
DAVE LANGFORD
BOB SHAW
D. WEST

FAN ARTIST

- JIM BARKER
HARRY BELL
ALEXIS GILLILAND
BILL ROTSLER
STU SHIFFMAN

JOHN W. CAMPBELL AWARD FOR THE BEST NEW WRITER

STEPHEN DONALDSON (*Chronicles of Thomas
Covenant the Unbeliever*: Holt, Rinehart & Winston)

CYNTHIA FELICE (Longshanks: Galileo, Jan.
1977; Godsfire: Pocket Books)

JAMES P. HOGAN (Inherit the Stars: Del Rey)

BARRY LONGYEAR (The Tryouts: IASFM,
Nov./Dec. 1978)

ELIZABETH LYNN (We All Have to Go: Future
Pastimes; A Different Light: Berkley)

CHARLES SHEFFIELD (What Song the Sirens Sang: Galaxy, April 1977; etc.)

GANDALF BOOK-LENGTH FANTASY AWARD

THE COURTS OF CHAOS by Roger Zelazny
(Doubleday, Faber)

*GLORIANA by Michael Moorcock (Allison & Busby, Avon, Fontana)

SAINT CAMBER by Katherine Kurtz (Del Rey)

THE STAND by Stephen King (Doubleday, New English Library)

THE WHITE DRAGON by Anne McCaffrey
(Del Rey, Sidgwick & Jackson)

GANDALF GRAND MASTER

RAY BRADBURY

URSULA K. LE GUIN

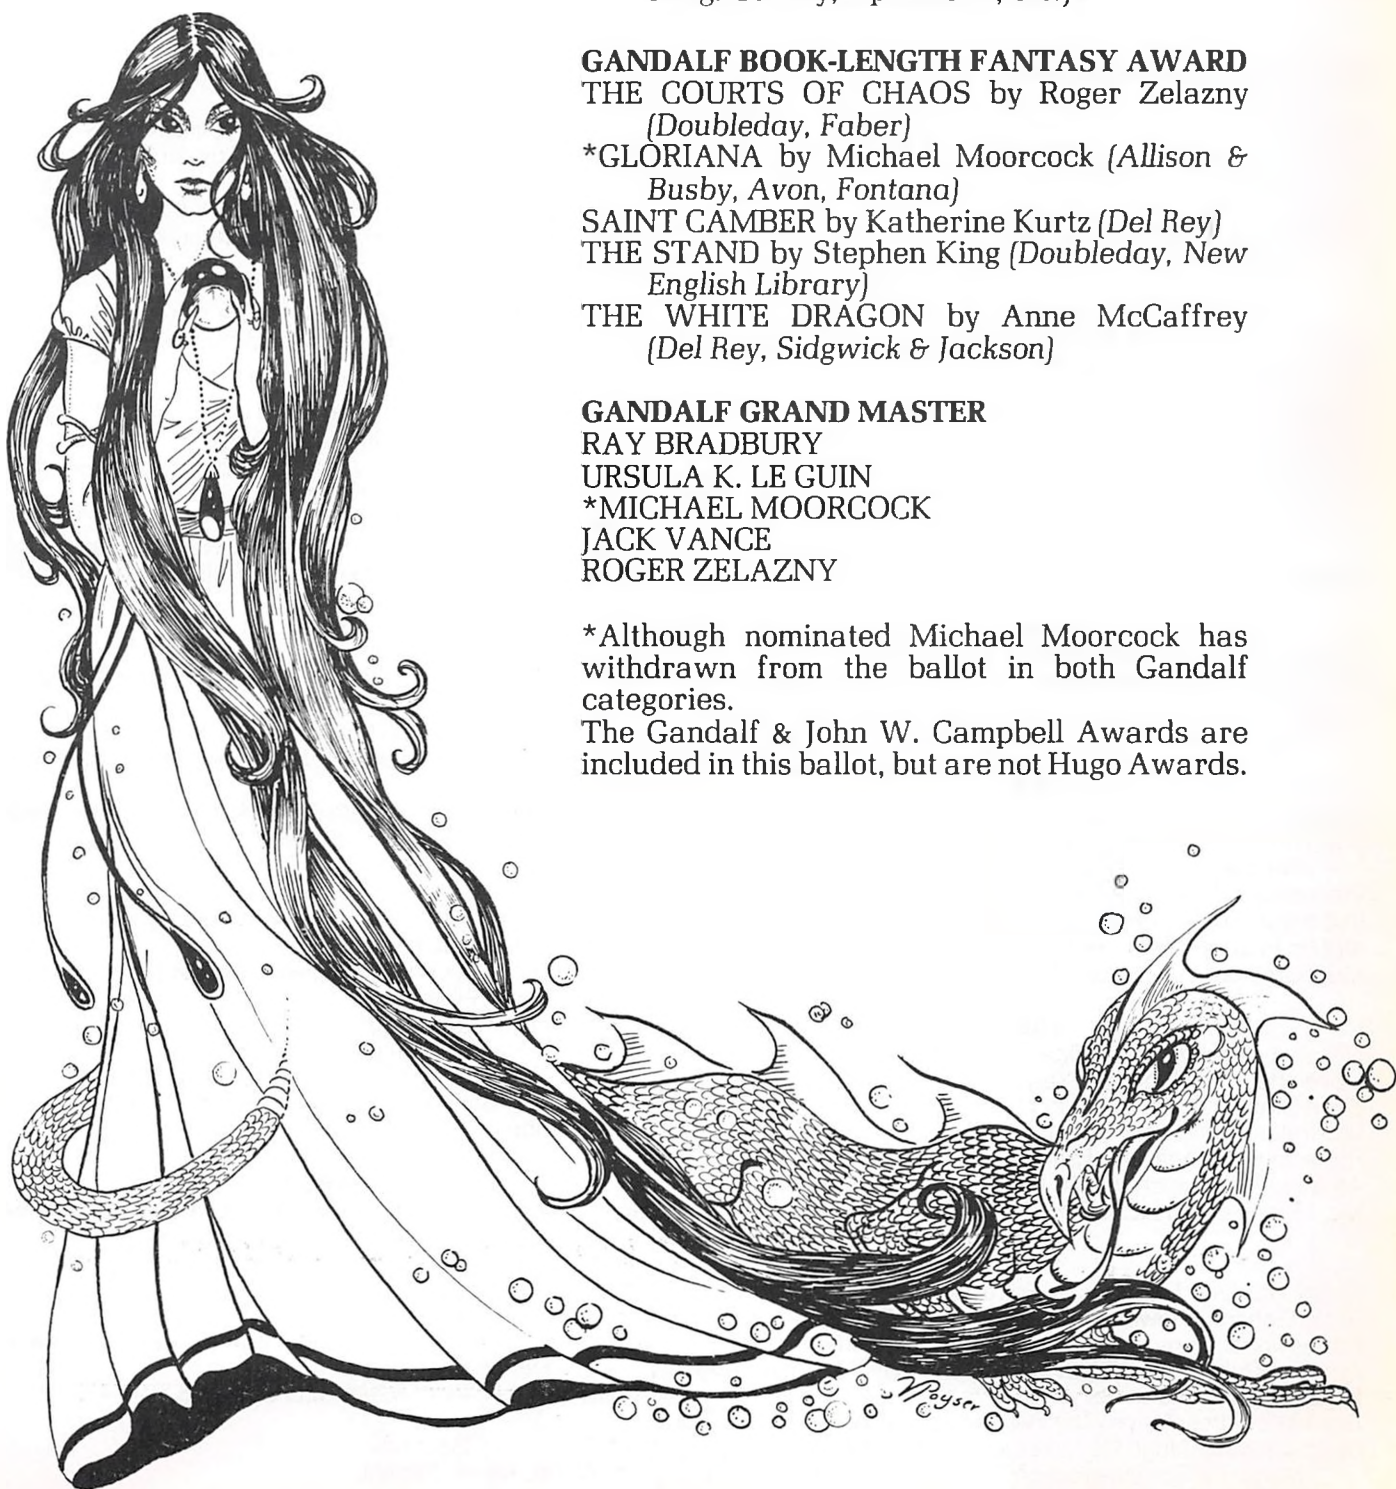

*MICHAEL MOORCOCK

JACK VANCE

ROGER ZELAZNY

*Although nominated Michael Moorcock has withdrawn from the ballot in both Gandalf categories.

The Gandalf & John W. Campbell Awards are included in this ballot, but are not Hugo Awards.

Previous Hugo Winners

1953

Number 1 Fan Personality: Forrest J. Ackerman .
Best Interior Illustrator: Virgil Finlay
Best Cover Artist: Ed Emshwiller & Hannes Bok (tie)
Excellence in Fact Articles: Willy Ley
New Science Fiction Author or Artist: Philip Jose Farmer
Best Professional Magazine: Galaxy & Astounding Science Fiction (tie)
Best Novel: The Demolished Man, by Alfred Bester

1954

No awards were given.

1955

Best Novel: They'd Rather Be Right, by Mark Clifton & Frank Riley
Best Novelette: "The Darfsteller," by Walter M. Miller, Jr.
Best Short Story: "Allamagoosa," by Eric Frank Russell
Best Professional Magazine: Astounding Science Fiction
Best Illustrator: Frank Kelly Freas
Best Amateur Publication: Fantasy Times (James V. Taurasi, ed.)

1956

Novel: Double Star, by Robert A. Heinlein
Novelette: "Exploration Team," by Murray Leinster
Short Story: "The Star," by Arthur C. Clarke
Feature Writer: Willy Ley
Professional Magazine: Astounding Science Fiction
Illustrator: Frank Kelly Freas
Most Promising New Author: Robert Silverberg
Amateur Publication: Inside Science Fiction (Ron Smith, ed.)
Critic: Damon Knight

1957

Professional Magazine, US: Astounding Science Fiction
Professional Magazine, British: New Worlds
Amateur Publication: Science Fiction Times (James V. Taurasi, ed.)

1958

Novel: The Big Time, by Fritz Leiber
Short Story: "Or All the Seas With Oysters," Avram Davidson
Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
Illustrator: Frank Kelly Freas
Motion Picture: The Incredible Shrinking Man
Most Outstanding Actifan: Walter A. Willis

1959

Novel: A Case of Conscience, by James Blish
Novelette: "The Big Front Yard," by Clifford D. Simak
Short Story: "That Hell-Bound Train," by Robert Bloch
Illustrator: Frank Kelly Freas
Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
Amateur Publication: Fanac (Ron Ellik & Terry Carr, eds.)
Most Promising New Author: Brian W. Aldiss

1960

Novel: Starship Troopers, by Robert A. Heinlein
Short Fiction: "Flowers for Algernon," by Daniel Keyes
Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
Amateur Publication: Cry of the Nameless (F. M. Busby, ed.)
Illustrator: Ed Emshwiller
Dramatic Presentation: The Twilight Zone (Rod Sterling)
Special Award: Hugo Gernsback as "The Father of Magazine Science Fiction"

1961

Novel: A Canticle for Leibowitz, by Walter M. Miller, Jr.
Short Story: "The Longest Voyage," by Poul Anderson
Professional Magazine: Analog
Amateur Publication: Who Killed Science Fiction? (Earl Kemp, ed.)
Illustrator: Ed Emshwiller
Dramatic Presentation: The Twilight Zone

1962

Novel: Stranger in a Strange Land, by Robert A. Heinlein
Short Fiction: "The Hothouse Series," by Brian W. Aldiss
Professional Magazine: Analog
Amateur Magazine: Warhoon (Richard Bergeron, ed.)
Professional Artist: Ed Emshwiller
Dramatic Presentation: The Twilight Zone

1963

Novel: The Man in the High Castle, by Philip K. Dick
Short Fiction: "The Dragon Masters," by Jack Vance
Dramatic Presentation: No Award
Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
Amateur Magazine: Xero (Richard & Pat Lupoff, Bhub Stewart, eds.)
Professional Artist: Roy G. Krenkel
Special Hugos: P. Schuyler Miller (book reviewing) Isaac Asimov (for being Isaac Asimov)

1964

Novel: Way Station, by Clifford D. Simak
Short Fiction: "No Truce with Kings," by Poul Anderson
Professional Magazine: Analog
Professional Artist: Ed Emshwiller
Book Publisher: Ace Books (Donald A. Wollheim, ed.)
Amateur Publication: Amra (George Scithers, ed.)

1965

Novel: The Wanderer, by Fritz Leiber
Short Fiction: "Soldier, Ask Not," by Gordon R. Dickson
Professional Magazine: Analog
Professional Artist: John Schoenherr
Book Publisher: Ballantine Books (Ian & Betty Ballantine, ed.)
Amateur Publication: Yandro (Buck & Juanita Coulson, eds.)
Dramatic Presentation: Dr. Strangelove

1966

Novel: And Call Me Conrad, by Roger Zelazny; and Dune by Frank Herbert (tie)
Short Fiction: "Repent, Harlequin! Said the Ticktockman," by Harlan Ellison Professional Magazine: If
Professional Artist: Frank Frazetta
Amateur Publication: ERB-dom (Camille Cazedessus, ed.)
Best All-Time Series: The Foundation Trilogy, by Isaac Asimov

1967

Novel: The Moon is a Harsh Mistress, by Robert A. Heinlein
Novelette: "The Last Castle," by Jack Vance
Short Story: "Neutron Star," by Larry Niven
Professional Magazine: If
Professional Artist: Jack Gaughan
Dramatic Presentation: "The Menagerie" (Star Trek, Gene Roddenberry)
Amateur Publication: Niekas (Ed Meskys & Felice Rolfe, eds.)
Fan Artist: Jack Gaughan
Fan Writer: Alexei Panshin

1968

Novel: Lord of Light, by Roger Zelazny
 Novella: "Weyr Search," by Anne McCaffrey, and "Riders of the Purple Wage," by Philip Jose Farmer (tie)
 Novelette: "Gonna Roll the Bones," by Fritz Leiber
 Short Story: "I Have No Mouth and I Must Scream," by Harlan Ellison
 Dramatic Presentation: "The City on the Edge of Forever" (Star Trek, Harlan Ellison)
 Professional Magazine: If
 Professional Artist: Jack Gaughan
 Amateur Publication: Amra (George Scithers, ed.)
 Fan Writer: Ted White

1969

Novel: Stand on Zanzibar, by John Brunner
 Novella: "Nightwings," by Robert Silverberg
 Novelette: "The Sharing of Flesh," by Poul Anderson
 Short Story: "The Beast That Shouted Love at the Heart of the World," by Harlan Ellison
 Dramatic Presentation: 2001: A Space Odyssey
 Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
 Professional Artist: Jack Gaughan
 Amateur Publication: Psychotic/SF Review (Dick Geis, ed.)
 Fan Writer: Harry Warner, Jr.
 Fan Artist: Vaughan Bode
 Special Award: Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin, Michael Collins, for "Best Moon Landing Ever"

1970

Novel: The Left Hand of Darkness, by Ursula K. LeGuin
 Novella: "Ship of Shadows," by Fritz Leiber
 Short Story: "Time Considered as a Helix of Semi-Precious Stones," by Samuel R. Delany
 Dramatic Presentation: television coverage of Apollo XI
 Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Amateur Magazine: Science Fiction Review (Richard E. Geis, ed.)
 Fan Writer: Bob Tucker
 Fan Artist: Tim Kirk

1971

Novel: Ringworld, by Larry Niven
 Novella: "Ill Met in Lankmar," by Fritz Leiber
 Short Story: "Slow Sculpture," by Theodore Sturgeon
 Dramatic Presentation: No Award
 Professional Artist: Leo & Diane Dillon
 Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
 Amateur Magazine: Locus (Charlie & Dena Brown, eds.)
 Fan Writer: Dick Geis
 Fan Artist: Alicia Austin

1972

Novel: To Your Scattered Bodies Go, by Philip Jose Farmer
 Novella: "The Queen of Air and Darkness," by Poul Anderson
 Short Story: "Inconstant Moon," by Larry Niven
 Dramatic Presentation: A Clockwork Orange
 Amateur Magazine: Locus (Charlie & Dena Brown, eds.)
 Professional Magazine: Fantasy & Science Fiction
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Fan Artist: Tim Kirk
 Fan Writer: Harry Warner, Jr.

1973

Novel: The Gods Themselves, by Isaac Asimov
 Novella: "The Word for World is Forest," by Ursula K. Le Guin
 Novelette: "Goat Song," by Poul Anderson
 Short Story: "Eurema's Dam," by R. A. Lafferty, and "The Meeting," by Fred Pohl & C. M. Kornbluth (tie)
 Dramatic Presentation: Slaughterhouse Five
 Professional Editor: Ben Bova (Analog)
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Amateur Magazine: Energumen (Mike & Susan Glicksohn, eds.)
 Fan Writer: Terry Carr
 Fan Artist: Tim Kirk
 John W. Campbell Award: Jerry Pournelle

1974

Novel: Rendezvous with Rama, by Arthur C. Clarke
 Novella: "The Girl Who Was Plugged In," by James Tiptree, Jr.
 Novelette: "The Deathbird," by Harlan Ellison
 Short Story: "The Ones Who Walk Away from Omelas," by Ursula K. LeGuin
 Amateur Magazine: Algol (Andy Porter, ed.) and Science Fiction Review (Dick Geis, ed.) (tie)
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Professional Editor: Ben Bova
 Dramatic Presentation: Sleeper
 Fan Writer: Susan Wood
 John W. Campbell Award: Spider Robinson, Lisa Tuttle (tie)
 Gandalf Award: J. R. R. Tolkien

1975

Novel: The Dispossessed, by Ursula K. LeGuin
 Novella: "A Song for Lya," by George R. R. Martin
 Novelette: "Adrift Just Off the Islets of Langerhans," by Harlan Ellison
 Short Story: "The Holy Man," by Larry Niven
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Professional Editor: Ben Bova
 Amateur Magazine: The Alien Critic (Dick Geis, ed.)
 Dramatic Presentation: Young Frankenstein
 Fan Writer: Dick Geis
 Fan Artist: William Rotsler
 John W. Campbell Award: P. J. Planger
 Grandalf award: Fritz Leiber

1976

Novel: The Forever War, by Joe Haldeman
 Novelette: "The Borderland of Sol," by Larry Niven
 Novella: "Home is the Hangman," by Roger Zelazny
 Short Story: "Catch That Zeppelin!," by Fritz Leiber
 Professional Editor: Ben Bova
 Professional Artist: Frank Kelly Freas
 Dramatic Presentation: A Boy and His Dog (Harlan Ellison, L. Q. Jones)
 Amateur Magazine: Locus (Charlie & Dena Brown, eds.)
 Fan Writer: Dick Geis
 Fan Artist: Tim Kirk
 John W. Campbell Award: Tom Reamy
 Gandalf Award: L. Sprague de Camp

1977

Novel: Where Late the Sweet Birds Sang, by Kate Wilhelm
 Novella: "By Any Other Name," by Spider Robinson, and "Houston, Houston, Do You Read?," by James Tiptree, Jr.
 Novelette: "The Bicentennial Man," by Isaac Asimov
 Short Story: "Tricentennial," by Joe Haldeman
 Dramatic Presentation: No Award
 Amateur Magazine: Science Fiction Review (Dick Geis, ed.)
 Professional Editor: Ben Bova
 Fan Writer: Susan Wood and Dick Geis (tie)
 Professional Artist: Rick Sternbach
 Fan Artist: Phil Foglio
 John W. Campbell Award: C. J. Cherryh
 Gandalf Award: Andre Norton

1978

Novel: Gateway, by Frederik Pohl
 Novella: "Stardance" by Spider & Jeanne Robinson
 Novelette: "Eyes of Amber" by Joan Vinge
 Short Story: "Jeffy is Five" by Harlan Ellison
 Dramatic Presentation: Star Wars
 Professional Editor: George H. Scithers
 Professional Artist: Rick Sternbach
 Amateur Magazine: Locus (Charles & Dena Brown, eds.)
 Fan Writer: Richard E. Geis
 Fan Artist: Phil Foglio
 John W. Campbell Award: Orson Scott Card
 Gandalf Award: Poul Anderson
 Gandalf Best Novel: The Silmarillion

THE FUTURE OF SCIENCE FICTION IS IN FUTURA PAPERBACKS

Titan.

Captive-in a world without end.

John Varley, author of The Ophiuchi Hotline, is widely considered to be the most important young S.F. writer in America.

His latest book Titan takes us into a world within a world.

From the outside it's a massive, wheel-shaped structure slowly orbiting Saturn. So massive that the crew of the NASA probe which discovers it at first believe they've found a twelfth moon.

But when they move in to investigate, their own spacecraft is literally pulled apart, and the crew borne deep inside this strange world. After a period of near total sensory-deprivation, the crew members wake up in an alien, bizarre countryside... an endless landscape inhabited by creatures straight out of the legends.

And at the centre – at the hub of the world – lies its creator.

"Readers who have not yet sampled Varley are missing the wildest and most original science fictional mind of the Seventies." George R.R. Martin

Alien.

In space no one can hear you scream

Hailed as the film sensation of the year by American critics ALIEN is due to be premiered in London during September. Alan Dean Foster's novel is now available in Futura paperback.

The Dosadi Experiment.

It succeeded beyond their wildest nightmares.

This is the new book from Frank Herbert, author of Dune.

For 20 generations, two totally incompatible species have been imprisoned on Dosadi – a hidden planet isolated from all outside contact by the God Wall.

Now, 850 million beings are crammed into one small city in an experiment so monstrous that it threatens the whole galaxy.

But who monitors the experiment... and what, above all, is its purpose?

To find out, a Saboteur Extraordinary is projected through the God Wall – only to discover that he himself is part of the plan.

"Totally credible and told with an ease which belies an extraordinary control over the genre." The Times

"J.R.R. Tolkien and C.S. Lewis are not in Mr Herbert's inventive league... the range is staggering... splendid entertainment, with moral sinew and an astonishing romance." New York Times

Futura, publishers of Joe Haldeman, Alan Dean Foster, Frank Herbert, Larry Niven, Frederik Pohl, Jerry Pournelle, Chris Priest, Spider Robinson, Andrew M Stephenson, John Varley, and THE BATTLESTAR GALACTICA Novels.

Past World Conventions

Year
Convention
Location/Attendance
Guest(s)-of-Honour

1939

Nycon I
New York — 200
Frank R. Paul

1940

Chicon I
Chicago — 128
Edward E. Smith Ph.D.

1941

Denvention
Denver — 90
Robert Heinlein

1946

Pacificon I
Los Angeles — 130
A. E. van Vogt
E. Mayne Hull

1947

Philcon I
Philadelphia — 200
John W. Campbell Jr.

1948

Torcon I
Toronto — 200
Robert Bloch
Bob Tucker

1949

Civention
Cincinnati — 190
Lloyd A. Eshbach
Ted Carnell

1950

Norwescon
Portland — 400
Anthony Boucher

1951

Nolacon
New Orleans — 190
Fritz Leiber

1952

Chicon II
Chicago — 370
Hugo Gernsback

1953

Philcon II
Philadelphia — 750
Willy Ley

1954

SF Con
San Francisco — 700
John W. Campbell Jr.

LITWINCZUK

1955 Clevention
 Cleveland — 380
Isaac Asimov

1956
 Newyorcon
 New York — 850
Arthur C. Clarke

1957
 Loncon I
 London — 268
John W. Campbell Jr.

1958
 Solacon
 Los Angeles — 322
Richard Matheson

1959 Detention
 Detroit — 371
Poul Anderson
John Berry

1960
 Pittcon
 Pittsburgh — 568
James Blish

1961
 Seacon
 Seattle — 300
James Blish

1962
 Chicon III
 Chicago — 950
Theodore Sturgeon

1963
 Discon I
 Washington DC — 800
Murray Leinster

1964
 Pacificon II
 Oakland — 523
Edmond Hamilton
Leigh Brackett
Forrest J. Ackerman

1965
 Loncon II
 London — 350
Brian Aldiss

1966
 Tricon
 Cleveland — 850
L. Sprague de Camp

1967
 Nycon III
 New York — 1500
Lester del Rey
Bob Tucker

1968
 Baycon
 Oakland — 1430
Philip Jose Farmer
Walt Daugherty

1969
 St Louiscon
 St Louis — 1534
Jack Gaughan
Eddie Jones

1970 Heicon
 Heidelberg — 620
Robert Silverberg
E. C. Tubb
Herbert W. Franke

1971
 Noreascon
 Boston — 1600
Clifford Simak
Harry Warner Jr.

1972
 Lacon
 Los Angeles — 2007
Frederik Pohl
Buck Coulson
Juanita Coulson

1973
 Torcon II
 Toronto — 2900
Robert Bloch
William Rotsler

1974
 Discon II
 Washington DC — 4435
Roger Zelazny
Jay Kay Klein

1975
 Aussiecon
 Melbourne — 606
Ursula K. Le Guin
Susan Wood
Mike Glicksohn
Donald Tuck

1976 Midamericon
 Kansas City — 2800
Robert Heinlein

1977 Suncon
 Miami Beach — 2050
Jack Williamson

1978 Iguanacon
 Phoenix
Harlan Ellison
Bill Bowers

1979
 Seacon '79
 Brighton
Fritz Leiber
Brian Aldiss
Harry Bell
Bob Shaw

ALBACON

31st Annual British
Science Fiction Convention

80

April 4-6, 1980
Albany Hotel,
Glasgow

Guest of Honour: Colin Kapp
Fan Guest of Honour: Jim Barker
Toastmaster: James White

Full details from
GERRY GILLIN, 9 Dunnottar Street
Ruchazie, Glasgow G33

Dreams of Empire

We invited some of our favourite writers to write about their favourite sf experience. Our only stipulation was: make it British. We were most definitely not after jingoistic tub-thumping or parochial self-gratulation but pieces which we hoped might reveal the maybe-overlooked core of material at the heart of the living entity that is current sf, and which would certainly tell us as much about our guest contributors as their chosen subjects. You're invited to sample this sampling; we hope you'll find it as intriguing and enlightening a celebration of lost-and-found loves as we do.

Mark Adlard

Five years ago I noticed, from the annual exchange of cards at Xmas, that one of my old friends was living in a place called West Kirby. This set up such a resonance in my head that I tried to quieten it by consulting a map. It was on the Wirral and looked upon the Dee. Trumpets added their blare to the clamour in my head as I took down my compound Dover edition of Last and First Men and Star Maker, and confirmed that the preface had been written in West Kirby.

West Kirby is a tiny place. My friend and his wife are well-read. So I expected to receive a long letter when I wrote to ask for village tales about the great man. After all, he'd been dead for only 25 years. Alas! My friends hadn't heard of him nor, it appeared, had any of their neighbours.

I wrote again to say that I was asking about a man who was not merely the greatest sf writer ever, but one of the greatest writers of modern times. They must try harder.

Long after I'd given up hope of hearing anything they sent me a large piece from their local paper. It was about a local lady, Agnes Stapledon, widow of a writer, who was about to celebrate her 80th birthday. She was the British president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and active in a dozen other things besides.

I immediately wrote to ask if I might call upon her. She replied to say that it would be a dreadful thing to drag me between opposite corners of England (I had a job in Kent) but that she was frequently in London on business, which would make it easier for me to call on her there. On the other hand, she said, if I wanted to see her where . . .

I hastened up to West Kirby like a jolly lover, hungry to look into the eyes of her whom Stapledon left when he went out onto the hill and to whom he returned after his encounter with the Star Maker.

It didn't displease me to discover that the Americans had already started to beat a path to that door.

JOHN BRUNNER

Rudyard Kipling? That unprepossessing guy with enormous glasses and a walrus moustache, the spokesman of Empire?

Oh yes. Very yes indeed! Among the most vivid sf images of my childhood I'd count the stricken dirigible of With the Night Mail, storm-tossed above the grey Atlantic with her engineer gone crazy, while the captain of the rescuing Royal Mail airship shouted the order to "shunt the lift out of him with a spanner!"

He was wrong about dirigibles, but in the companion story As Easy as ABC he got several things very right: the decline of democracy into mob rule, the fact that racial hatred has no place in a civilised society, the need to cut the birthrate if Earth's resources were to be preserved . . . and all that well before the First World War.

He has influenced sf writers as disparate as Poul Anderson and Arthur Porges, and at Boskone in 1978 a charming Quaker girl sang me the whole of his Pict's Song from memory.

I once did a rough analysis of his published work, and found that approximately one in six or seven of his short stories are sf or fantasy. They range from the early A Conference of the Powers, in which a bridge-builder in India overhears the gods debating whether to destroy his masterpiece spanning the Ganges, through those astonishing tours-de-force without human characters like '007 (railway engines) and The Ship that Found Herself (steel plates and girders and the ship's cat!), by way of speculative sf like In the Same Boat (a man and a woman discover the nightmares haunting them refer to real events which occurred while they were in the womb) and The Finest Story in the World (a young man remembers rowing in a Roman galley, and with Leif Eriksson, and . . .), right up to the complex, subtle stories of his last years where he left his readers far behind, like The Children of the Zodiac.

He also wrote the classic ghosts-in-reverse story, They, and the deadpan fantasies of Just So Stories, and in Puck of Pook's Hill and Rewards and Fairies he brought the people of past ages forward to the present, and he wrote about sea-serpents and lost races and mysterious curses and in possibly my favourite of all his stories, Wireless, he had the soul of Keats strike an echo across a century of time in a poor, lovelorn, tubercular assistant in a chemist's shop while an experimental friend was trying to eavesdrop on the Navy.

Kipling, who was possibly the most completely equipped writer ever to tackle the short-story form in the English language, exemplifies the too-often overlooked fact that in our literary tradition there has never been a hard-and-fast line between realistic and fantastic. Indeed, he was a past master at making the fantastic seem credible.

KEN BULMER

H. G. Wells is the name most frequently and honourably associated with the scientific romance, imaginative literature, sf, and he has exercised the most influence on writers whether they are aware of it or not. Every writer one reads influences one towards or away from what he is saying. I have always believed that sf stands above petty national boundaries. I do not deny the importance of regional literature to the consciousness of nations or national literature to the understanding of neighbours; but these fictions, despite their value, remain fictions of the past. One of the strengths of sf is that it can take an overview of global affairs through the emotions of individuals so that the purely parochial becomes somewhat twee. The international nature of music has much to teach in this area. The term 'mid-Atlantic' is used in a derogatory fashion these days, yet it is useless to deny the profound impact of American sf, so to dismiss the idea of Anglo-American, mid-Atlantic literature is mindless chauvinism. This mingling and mutual enrichment of cultures is

AUSTRALIAN SF NEWS

THE PEOPLE WHO GAVE YOU AUSSIECON ARE BIDDING AGAIN TO HOLD THE WORLD CONVENTION
IN AUSTRALIA IN 1983

SCIENCE FICTION BOOKS ARE BEING WRITTEN
BY AUSTRALIAN BORN OR BASED AUTHORS SUCH AS GEORGE TURNER, LEE HARDING, A. BERTRAM CHANDLER
AND CHERRY WILDER, AND MANY OTHER AUSTRALIAN WRITERS ARE BREAKING INTO PRINT

ON THE PUBLISHING SCENE NORSTRILIA PRESS,
PAUL COLLINS (VOID PUBLICATIONS), AND HYLAND
HOUSE ARE PUBLISHING SF IN AUSTRALIA

AUSTRALIAN SF NEWS IS REPORTING AND REVIEWING THE SF SCENE IN AUSTRALIA AND THE REST OF THE WORLD

ASK THE AUSSIES AT SEACON ALL ABOUT AUSTRALIAN
SCIENCE FICTION AND THE 1983 WORLD CON BID,
AND WHY NOT SUBSCRIBE TO AUSTRALIAN SF NEWS
NOW. SEE MERV BINNS AT SEACON FOR DETAILS
OR SEND *$6.00 AUSTRALIAN ($12.00 AIRMAIL) TO SPACE AGE BOOKS, 305/307 SWANSTON STREET, MELBOURNE, VICTORIA, 3000, AUSTRALIA

* £3.00/£6.00 AT SEACON

surely one aim of sf? The global overview of sf must question the intention of offshoots like 'English' sf and 'Jewish' sf and 'Russian' sf. Qualities vary, as is natural, and the intrinsic value of a richly diversified spectrum of cultures must not be confused with blind national pride. The oral traditions of jungle peoples praying to metal birds which drop food parcels to them is surely apposite. I suppose one of the great moments of sf for me comes at the end of the H. G. Wells' film 'Things to Come'. And we are to understand that there are much greater issues at stake than merely going out to the stars - "Which is it to be, Passworthy? Which is it to be?"

MY FAVOURITE SF WRITER by M. J. Moorcock (39)

My favourite sf writer is J. G. Ballard. I like him because he combines exotic symbolism with psychological insight. He uses sophisticated and individualistic images to make an essentially moral investigation of some of our specific contemporary experiences. With William Burroughs, who shares Ballard's relish for twentieth century language but is by no means as disciplined and methodical a writer, he has been a seminal influence on much pre-70s fiction and poetry. Ballard has married form and content so that one reflects the other: and in this sense he is a 'poetic' writer. In recent years he has also refined his language, producing some of the most polished and concentrated prose we have in English. As a literary figure (rather than as an sf writer) he was in the vanguard of that fundamentally romantic renaissance which could be seen to have had its origins in the British sf magazines of the 50s and 60s but which has since given us a good deal of excellent novels and poetry. Among those who acknowledge this debt are Robert Nye, D. M. Thomas, George MacBeth, Giles Gordon, Brigid Brophy, Angus Wilson, Alan Burns, Angela Carter, and many others. Artists and musicians have frequently drawn inspiration from Ballard in particular and he is recognised abroad as one of our leading writers. It is perhaps not insignificant that the girl-friend of Crazy Charlie, president of the local Notting Hill Hell's Angels, last year changed her name to Vermilion Sands. Ballard's insights into the nature of urban experience, the deep geography and geology of our great cities, the 'psychic landscapes' which are wholly human in their origin, have created a fiction which, in my view, is profoundly coherent and in harmony with the times. I feel that this can be said of very little generic science fiction, most of which is evidently anti-urban and reactionary in its rejection of the realities which the majority of us in Western Europe and the United States encounter in our daily lives. The city is the future; without the city there is no human progress in the generally accepted sense; we must learn to live in it and with it and to understand our own relationships and functions in its terms; if we could succeed we could emerge with our human sensibilities not only intact, but developed and expanded. I believe that Ballard's fiction helps us to understand ourselves and the roles we lead in an environment which is increasingly under human control and which therefore becomes, increasingly, a human responsibility. The important virtue of Ballard's work, therefore, lies in its ability to define and clarify that responsibility. He once said that science fiction could not be taken seriously until it earned 'the moral authority of a literature won from experience'. I believe that he, in common with a few others who began by exploring the literary possibilities of generic sf forms, can now claim that authority for his fiction.

Richard Cowper

Few readers of William Golding's Lord of the Flies or The Inheritors will fail to recognise that they are in the presence of a major literary talent. Golding forces his reader to accept his imaginative perspectives in a way which is wholly remarkable. He achieves this end by means of a series of brilliantly observed and sharply focused pictures. The visual impact of his work is probably the most intense of any novelist writing in English today. Having persuaded us of the physical existence both of his characters and the natural settings in which he has placed them, Golding then proceeds, with an almost diabolic subtlety, to undermine our own pre-conceptions of the nature of mankind.

His themes are vast — archetypal; but what sets his novels and stories apart from almost all other works of Science Fiction (and make no mistake they are works of sf) is that the themes and the characters are inseparable. The marooned children Ralph, Piggy, Jack and Simon of Lord of the Flies, the doomed Neanderthals Lok and Fa of The Inheritors, are as close to being living, breathing, and above all suffering creatures as it is possible to contrive out of words alone. We feel their agony in our bones and recognise it for our own.

Golding's novels have been called 'allegories of the human situation' but they are much more than that. The ideas are never allowed to dominate the story. The books are organic wholes. Their creator's own intense involvement with the situations he has imagined drives the allegorical element into the background where it becomes truly symbolic. Golding works in the classic tradition of 'scientific romance' and, in my opinion, is one of the very finest novelists ever to do so.

DAVE LANGFORD

This unworthy and noticeably low-born inscriber of paltry imaginings considers it convenient to mask the concavity of his admittedly ill-arranged notions with artifices unobtrusively purloined from those more radiant tale-tellers whose refined and pearl-like utterances strike resonant chords within even the granite-walled hearts of the publishers of printed leaves, thereby releasing a not-wholly-to-be-despised inadequacy of silver cash . . . For did the sage A-Non not let fall the gilded remark, "Radiant and eye-gladdening plumage as of the blossoming cherry tree tends notably to lend its parent fowl a like respect"?

Thus and thus matters stand; yet whilst lurking incapably in his rat-forsaken hovel, even the presence of his peach-complexioned one of the inner chamber cannot conceal from this one of the detestable superiority of the effete Ernest Bramah and his doglike minion Kai Lung in their dextrous juxtaposition of classical ornateness with a wholly efficacious process of gravity-removal. The ruffians and brigands who without doubt form the greater part of the present assemblage will not fail to extract a certain coarse merriment from the inexorable manner in which the narratives of the repellently fluent Kai Lung tend towards the humiliation of unusually grasping and round-bodied mandarins; the more high-minded will discreetly savour the many perfectly-balanced analogies which adorn the printed leaves and produce an agreeable sensation as of continuously discharged fireworks accompanied by the attentions of well-formed maidens.

"Adequately set forth, the history of the Princess Taik and of the virtuous youth occupies all the energies of an agile storyteller for seven weeks," said Kai Lung upon one memorable occasion; a similar difficulty attends this one's recital of Bramah's intimidating superiorities within this much-flattened space. The politely uncomplaining reader will forgive this one's effrontery in merely referring him to The Wallet of Kai Lung and its ever-to-be-praised successors.

PENGUIN SCIENCE FICTION

The best of all possible worlds

Recently into orbit — Alfred Bester, Fred and Geoffrey Hoyle, Garry Kilworth, Sheila MacLeod, Pamela Sargent and Robert Sheckley.

Standing by on the launch-pad:

In August — Frederick Pohl and C.M. Kornbluth.

In September — Arkady and Boris Strugatsky, Fred and Geoffrey Hoyle, and Pohl and Kornbluth.

In October — Olaf Stapledon, Michael Moorcock and another from the Hoyles.

In November — more from Alfred Bester.

And with our dazzling new covers by Adrian Chesterman,
we've never looked this good before.

Reach for the Stars with Penguin at Season '79.

LARRY NIVEN

I last saw Arthur Clarke on a TV screen, broadcasting direct from Sri Lanka, while Explorer I passed through Jupiter system. He was magnificent. He could persuade Senator Proxmire to support the space program, if that moron would listen.

For the past twenty-odd years now, I've been reading everything Arthur Clarke was willing to write.

Anything that any writer in the field can do, Arthur Clarke can do it as well or better. But the thing he does best is something I've been trying to learn ever since I started writing. He tells of big things . . . well, we all tell of big things. But Clarke can make you feel it.

He writes of cities ancient beyond imagination – and makes the reader's imagination capable of grasping it.

He tells of geological ages passing, and makes you see it.

Will you ever forget that moment in CHILDHOOD'S END, in the museum of the Overlords, when Jan Rodricks looked down upon a single gigantic eye?

Or the rows of skyscraper-sized pillars on the Earth's Moon in THE CITY AND THE STARS. Their purpose is unguessable, until Alvin finds two pillars broken outward. It's a cage . . .

Remember the lights coming on in Rama? Rama was big enough to stretch anyone's imagination. But I remember a subtler work, a short story in which archeologists worked to uncover the tracks of a Tyrannosaurus Rex. Engineers nearby were building a machine that they said would look into the tyrant lizard's past. The dinosaur's tracks grew wider and wider as they dug; it had been bounding in pursuit of a fleeing prey. The machine was about to be tested . . . and finally the tracks of the prey appeared: a zigzag pattern of tires from the engineers' jeep.

And I remember a feghoot, NEUTRON TIDE. It was a reference to two of my own stories . . . and it appeared some months after Arthur Clarke told me he was a Niven fan. I knew I had arrived then. Oh, boy, did that make me feel good.

Frederik Pohl

It's very hard to choose my "favourite" British science-fiction person, because there are so very many contenders. I grew up on British fantasies, like E. Nesbit's wonderful Five Children and It, and Rudyard Kipling's superb, and neglected, sf. I have both admiration and love for a number of British editors, like John Bush and the late Ted Carnell, both dear friends as well as brilliant professionals. And the number of British sf writers in my private pantheon is immense, from H. G. Wells, unquestionably the father of us all, to Brian Aldiss, by way of John Brunner, Anthony Burgess, Arthur Clarke, Aldous Huxley, Kingsley Amis, W. Olaf Stapledon, S. Fowler Wright and any number of others.

Every one of them has a certifiable claim to be at the top of any list. But there is one more, and I think he is the one whose absence in my life might have left the biggest gap. Curiously I met him only once.

The name he was best known by was John Wyndham. For about a decade, while he was writing such marvellous books as The Day of the Triffids and The Midwich Cuckoos, he was as close a friend as one can have by correspondence. John's power of invention was great, and he was quite incapable of writing a bad sentence. But what I liked most about him as a writer was the marvellous humanity in every line. He was often witty, but never unkind.

There are writers who disappoint upon meeting in the flesh – maybe most writers do, because we all put the best of us down on paper and sometimes there is not enough left to bother with. Not John Wyndham. The person you can see behind the novels is the same person who lived in the real world, and when he left it a little over a decade ago it became much poorer.

CHRISTOPHER PRIEST

For reasons of personal nostalgia: the novels of John Wyndham, especially KRAKEN, TRIFFIDS and CHRYSALIDS. I read Wyndham long before I had even heard of sf. Wyndham obeyed H. G. Wells's dictum, and domesticated the bizarre, describing it in the mellow cadences of BBC English. Being young, foolish and deeply entrenched in the middle classes I approved of all this, and was somewhat mortified to hear him described as a science fiction writer. However, years later, when I came across the hard stuff, I understood at last.

My secret vice is enjoying the novels of Charles Eric Maine. Maine is a neglected and apparently despised author, one whose work has been overtaken by trendy modern stuff. Unlike other writers of his period (he was prolific throughout the '50s and early '60s) he was not sufficiently established to keep an audience of his own, and most of his books are now out of print. Maine's books have a number of old-fashioned virtues: crisp, workmanlike characterizations, a considerable degree of narrative energy, and, best of all, lively and surprising plots that crackle like new cellophane. My favourites: TIME-LINER, HIGH VACUUM, CALCULATED RISK and THE TIDE WENT OUT.

But the one British sf book I value above all others is NON-STOP by Brian Aldiss. This is partly for personal reasons (I read it at an impressionable age), but also because it is a novel that has had, I think, an underground influence on the way our sf is written here and understood abroad. NON-STOP built a bridge. It was an American type of sf novel – written with all the vigour and dash of the best American authors – but it remained a quintessentially British and personal book. Not Aldiss's best-written novel, nor his best all-round novel, it remains one of his most enjoyable and (gulp) exciting books. It gains stature with age and bears a number of re-readings. It has, to my knowledge, inspired a large number of the writers who followed; Aldiss was showing the Brits how to be themselves in a popular and commercial genre.

BOB SHAW

The science fiction bug really got me when I was a boy during World War II and the sole supply of the stuff was one very slim British reprint of ASTOUNDING every second month. In those days the concepts of science fiction and America were intimately bound together in my mind, and it was with some surprise I learned that my all-time favourite story from ASTOUNDING's golden age had been written by a British author.

That author was A. Bertram Chandler and the story was "Giant Killer", which appeared as the cover story on ASF's October 1945 edition.

The thing which addicted me to science fiction was that most beautiful of sensations – the feeling of one's mind being stretched – and "Giant Killer" was a mind-stretcher if ever there was one. In those days simplistic notions about atomic radiation and mutants were exercising a powerful fascination over sf writers and readers, and Jack Chandler's story of mutated rats inhabiting the insulation of a starship was perfectly timed. The events are related from the point of view of the rats who – and this is what gave Chandler's story the status of a parable – although mutants themselves have conservative ideas about the degree of change that is socially acceptable, and one of their most

RED LION  INN/SEATAC

Joins with Northwest Science Fiction Society

in their invitation

to

Seattle, Washington

for the 1981

World Science Fiction Convention.

sacred tribal ceremonies is the slaughter and devouring of all newborn "Different Ones".

The giants of the title are, of course, the crew of the ship, and bearing in mind the intense human chauvinism of the sf of the day it is a tribute to Chandler that most of the reader's sympathy lies with Weema, who dares all to save her male child Shrick, who has been born hairless and with a bulging dome of a head which resembles those of the giants. Shrick is truly a proto-human, for he goes on to kill giants – an act of awesome presumption which results in the annihilation of all his race as the starship plunges into a sun.

Chandler's narrative is strongly plotted and perfectly told, embellished with concepts which were fresh in their day, but it is the moods of "Giant Killer" which have haunted me for more than thirty years and have influenced my own writing. The choking claustrophobia of the rats' world, their ultimate helplessness which stems from the inadequacy of their mythological view of the universe in the face of man's scientific rationale, the sense of Life's age-old battles having to be fought at all levels of the macro-micro spectrum. Above all, because we see the crew of the starship from an alien viewpoint, the story makes us wonder all over again about the austere compulsions which drive some men to live as wanderers, forever in transit in the metal microcosms we call ships.

Andrew Stephenson

We tend to value our origins. That first SF book often bears a disproportionately large burden of misplaced affection, simply because it was the first. (Of course, this applies to other fields of human activity, too.) If life followed a smooth development curve, I could designate a single work of SF as the one I value most. Really, it's impossible to do so. Furthermore, this insistence on Britishness is a millstone: "SF" has long been so international that I am forced back to an artificially early time, though I would gladly include the names and works of contemporaries abroad, quite apart from the Brits whose blushes I intend to spare.

In The City And The Stars, Arthur Clarke wrote one of the quintessential sense-of-wonder "hard SF" stories. In it we discover themes to which he has since returned, particularly that of the power of rational thought. We are shown an everlasting city, Diaspar: self-renewing amid universal decay, it amounts to a tangible manifestation of changeless physical laws. Only in Diaspar, governed by intellectual forces (the central computer and its almost magical machines) – and in one other nearby oasis of life, where a different kind of mental power rules – has the slow, almost clinical, degeneration been prevented. It seems significant that Clarke's later works appeal so frequently to the thesis that Science can conquer all; for in Diaspar we see its apotheosis. And it is a pity that, from a story with such an essentially human resolution, Clarke progressed to others in which the human element plays a subservient role, as if he preferred to follow Vanamonde, the disembodied pure intellect encountered in City, rather than concern himself with the fates of Diaspar's citizens.

So I value this book for two reasons: for the joy that the reading of it brought, at a moment when far worse was around to put me off SF, and at moments since; and for the auctorial warning it offers.

IAN WATSON – Barry Bayley

Barry Bayley writes metaphysical space opera, packing into short stories or unravelling through longer adventure novels, whole alternative ontologies.

How about some stellar freebooters capturing a crystal ball constructed by ancient alien beings – or extradimensional entities – which contains within it the original of our galaxy, ours being merely the macroscopic copy? How about if the cosmos was solid and worlds were simply caves in it? How about if our science is all a looney misconception and the ether actually exists – so that one can sail schooners and windjammers from world to world (not boring old ram-jet spaceships either, but proper sailing ships) – and what's more, what if alchemy were true and the philosopher's stone can be achieved. How about exploring the old adage (is there one?) 'clothes make the man' unto the ultimate persuasive absurdity of sentient suits that control people and are part of a galactic conspiracy by vegetable fibre – tossing in, along the way, cultures who aren't even aware that they have bodies?

Bayley is our Borges, working with the grand old pulp tropes of space battles, groaning overdrives, the dense world of The Hub, intrepid captains, gambling satellites, cynical yet idealistic adventurers with pearl-handled lasers – and renewing, revivifying the cosmic ding-dong, notching it up into metaphysics where it belonged all along. Bayley writes a witty, technicolour eccentric experimental philosophy in each new tale. He's what sf is all about at heart: imagining three impossible things before breakfast and making them all come true. And stick together.

Since he's getting better all the time, I elect his latest novel Space Winds (sailing ships and alchemy) as one I will certainly reread with joy. At the end of his book Alchemists and Gold Jacques Sadoul proclaims, "Tomorrow I shall go out and buy an agate mortar." Well, as of the day before yesterday, I am already writing an sf novel about alchemy . . .

FANTASY, AN EARLY OMNI?
by James White

Just after the Second World War a new and regrettably short-lived British sf magazine hit the newsagents with the impact of a thirty-three years premature OMNI. It was the Walter Gillings edited FANTASY, a beautifully produced mag with restrained, tasteful covers and interior illos, and a list of contributors which included Arthur C. Clarke, the late, great Eric Frank Russell and lots of other mainly local names some of whom made it and some who did not, and all for the price of one shilling!

Science-fiction reading in the UK at this time was at subsistence level with the British Reprint Edition of ASTOUNDING all that was available during the war, and the Bergey girls on the covers of THRILLING WONDER STORIES and STARTLING STORIES, which were beginning to come over from the US, causing parental difficulties for innocent young teenagers like myself. So I can well remember buying FANTASY openly, reading it publicly in trolley-buses, and not hiding it under my mattress. And I can remember the kick I got out of reading stories which were set, not in strange, exotic places like the Mojave Desert or San Francisco, but right next door – Eric Frank Russell's Relic, I remember, took place in the Isle of Man!

My very first letter of comment was written to the editor of FANTASY, and it was published. As a direct result of this a Belfast sf reader called Walter A. Willis wrote to me, and shortly afterwards his house became the regular meeting place of a fan group which included Walt, George Charters, Bob Shaw, John Berry and myself. Later Walt Willis was to be generally acclaimed as fandom's greatest wit (although modestly he insists that the fans were only half right), and as for Bob Shaw and James White . . . Wally Gillings, the world may never forgive you for what happened as a result of printing that loc.

FANTASY CENTRE

43 Station Road, Harlesden, London NW10 4UP, England.

Telephone 01-965 3643

SCIENCE FICTION and FANTASY Specialists

WE HAVE A LARGE STOCK OF

New paperbacks and hardcover books including a selection of American publications

out-of-print books
back issues of magazines including many rare titles

VISIT THE SHOP OR WRITE FOR LISTS

Shop Hours
10.30 to 6.00
Monday
to Saturday

NO ONGOING IRREVERSIBLE
MELT DOWN SITUATION
WILL GENERATE A TERMINATION
MODE AT YOUNG ARTISTS

YOUNG ARTISTS REPRESENT
THE WORLD'S FINEST IN SF ILLUSTRATION

Jim Burns
Richard Clifton-Dey
Alan Daniels
Les Edwards
Chris Foss (USA only)
Bob Fowke
Linda Garland
Peter Goodfellow
John Harris
Colin Hay
Stuart Hughes
Angus McKie
Terry Oakes
Tony Roberts
Peter Tybus

- ... you think JEPEETS knock spots off hovercraft
- ... SPACE TRAINS beat Space Shuttles ...
- ... ANASTASIA means more than a Russian Princess
- ... you've got the slightest idea what we're THORKing about

you ought to be in ASTRAL

THE INTERNATIONAL DAN DARE CLUB

Meetings • Newsletter • Library • Contacts

talk to ADRIAN PERKINS [-the MEKON of SEACON]
on 'phone him on CAMBRIDGE (0223) 43924

SEACON'S SPECIAL ART EXHIBITS

We are fortunate at Seacon '79 in having, in addition to the usual open-to-all Art Show, two independently-staged Art Exhibitions, representing the best in British-based professional science-fiction and fantasy illustration.

The Dragon's Dream/Paper Tiger Art Exhibition will take place in Hall 6 (see exhibition hall plans, page 48). This exhibit will also be open to the general public, so it is essential to wear your convention badge/identification when in transit between this exhibit and the Hotel Metropole; if you do not, your right to entry to the convention facilities may well be challenged by on-site security.

Dragon's Dream was launched by the publication of Roger Dean's 'Views' in 1975. It introduced a format that was extraordinary at that time, and has become the hallmark of Dragon's Dream books. Large, full page colour reproductions are married with informative and lively texts, to produce a style that reflects the immediacy of film production techniques. Dragon's Dream publishes books that reflect contemporary, popular art, especially in the field of science-fiction, and comic strip illustration, and produces them to a standard that has attracted the best artists in these fields.

Paper Tiger is perhaps best known for books like 'Album Cover Album' and 'Walk Away Rene', which gave record sleeve art, and modern commercial graphics in general, richly-deserved recognition. But the company also publishes books on astrology, 'Sword and Sorcery' illustration, and fantastic natural history. In its new list, Paper Tiger aims to revive the illustrated story-book, using the best contemporary writers and artists.

The following Dragon's Dream/Paper Tiger artists are represented in this exhibit:

Chris Achilleos

CHRIS ACHILLEOS

Since 1969, Chris Achilleos has become one of the foremost fantasy illustrators, mainly of book jackets featuring science-fiction and "Sword and Sorcery" tales. He cites as influences the Greek myths of his childhood, Frank Bellamy's "Eagle" strips, and American comic imports. He has lived in England since 1960.

Paper Tiger published an anthology of his work, 'Beauty and the Beast', in 1978, and will publish a portfolio of his work this year.

ROBERT BEER

Robert Beer has studied Tibetan Thangka painting in India and Nepal. His work reveals a deep knowledge of Oriental religious art and iconography. He is currently illustrating 'The Loom of Light', legends of the Mahasiddhas, translated by Keith Dowman, to be published by Paper Tiger in 1979.

JOHN BLANCHE

John Blanche's artistic influences and interests are: "J.M.W. Turner, Arthur Rackham, Aubrey Beardsley, Edmund Dulac, Kay Nielson, Charles and William Heath Robinson". He has illustrated 'The Prince and the Woodcutter' by Henry Wolff, to be published by Paper Tiger in 1979.

ROGER DEAN FLIGHTS OF ICARUS (COVER)

ROGER DEAN

Roger Dean has produced designs for furniture, architecture, transportation systems and mobile stages; but it was through his record sleeve designs that he first caught the public eye. In 1975 he formed a company, Dragon's Dream, to publish 'Views', a book of his work. Since then, Dragon's Dream, and its off-shoot, Paper Tiger, have been producing and publishing books of contemporary illustration and graphic design.

JIM FITZPATRICK

Jim Fitzpatrick has lectured on Celtic Art and Mythology in Europe and the United States. He writes and speaks Gaelic, and his work owes much to the intricacy of Celtic manuscript design. He admits to the influence of Harry Clarke, the designer and book illustrator; but his large collection of comic books also has a bearing on his style. Jim Fitzpatrick illustrated and published 'Celtia' in 1976. His illustrated version of the Irish legends 'The Book of Conquests' is published by Paper Tiger, and he is at present working on a sequel.

CHRIS FOSS

Chris Foss does not confine himself to Science Fiction illustration. He paints aircraft, tanks, ships and people with equal skill and power; yet his Science Fiction artwork has established him as the originator of the huge, riveted spaceship/city. He has worked on concepts and visualisations for movie projects. A book of his work, '21st Century Foss', was published by Dragon's Dream in 1978. He is currently working on an illustrated version of Asimov's 'Foundation' trilogy, to be published by Dragon's Dream in 1980.

DICK FRENCH

Dick French lists his interests as: "Reading, films, theatre, opera, music and cycling". His work has been widely exhibited in England, France and Belgium. At present, he is working on an illustrated version of J.G. Ballard's 'Terminal Beach', to be published this year by Paper Tiger. This is to be followed by a companion volume, 'Drowned World'.

PETER GOODFELLOW

Peter Goodfellow has been working as a freelance illustrator since 1972. His work shows a strong interest in Symbolist and Surrealist art. At the moment, he is working on illustrations for 'Absolute Elsewhere', a novel by Donald Lehmkuhl, to be published in 1980.

JEFFREY JONES

Jeffrey Jones started his art career as a comic book illustrator; one of his strips, 'IDYL', ran for four years in 'National Lampoon' magazine. A collection of 'IDYL' is to be published by Dragon's Dream this Summer. In his recent work he has concentrated on paintings for book covers, book illustration and posters. He cites Whistler as a major artistic influence. Jeffrey Jones is one of the group of New York based artists whose work is featured in 'The Studio', to be published this year by Dragon's Dream, who are preparing an anthology of his work, 'The Art of Jeffrey Jones', to be published in 1980.

PETER JONES

When he is not Art Directing collections of books for European publishers, or designing Science Fiction book covers and graphics for T.V. and film, Peter Jones enjoys: "Ballet, theatre, Gordon's London Special Dry Gin, Johann Strauss, Eric Satie, Mendelssohn, Blues, Ritmeester half corona cigars and Alien Beings". He cites Noguchi (an oriental sculptor), Norman Rockwell, Dorothea Tanning, David Hockney and Frank R. Paul as influences on his work. He is at present illustrating a book project for Paper Tiger.

MICHAEL WILLIAM KALUTA

Michael Wm. Kaluta has drawn comic strips, illustrated Science Fiction novels, and designed posters; at the moment he is working on a new illustrated version of the book 'Metropolis'. He mentions Toulouse-Lautrec, Klimt, Beardsley, Krenkel, Williamson and Frazetta as some of his stylistic influences. He is one of four contributors of 'The Studio', to be published this Summer by Dragon's Dream.

CHRIS FOSS

DICK FRENCH

ROUND THE BEND

PETER JONES THE UNHOLY CITY

PETER GOODFELLOW

DOCTOR BRODIE'S REPORT

JEFFREY JONES

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

ALAN LEE

UNTITLED

SYD MEAD

SPACE WRECK

ALAN LEE

Alan Lee's work combines powerful vision with delicacy and restraint in execution. He admires 19th Century painters in general, but singles out the Pre-Raphaelites, Burne-Jones, Alma Tadema and Arnold Böcklin for particular praise. He has recently completed, with Brian Froud, a book entitled 'Fairies', which is published by Souvenir Press in the U.K. and Harry N. Abrams in the U.S. He is currently illustrating 'The Mabinogion', to be published in 1981.

A.T. MANN

A. T. Mann has worked as an architectural designer in New York and Rome, and travelled extensively through Europe, North Africa and overland to India. There he developed an interest in mandala painting and astrology. He practices astrology in London, where he has lived since 1973. A founder member of Phenomenon Publications, he has published since 1974 four volumes of the Phenomenon Book of Calendars, two of which were published in England by Paper Tiger, who also published 'The Round Art' in 1978. He is at present working on a textbook of astrology, 'The Divine Plot'.

SYD MEAD

Syd Mead is a consultant visualiser of the future. In the 1960s he devised possible technological styling for producers of basic industrial materials, such as U.S. Steel, U.S. Gypsum, U.S. Plywood, Celanese Corporation, Allis Chalmers and Alcoa, as well as projecting automotive styling for the Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corporation. In 1970, he created 'Syd Mead Incorporated', and now functions as a design consultant for corporations in all parts of the globe. A book of his work, 'Sentinel', will be published by Dragon's Dream in Autumn 1979.

IAN MILLER

The artist Ian Miller most admires is Albrech Dürer, but he identifies with the whole North European Expressionist tradition, from Breughel to James Ensor, from Grünewald to George Grosz. His comic strip fantasies are microcosms of nervous unease; sagas ending with sardonic double-bluffs. He has worked in film animation as well as in book illustration; his designs are featured in 'Wizards', directed by Ralph Bakshi, of 'Fritz the Cat' and 'Heavy Traffic' fame. Dragon's Dream published 'Green Dog Trumpet and Other Stories' in Autumn 1978, and are preparing 'The Secret Art' for publication in Autumn 1979.

DAVID O'CONNOR

David O'Connor contributed to the fantasy anthology 'Flights of Icarus', published by Paper Tiger; for the two works featured in this book, which were originally executed as part of a college project. David O'Connor found the work of Maxfield Parrish particularly inspiring.

HORSEMAN OF DEATH

APOCALYPSE (COVER OF 'ESCHATUS')

BRUCE PENNINGTON

Bruce Pennington is acknowledged as an innovator in the field of Science Fiction imagery. His covers for the New English Library and Corgi Books in the 1960s established him as a 'cult' figure for Science Fiction fans. His visual interpretation of the prophecies of Nostradamus, 'Eschatus', was published by Paper Tiger in 1977.

BARRY WINDSOR-SMITH

Barry Windsor-Smith left England for New York in 1970 - and immediately began drawing the 'Conan' strip for Marvel Comics. In 1974, he founded the 'Gorblimey Press' in order to publish and distribute his own paintings in the form of posters and prints. His work shows his interest in the Pre-Raphaelite painters and their followers, particularly D.G. Rossetti and Burne-Jones. His work is featured in 'The Studio', to be published by Dragon's Dream this year.

DAVID O'CONNOR

LANDSCAPE

BARRY WINDSOR-SMITH

THOTH AMON

PATRICK WOODROFFE

THE ORIENTAL DRAGON-FLY

PATRICK WOODROFFE

"Nothing delights me more than to invent new animal species, to exaggerate their characteristics, to combine them to make hybrids or chimerae".

'Mythopoeikon', a collection of Patrick Woodroffe's paintings and illustrations, was published by Dragon's World in 1977. Paper Tiger will be publishing his new books, 'Tinker' and 'Mickey's New Home', in late 1978. 'The Pentateuch of The Cosmogony', a collaboration with Dave Greenslade, featuring two record albums and a forty eight page book, will be available in 1980.

BERNI WRIGHTSON

Berni Wrightson enjoys reading mystery novels, particularly those of Dashiell Hammet and Raymond Chandler. He also likes watching movies produced before 1950. But his most absorbing interest is herpetology, the study of reptiles. He is a contributor to 'The Studio', to be published this Summer by Dragon's Dream.

UNA WOODRUFF

Una Woodruff is interested in natural history, occult mysticism, ancient civilizations and the cult of pantheism. Her inspiration derives from these preoccupations rather than any particular artistic source. Her ambition is to explore the Amazon. 'Inventorum Natura' will be published by Paper Tiger in Summer 1979.

UNA WOODRUFF

FROM 'INVENTORUM NATURA'

BERNI WRIGHTSON

DIPLODOCUS

THE EAGLE SERIES:
DAN DARE VOLUME I

Dan Dare, Pilot of the Future was the lead feature in Eagle, the revolutionary British boys' comic of the 1950s and early 1960s. Dragon's Dream is reprinting a series of complete Dan Dare stories from the 1950s starting with 'The Man From Nowhere', in which Dan travels outside the Solar System for the first time.

Other features and strips from Eagle, including many Frank Bellamy creations such as 'Heros The Spartan' and 'Frazer of Africa' will be published in book form in the near future.

Frank Hampson, creator of Eagle and Dan Dare is acting as consultant to the series.

The Young Artists Exhibit, produced in association with Pierrot Publishing, will share Hall 7 with our Open Art Show, and a special Film Exhibit.

Young Artists is an illustrator's agency which specialises in publishing and was established ten years ago by John Spencer. The artists represented live all over the UK and many work solely in science fiction.

Pierrot Publishing was incorporated in August 1975 by Philip and Jane Dunn to produce illustrated books on an international basis. Since then it has made a name, world wide, as a publisher of high quality books in the science fiction and fantasy fields.

Until recently the bulk of Young Artists' science fiction work has been for paperback covers, but they are now becoming more involved with large-format illustrated books. Pierrot Publishing's PLANET STORY, a novel by Harry Harrison, features 50 pages of colour by Jim Burns, while ALIEN LANDSCAPES includes the work of ten artists, all illustrating different famous fictional planets or worlds.

Young Artists has many more plans for large-format illustrated science fiction books, both for adults and children, while Pierrot Publishing, in addition to their work in the science fiction and fantasy fields, also publishes cookbooks, photographic books, and a variety of general material.

BANTAM SALUTES SEACON '79

THE BRIGHTEST STARS SHINE AT BANTAM BOOKS

- * Isaac Asimov
- * Lloyd Biggle, Jr.
- * James Blish
- * Ray Bradbury
- * Fredric Brown
- * Ed Bryant
- * Lin Carter
- * Michael Crichton
- * John Crowley
- * L. Sprague de Camp
- * Samuel R. Delany
- * Philip K. Dick
- * Gordon R. Dickson
- * Thomas Disch
- * Gordon Eklund
- * Pat Frank
- * Stephen Goldin
- * Phyllis Gotlieb
- * Jack C. Haldeman II
- * Joe Haldeman
- * Harry Harrison
- * Frank Herbert
- * John Hersey
- * Robert E. Howard
- * George Clayton Johnson
- * Daniel Keyes
- * Dean R. Koontz
- * Cyril Kornbluth
- * William Kotzwinkle
- * Tanith Lee
- * Ursula K. Le Guin
- * Anne McCaffrey
- * Walter M. Miller, Jr.
- * Janet Morris
- * Ruth Nichols
- * William F. Nolan
- * Kevin O'Donnell, Jr.
- * Andrew J. Offutt
- * Frederik Pohl
- * Mack Reynolds
- * Frank M. Robinson
- * Joanna Russ
- * Thomas N. Scortia
- * Rod Serling
- * Robert Sheckley
- * Robert Silverberg
- * Kathleen Sky
- * Karl Edward Wagner
- * Kate Wilhelm
- * Gordon Williams

BANTAM BOOKS

666 FIFTH AVENUE, N.Y. N.Y. 10019

Science Fiction and Fantasy Publishing
for Over 25 Years

SPACE ASTRO SURREAL
EXTRA INFINITE No. 3063

by Yvon Cayrel
44 rue des Martyrs
75009 Paris
France

The SCIENCE FICTION & FANTASY books

ACE
BERKLEY
DAW
& PINNACLE

are now available regularly in the U.K.

with AVON
JOVE
STARLOG PHOTOGUIDES
& others under negotiation.

Representing these publishers in the U.K. is The new SF distributor :-

LSP BOOKS LTD.,
8 FARNCOMBE ST.,
FARNCOMBE, GODALMING,
SURREY. GU7 3AY.

Tel: Godalming (04868) 28622.

Write today for wholesale catalogue.

-oOo-

-oOo-

LSP BOOKS LIMITED

8 FARNCOMBE STREET · FARNCOMBE · GODALMING · SURREY · GU7 3AY · TEL: GODALMING (04868) 28622/3
Telex: 919101 Video Teknik London Cables: Litserve, Godalming

SF, Fantasy, Comics, Zines, Specialist publications, original art & related items, wholesale & retail available by mail worldwide, currently serving fandom in over 20 countries.

Send today for free monthly mailing :-

BIYTOO BOOKS,
PLAINS ROAD,
GT. TOTHAM, MALDON,
ESSEX. ENGLAND.

Official Retail Mail Order distributor for LSP BOOKS.

-oOo-

Seacon '79 Membership

Prefix indicates Attending/Supporting status. FO = 'Friend of...'

A1403 Carla Aalicata	A73 Poul Anderson	A1238 Bill Bains
S51 John Abenstein	A1181 David O Anderson	A2658 Charles L Baker
S2793 Robert Abiera	A2453 Paul Anderson	A1295 Chris Baker
A52 Alyson L Abramowitz	A1180 R Jessie Anderson	A3305 Ruth Baker
A3582 A Achterberg	A2578 Ann Anderson	A2886 Scott Baker
A53 Forrest Ackerman	S1589 David Anderson	A3304 Stephen Baker
A54 Wenjayne Ackerman	A2603 I Anderson	A2887 Suzi Evelove Baker
S55 Gregg Ackley	A1358 Lars Andersson	A1529 William M Baker
A1922 Justin Ackroyd	A3122 Erik Andretti	A1706 Bakka
S56 Dana Adams	A1240 Graham Andrews	A2681 Katia Balducci
A3274 Douglas Adams	A1867 S Andrews	A84 Ron Bales
S57 Jonathan Adams	A74 John C Andrews	S83 Brad Balfour
A3483 Lorraine Adams	S75 John W Andrews	S85 Seldon Ball Jr
S58 Merf Adamson	A76 Harry J N Andruschak	A2499 Betty Ballantine
A1919 Terry Adams	A1184 Carol D Angel	A2498 Ian Ballantine
A3608 Ad Astra	A1182 Helen H Angel	A3388 Cathy Ball
S3280 Frank Adey	A1183 Paul Angel	A1387 David Ball
A3444 Tim Adler	S1689 Neville Angrove	A2070 Graham Kimbrough Ball
A3194 Sheryl Adsit	A77 Carol Anndy	A1237 Ted Ball
S1004 David B Affler	A1174 Marcia Anstey	S2170 Gerri Balter
A3470 Joyce Agee	A3263 Neven Anticevic	A2397 Mari Bangs
A59 F L Ahsh	A2992 Kim M Antieau	A1796 Sandro Bani
A3524 Richard Aiken	A1579 Kathleen M Aranyosi	A86 Amanda Bankier
S3494 Robert Ainsbury	A3077 Frances A Archer	A87 J K Bankier
A3326 Robert Aitchison	S3204 Arizona Convention	A2203 M Banks
A3202 Eileen Aitken	Phandom Inc	S2111 Jill Banning
A3525 Arnold Akien	A78 Bobbie Armbruster	A1948 David Bara
A3000 Kathy Albaugh	A2690 Mark Aronson	A88 Terrie La Barbera
A60 Sharron Albert	A2691 Lynne Aronson	A1977 FO-Thomas Barker
A3445 Massimo Albini	A79 Michael R Artrip	A2359 Ian Barber
A1577 Lynn Albin	A1680 Christine Ashby	A1976 Thomas Barber
S1761 Daniel J. Alderson	S1679 Derrick Ashby	A1119 Pierre Barbet
A1 Brian Aldiss	A2250 Michael Ashley	A1647 Stephen Bard
A1705 Raymond Alexander	A1239 Graham Ashley	A1979 Stan Barets
A61 Wanda S Alexander	A12 Chris Atkinson	A2228 Sophie Barets
A1421 Jim Allan	A2340 Blaine S Atkins	A89 Jim Barker
A2563 Richard Allard	A2565 Daniel Atterbom	A1906 Lynn Barker
A2855 Chris Allen	A2856 Mazelle Attiya	A2824 J A Barker
A62 John W Allen	A80 Yoel Attiya	A2906 Stuart A Barkley
S63 M Marsha Allen	A1036 Margaret Austin	A1235 Christopher Barlow
A2287 Hans Joachim Alpers	A2080 Alicia Austin	A1236 Paul Gerard Barlow
A1376 Altair-4-SFHC	A2852 Roger Austin	A1019 Philip Barnard
S2629 P M Altenburg	S3611 Dora Auvil	A2472 Nancy Barnes
A65 Sid Altus	A3380 Emanuela Avallone	A90 Larry Barnes
A67 Phyllis Alvis	A3510 Rene Averett	A1663 Bruce Barnes
A66 Robert Alvis	A81 B Shirley Avery	A2627 Jane Barnes
S2484 Darrell Ambro	A1120 Madame Avice	A3542 P.S. Barnes
A68 Dr William O Ameen Jr	A82 David M Axler	A1575 Robert Barnes
A2938 William H Ameling	S2415 Darla Baack	A1127 Bryan Barrett
A1044 Brian Ameringen	S3096 Scratch Bacharach	A1126 Bryan Barrett
A69 Cliff Amos	A2168 Jean-Paul Bachellier	A1128 Bryan Barrett
A70 Ken Amos	A1814 Pam Baddely	A91 Jeremy A Barry
S71 V Amos	A3128 Jim Baen	A2056 John E Bartelt
A1570 Terry Anastassiou	S3005 Marla S Baer	A2920 Bernice Barth
A72 Karen Anderson	A1373 Mike Bailey	A2933 Carl A Barthelette
A3544 Kevin Anderson	S2511 Lawrence W Bain Jr	S2740 Marie L Bartlett

ARTISTS: ANNOUNCING A CONTEST FOR A NEW ADVERTISEMENT FOR A CHANGE OF HOBBIT: $100.00 FIRST PRIZE--SEND FOR DETAILS!

T. KIRK

"IT'S THAT KIND OF SPECIAL AMBIENCE YOU FIND IN A GOOD PIPE AND TOBACCO SHOP, EXCEPT POST-DATED IN THE FUTURE... INVESTIGATE A CHANGE OF HOBBIT."

- ED BRYANT, VERTEX MAGAZINE

SPECIAL SEARCH SERVICE!

THE OLDEST & BOOKSTORE IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE!

SEND WANT-LISTS!

RARE STUFF!

DIAL: "GREAT SF"

SPECULATIVE FICTION BOOKSTORE

1371 WESTWOOD BLVD. LOS ANGELES, CALIF. U.S.A. 90024

A2329	Linda Bartsch	A1962	Kathleen B Berry	A2217	Warren Book
A92	Martha A Bartter	A1375	Antonio Bertolli	A1725	P Boonstra
S3248	Rich Bartucci	S2048	Lercy F Berven	A2617	Susan Booth
S3372	Filiberto Bassani	A3344	Mark Bessani	A1975	Bouglas Booze
A1101	M S Bassett	A3288	Alfred Bester	A2537	Kjell Borgstrom
A1116	Eric Batard	S107	Chip Bestler	S1539	Alan Bosco
S93	Gary Bateman	A108	Leah Bestler	A138	Robert M Bosma
A3485	Graham Bates	A109	Al de Bettencourt	S137	Mario B Bosnyak
S94	Chris Bates	A2598	Stephanie Bielawski	A139	Alan L Bostick
A2999	Russell Bates	A110	Edward Bielfeldt	A3377	Allegra Bosworth
A1667	David Bath	A3298	Kathleen Bielfeldt	A2801	Per Bothner
A1664	Pauline Bath	S111	Cliff Biggers	S140	Mitchell L Botwin
A95	Randy Bathurst	S112	Susan Biggers	A141	Ron Bounds
S2015	Scott R Bauer	A113	William Bingham	A3058	Elizabeth Bouras
A1912	Virginia Bauer	A114	Bink	A142	Lester Boutillier
A1110	Allen J Baum	A115	Merv Binns	A2723	Ben Bova
A3469	John Baxter	A1745	Adele Birnbaum	A2722	Barbara Bova
A96	Patricia Baxter	A116	Mark Birnbaum	S2506	Deb Bowland
A2060	Mary Ann Beam	A1505	Alistair Birnie	S3037	David Gordon Bowman
A2059	Ray E Beam	A117	David Bischoff	A2685	Jerel M Boyajian
S97	Becky Bearden	A118	Dainis Bisenieks	A3316	Chris Boyce
A2052	Greg Bear	S119	John Bishop	S143	David C Boyce
A2053	Tina Bear	A1553	Gerald Bishop	A2857	Allen Boyd-Newton
S98	Steven Allan Beatty	A120	Alice Blackmun	A2858	Liz Boyd-Newton
A2950	Ed Beauregard	S1887	Tina Black	A3236	Huw Boyt
A2949	Norma Beauregard	A3514	Tracy Blackstone	S144	Cindy K Brackett
S99	Alan R Bechtold	A2533	Paul Blackwell	A1231	Marion Zimmer Bradley
A3349	Simon A C Beeson	A1057	Edward Blair-Wilkins	A2990	Deanne L Brady
A1079	Paul Begg	A2667	E Michael Blake	A125	Lea C Braff
A1215	Lynn P Behrns	A121	Mike Blake	A3223	James Braidon
A1658	Abby Beim	A2478	Tony J Blankinship	A145	Douglas Brainard
A2253	Edgar Belka	A122	J M Bledig	A2012	Fred D Brammer
A2283	Dave Bell	A123	Michael P Bledsoe	A2013	Eric M Brammer
S1707	Yves Bellefeuille	A124	Gary Blievernicht	A2014	Cecilia R Brammer
A3019	Patrice La Belle	A1086	Judy Blish	A146	Richard Brandshaft
A6	Harry Bell	A1394	Michael Bliss	A2413	Beverly L Brandt
A1400	Irene Bell	A3324	Ms S Block	A1437	Richard Brandt
A1234	Peter Bell	A126	Bea Bloom	A1584	Kevin Branigan
A3559	Janet Bellwether	A127	Debbie Bloom	A2457	Phil Branigan
A1476	Wally Belpaeme	A2510	Elaine Bloom	S147	L T Bratcher
A1477	Monique Belpaeme	A129	Kent Bloom	A148	David S Bratman
S101	Linda A Beltz	A130	Leslie Bloom	A1515	E A Brault
A2181	Jim Benford	A131	Michael A Bloom	A3366	Gerhard Braun
A2182	Hilary Benford	A1176	Jane Bloomquist	S1582	William D Braun
A1847	Gregory Benford	A128	Sam Bloom	A149	Allan F J Bray
A3116	Ingemar Bengtsson	A2316	Christine Boal	A2683	David C Bray
A102	Betsy Benn	A2314	Derek Boal	S1098	Howard John Brazee III
S106	J David Bennett	A2318	David Boal	A2749	Jean-Daniel Brecque
A2547	Ulf Bennetter	A2315	Pamela Boal	A2192	D F Breen
A104	Becky S Bennett	A2317	Steven Boal	A1196	Vivian M Bregman
A3101	R Bennett	A1653	Kathleen V Bobel	A150	Seth Breidbart
S3458	Ron Bennett	A2865	Elizabetha Bobnar	A1531	Paula Bremer-Gersich
A105	Greg Bennett	A132	Jean Bryant Bogert	A151	H Corson Bremer
A103	Nored Benn	S133	Janice M Bogstad	S152	Micholas Bretagna II
A1163	Ron Benton	A134	Gladys I Bohle	A1195	Milly Brewer
A1699	Doris Bercarich	A135	William C Bohle	A3196	David Bridges
A3113	Ingela Bergdahl	A136	R Merrill Bollerud	A1630	Robert E Briney
A2800	Johannes H Berg	A1232	George Bondar	A1853	Samantha Broadribb
A1267	Martin Berkelaar	A2607	Katherine Bonham	A1854	Tim Broadribb
A1233	Jose Bernard	A2458	Berthold Van Den	A3438	Susan Brockbank
A2424	Michael J Bernardi		Boogaard	A1377	Daniele Brolli

A CLASSIC RETURNS!

MODERN SCIENCE FICTION: Its Meaning and Its Future

edited by Reginald Bretnor

Contents:

- THE PLACE OF SCIENCE FICTION, by John W. Campbell, Jr.
- THE PUBLISHING OF SCIENCE FICTION, by Anthony Boucher
- SCIENCE FICTION IN MOTION PICTURES, RADIO, AND TELEVISION, by Don Fabun
- A CRITIQUE OF SCIENCE FICTION, by Fletcher Pratt
- SCIENCE FICTION AND THE MAIN STREAM, by Rosalie Moore
- IMAGINATIVE FICTION AND CREATIVE IMAGINATION, by L. Sprague de Camp
- SOCIAL SCIENCE FICTION, by Isaac Asimov
- SCIENCE FICTION: PREPARATION FOR THE AGE OF SPACE, by Arthur C. Clarke
- SCIENCE FICTION AND SANITY IN AN AGE OF CRISIS, by Philip Wylie
- SCIENCE FICTION, MORALS, AND RELIGION, by Gerald Heard
- THE FUTURE OF SCIENCE FICTION, by Reginald Bretnor

Reg Bretnor's Modern Science Fiction, originally published in 1953, was the first serious discussion of modern science fiction as literature. This classic symposium is a fit companion to Mr. Bretnor's later books Science Fiction, Today and Tomorrow and The Craft of Science Fiction. Our new edition presents the complete text of the first edition, and adds a brand new preface by the editor, a chapter of notes and corrections, and a complete index. The jacket is designed by Mike Hinge

Cloth, 343 pages, $10.00

Write for a descriptive list of our other titles

ADVENT:PUBLISHERS, INC.

Box A3228

Chicago, Illinois 60690, U.S.A.

A1485 Fransje Bronkhorst	A1047 James Burnett	A1950 Gordon Carleton
A2058 Sarah R Bronsten	S2623 Crispin Burnham	A1113 Ann Carlsen
A154 Ned Brooks	A169 Gale Burnick	A497 Debara Carlson
A1564 Mike Brooks	S171 Bill Burns	A3187 Irene Carnell
A2587 John Brosnan	A170 Mary Burns	A2411 Suzanne M Carnival
S155 Judith I Brosz	A172 Jim Burrows	A2419 Steve Carper
S156 Tom Brosz	A173 Selma Burrows	A3399 Carol Carr
A2022 David Brough	A1230 Chris Bursey	A1990 Duncan Carr
A3259 Chris Brough	A3228 George Burt	S498 Grant Carrington
S2034 Barbara Broughton	S175 Paul Burt	S2713 John L Carr
A1203 William A Brown III	S174 Rev John M Burt	A2781 Michael W Carroll
S1157 Brian Earl Brown	A2513 Elinor Busby	A2782 Caroline T Carroll
A157 Charles N Brown	S2469 Kevin Busby	A3398 Tarry Carr
A158 Deana Brown	S177 Kathy Busby	A1632 Victoria M Carson
A2606 Dave Brown	A179 Shelby Bush III	A1631 Lee Hastings Carson
A1587 Diane F Brown	A3109 Clarissa Bush	A1454 John Carson
A2144 Eric Brown	A1598 Erwin H Bush	A499 Lin Carter
S159 Greg Brown	A2310 John Bush	A1750 Bill Carton
A2850 Gail L Brown	A2311 Sheila Bush	S2055 Diana Lois Cartwright
A973 Mary Brown	A180 Ron Bushyager	A3602 Cecily Ruth Casey
S3272 Paule Brown	A181 Linda Bushyager	S2135 Coreen Casey
A3432 Raymond Brown	A3467 J Butcher	A3378 Catherine Casey
A2242 Robert L Brown	A182 J Butler	A3601 Keiron Thomas Casey
A2849 Roberta L Brown	A3345 Cathy Jo Butler	A501 Neil Casteel
A2243 Sharon Brown	S3435 John A Butt	A500 Loyd Casteel
A2185 Steve Brown	A3205 Thomas G "Buzz"	A1200 Linda Jane Castle
A2350 Sharon Brown	Buzzard	A2798 Carole-Sue Castronuovo
A161 Amy P Brownstein	A2358 Ethel Thrift Buzzard	A2799 FO - C-S Castronuovo
A160 Stewart Brownstein	A2214 Steve Byfield	A502 William I Cavin
A64 Vernon Brown	S1841 Brent Byrd	S503 Ann N Cavitt
A1914 Mildred Downey Broxon	A2640 Chuck Cady	S504 William T Cavitt
A3532 Michael Bruha	A2641 Tasha Cady	A2772 Jim Cawthorn
A1118 Barc Bruimaud	A1791 Giuseppe Caimmi	A1835 Yvon Cayrel
A162 Bill Brummer	A3126 Tom Cain	S505 Ann Cech
A1517 Marjorie Brunner	A1723 Marcel Calberson	A3152 Angelo de Ceglie
A1616 John Brunner	A1724 Mrs Calberson	S506 Joe Celko
A163 Edward Bryant	A993 Chris Callahan	A507 Greg Chalfin
A164 Ginjer Buchanan	A1093 Den Caltagirone	A2711 Eva Chalker-Whitley
A3267 Graham Buckell	A1094 Lee Caltagirone	A508 Jack L Chalker
A2787 Kathleen Buckley	A1779 Ivo Campanini	S3549 H R Chalkley
A2788 Helen B Buckley	A1277 Ramsay Campbell	A2473 E A Chambers
S2714 Jan Buckwalter	A1422 James Campbell	A2474 Mrs S A Chambers
A165 Frances M Buhman	A494 Chris Campbell	A3277 A Bertram Chandler
A1607 Elizabeth A Buie	A2213 Adam Campbell-Gray	A3276 Susan Chandler
A1608 FO - E Buie	A2914 R I Campbell	A1112 Glen Chapman
S1090 Krystyna Bula	A1278 Jenny Campbell	A509 Cheryl Chapman
A2434 Martin A Bullen	A3287 Ken Campbell	A510 John Chapman
A2435 Robin Bullen	A495 John Campbell	A2262 Roseanne Charest
A3356 Lucy Bulmer	A2655 Catherine Crook	A1826 Suzy McKee Charnas
A3078 Ken Bulmer	de Camp	A1827 Suzy McKee Charnas
A3081 Larry Bulmer	A493 Donna Camp	A1825 Suzy McKee Charnas
A2755 Charlotte Bulmer	A125 J H M Camphuysen	A10 Pat Charnock
A3080 Debbie Bulmer	A3191 David G Campisi	A9 Graham Charnock
A3079 Pam Bulmer	A2656 L Sprague de Camp	S3041 Lawrence I Charters
A1213 Chryl J Bunn	S2076 Richard E Camp	S1964 Cattanooga SF Assn.
A166 Joanne Burger	A2104 Michael Canfield	S2582 Jeannette Chau
S167 Ruth Berger	S496 Russell Cardenal	A511 Cy Chauvin
A1385 Brian Burgess	A1194 Kristine A Card	A1894 C J Cherryh
A3262 N J Burgess	A1193 Orson Scott Card	S991 William C Chessman III
A168 Babs K Burke	A3011 Jacqueline R Carew	A1276 Mark Chillingworth
A176 Brian L Burley	A1951 Lori Chapek Carleton	A1275 Chris Chivers

OPENING TIMES 10 am-6pm; THURSDAY 10am-7pm TEL: 01 836 4179

FORBIDDEN PLANET

London's Newest Science Fiction and Comic Book Shop!
23 Denmark St., London WC2 - Just off Charing X Rd.

IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE A SIGNING BY

LARRY

NIVEN

ON SATURDAY 8th SEPTEMBER 1979

A3477 Rowena Chowen	A522 Sandy Cohen	A3385 Neil Craig
A1824 Miriam Chown	A1635 Nancy C Coker	S3051 Paul Robert Craig
A1823 Paul Chown	S2405 Jud Cole	A2652 Dian Crayne
A512 Carole Christian	A1270 John Cole	A2651 Chuck Crayne
A1753 Jo Ann Christy	A523 Mary Cole	A1268 Hugh Cresswell
A1965 Alina Chu	A3020 Karen Coleman	S3082 Dennis Cripps
S513 Clive Church	A524 Franklin C Coleman	A178 Donna Crisci
S3422 Lisa Ciaccio	A2694 Fred H Coleman	S1051 Antony Croghan
S1692 Catherine Circosta	A2695 FO - Fred H Coleman	A2748 Jean-Paul Cronimus
S3055 Michael L Citrak	A3021 Joe Coleman	S2747 Elelyne Cronimus
S3056 Peter Citrak	A525 Sidney Coleman	A3604 John Croot
A1930 Pat Ciuffreda	S2406 Nancy Cole	A1609 Debbie Cross
S3242 Jim St Clair	A2873 Alan B Coles	S3153 Michael J Cross
A3048 Christopher S	S3427 Walter R Cole	A3190 Jerry J Crosson
Claremont	A2910 John G Collick	A1460 Roger Cross
A3049 FO - Christopher	A3066 Lynn Collier	A2672 Serge Crouquet
S Claremont	A3139 Chris Collier	A533 William Crowell-Davis
A1507 Alan Clark	A2290 Deborah L Colombo	A1615 Sharon Crowell-Davis
A1821 Beverley Clark	A526 Michelle Colsher	A3590 Nichola Crowther
S514 Elmer Clark	A527 Bill Colsher	A1382 Judy Crowther
S515 Frederick S Clarke	A3226 Clare Coney	A3589 Peter Crowther
S516 Ivan O Clark	A1220 Nell A Congdon	S534 Janet R Cruickshank
A2191 Jeffrey L Clark	A3004 Kathy Connelli	A2820 Number Cruncher Esq
A1506 Laurel Clark	S1178 Ed Connor	A535 Jon C Crusoe
A3261 Nigel Thornton Clark	S1809 Olaf Conrad	A999 Wendy Cruttenden
A1274 Peter Clark	A2309 A M Cook	A1000 Arthur Crittenden
S2960 Roger Clark	A1900 Norman L Cook	S988 Ctein
S3605 Sheila Clark	S3466 Miss S Cook	A2895 Regine Cuisset
A2698 John R Claxton	S1703 Clifton Cooper	A3434 Rafe Culpin
A517 Gavin Claypool	A1937 Mike Cooper	A536 R W Cumming
A2312 Aline Clayton-Carroll	A1396 Cathleen A Cooper	A2075 Jim Cummings
A2143 Jo Clayton	A1384 Shaun Cooper	S3244 Sandee Cunningham
A2729 Sean Cleary	A529 Jonathan Coopersmith	A537 Ron Currier Jr
S2946 Fred Cleaver	A530 Roberta D C Corey	A538 Robert Currier
A2989 Sarah Clemens	A1830 Brian Cormack	A1637 Allen Curry
A518 Hal Clement	S1886 Bobby Cornelius	S539 Bill Curry
A1719 Eltjo Cleton	A3199 Miss S Cornwall	A1636 Tanya Curry
A1716 Heiko Cleton	A531 James A Corrick	A3519 Richard J Curth
A1718 Ingrid Cleton	A2998 Joanne Corry	A1676 Keith Curtis
A1717 Maud Cleton	A1780 Diane Cossato	A3414 Richard L Curtis
A519 Robert J Clifford	A1785 Gian Paolo Cossato	A1720 Frank De Cuyper
A2065 Barbara Clifford	A1782 Mirelle Costantini	A540 Angelo D'Alessio
A2236 P J Clifton	S2189 Matt Costello	A1132 Donald H Dailey
A2414 Evalyn Clough	A1168 Leigh Couch	A1133 Janet L Dailey
A1008 Dave Cluett	A1169 Michael Couch	A2583 Mandy Dakin
A1021 Joyce Cluett	A1167 Norbert Couch	A2611 Niels Dalgaard
S520 Gary E Cobb	A2732 Robert Coulson	S2575 Bjarne Dalgren
A1273 David Cobbledick	A2731 Juanita Coulson	A3098 J G Dallman
A2177 Thais H Coburn	A2377 R Coulter	A2282 Alexandra Daly
A2879 Donald E Cochran	A2067 Fredrik Vladimir	S2244 John Damassa
A1451 Charles Cockey	Coulter	A1011 Michael Damesick
A1450 Alice Cockey	A2725 Frances I Councill	A1752 James Gordon Dana
A1272 Dave Cockfield	A2750 George Count Coune	A2062 James S Daniel
A3598 Brett Cockrell	A2822 J Cowie Esq	A3106 Douglas A Daniel
A3579 Corry Coene	A3381 Richard Cowper	A2585 S B Daniels
A3578 Peter Coene	A1097 Dennis L Cox	S542 Tim Daniels
S2360 David Coffey	A1269 Dave Cox	A3416 Jack Dann
S521 Alisa Cohen	A2451 Geoff Cox	A3459 D M Dare
A1271 Dr Jack Cohen	A1497 Terry H Cox	A2003 Daniel A Darlington
A1698 Eli Cohen	A2085 Cecilia Cozentini	A2004 Laurel A Darlington
A1521 Regina Cohen	S532 Edward E Cragg	A2774 James Darroch

Towers above the rest

Panther Science Fiction Mayflower Science Fantasy

GRANADA PAPERBACKS

High-flying Science Fi

GRANADA

ion and Fantasy Stars

PERBACKS

Available on 30th August 1979

Brian Aldiss

All the major works of Brian Aldiss, Britain's most popular, most successful and most brilliant Science Fiction author, new to the Panther list.

04681X	Last Orders	95p
049851	Galaxies Like Grains of Sand	95p
049878	The Dark Light Years	80p
049886	Barefoot in the Head	95p
049894	Space, Time and Nathaniel	95p
049916	Starswarm	95p
049908	Hothouse	95p
049924	Cryptozoic	90p
049932	Earthworks	75p
049940	Brothers of the Head	85p
037764	Moment of Eclipse	90p

Fritz Leiber

Fritz Leiber's legendary 6 volume SWORDS series, available for the first time from one paperback publisher, Mayflower.

130844	Swords and Deviltry	85p
130879	Swords Against Death	85p
130887	Swords in the Mist	85p
130895	Swords Against Wizardry	85p
118178	The Swords of Lankmar	85p
131131	Swords and Ice Magic	85p

All these books are available at your local bookshop or direct from the publisher. Just tick the titles you want, fill in the form, and send it to: Panther/Mayflower Cash Sales, PO Box 11, Falmouth, Cornwall TR10 9EN. Please enclose remittance to the value of the cover price plus:-

United Kingdom: 22p for the first book plus 10p per copy of each additional book ordered to a maximum charge of 82p

BFPO and Eire: 22p for the first book plus 10p per copy for the next 6 books, thereafter 3p per book

Overseas: 30p for the first book and 10p for each additional book

Prices correct at time of printing but subject to amendment without prior notification.

Name _____

Address _____

The Courage To Dream...

This is the essence of Science Fiction. The spirit of our future is in the story of pioneers; the inner need for adventure, the love of truth, each individual's search for a place of his or her own. Galileo is the magazine of things to come. Galileo is the new magazine of great science fiction and the new frontiers of science fact. Articles by major scientists like Carl Sagan, David Wilson, and Arthur C. Clarke explore such topics as atomic and genetic research, astrophysics, and the coming computer technology. Reviews, interviews and previews are highlighted by Robert Silverberg, Marvin Kaye and David Gerrold on books, games and movies. Lighter subjects include fashions of the future, automobiles of tomorrow, and bicycles in space. Superb illustration by the finest artists in the field titillate the imagination. But the best parts are the stories, where science becomes the future, by such authors as Harlan Ellison, Marion Zimmer Bradley, and Jack Williamson. Great novels like Larry Niven's long-awaited sequel THE RINGWORLD ENGINEERS are serialized complete and uncut. From pathos to adventure, from the horrific to visions of the ideal, it's yours.

Named "one of the best among SF mags" by LIBRARY JOURNAL in our very first year!

Subscribe today for all the tomorrows to come.

Fabulous! I'd like the special subscription rate marked below.

My payment is enclosed.

6 issues for $7.50 (saving $4.70)

12 issues for $12 (saving $11.40)

Outside USA add 50 cents per issue

Name

Street State

Town Zip

Send to: Galileo Magazine, Dept. 99

339 Newbury Street, Boston MA 02115

A3232 P L Davey	S3593 Doug Dixon	A2385 Fiona Durie
A3301 Howard L Davidson	A1191 Gayle Dixon	A3498 Marc Duveau
A544 Steve Davidson	A2759 John C Dixon	A577 Pat Duvic
A2289 A S Davidson	A3107 Kevin Dixon	S2245 David Dvorkin
A543 Richard M Davidson	A3013 Maureen Dixon	A2669 Jennifer J Dye
A1077 Katie Davies	A1038 Dermot Dobson	S578 Andrew R Dyer
A1076 Malcolm Davies	S560 Michael Dobson	A3018 Mary Dziechowski
A2613 J H Davies	A561 Kevin M Doddy	A183 R Earnshaw
A2612 Stuart Davies	A3129 Tom Doherty	A184 Martin Easterbrook
A3327 Huw Davis	A3054 S Doherty	A1034 Kevin John Easthope
A1029 Trevor Davis	S562 Laura Dolan	A185 Don Eastlake
A2796 Phoebe A Davis	A1409 Peggy Ann Dolan	A186 Jill Eastlake
A1033 Tina Davis	A3600 Gavin Dold	A1364 Roger Eastwood
A546 Linda Dawe	A2020 River Doljan	A2622 Robert M Eber
S545 Clifton R Dawes	A563 R O Domitz	A3322 E J Eborall
A3479 Simeon Dawes	A2907 Elsie Donald	A3083 Scott Eccles
A1526 Dorothy E Day	A1612 Ira Donewitz	A3500 Paul M Eckler
A2810 Mr G Day	S2031 Kathryn R Dopp	A187 Yale F Edeiken
A2532 Robert Day	A3526 John R Dore	A2195 Inger Edelfeldt
S3547 Lawrence Dean	S567 Paul R Dorethy	A3535 Bernadette Edgar
A1540 Louellen Decker	A1264 Alan Dorey	A3278 Graham Edge
A547 Dan Deckert	A1017 Paul Dormer	A1994 P S Edge
S548 Sandi Deckinger	S995 Leo Doroschenko	A1685 Bob Edgeworth
A2988 Barbara S Deer	A3184 Paul Dorrell	S1686 Kathy Edgeworth
S2649 Lester Del Rey	A1406 Karen Dorrell	A2596 Peter Edick
S2648 Judy-Lynn Del Rey	S568 Brice Dortch	A2291 Carola Edmond
A2254 Richard Delap	A3417 Stephen Dostie	A2471 Marjorie Edwards
A2255 Barbara L Delhotal	A1634 John Doty	A3258 David Edwards
A549 Linda Deneroff	S564 Douglas P Doucette	A3421 Laurie Edwards
S2248 Bill Denholm	S566 Robert Dougherty	A11 Malcolm Edwards
A2929 Florence Denk	A3240 John Douglas	A3420 Betty Edwards
A3365 Karin Dennewill	S2638 Scott Douglass	A2470 Tony Edwards
A1747 Clark T Denning	A565 John Douglass	A1490 Josiane Eekhaut
A1745 Anna Jo Denton	A3595 James Edward Doyle	A1489 Guido Eekhaut
A1743 Frank Denton	A1581 Robert Doyle	A2093 George Alex Effinger
A2688 Melanie Desmond	A3594 Robert Edward Doyle	A24 John Eggeling
A551 Martin E Deutsch Jr	A2232 Mary C Draper	A188 Lisa Eisenberg
A550 Lisa Deutsch	S1935 Frederick Draper	A190 Phyllis Eisenstein
A3171 Caroline Dewar	S2746 Ellen Draper	A189 Alex Eisenstein
A1265 Mike Dickinson	A569 Margaret Draper	A3563 J Michael Elam
A3342 Philip K Dick	A2231 Robert Drayer	A1261 Helen Eling
A2741 Gordon R Dickson	S1149 Graham Dresch	A1262 Stan Eling
A3210 Pauline Dickson	A2041 Barbara Dryer	A2365 Ulrich Elkmann
A3181 Iain Dickson	A2462 David K Drysdale	A2911 Tony Ellam
A3353 Simon Dicks	S570 Diane E Duane	A191 Frank Ellersieck
S552 Donald R Diehl	A2710 Heleen Dubin	A192 Marjii Eilers
S553 Marilyn A Diehl	S571 Brendan A Dubois	A1881 Juliet Ellery
A1204 Eliese M Diercks	S2045 Shaun Dubrick	A2326 Pat Ellington
A3362 Alfred Dietrich	A2042 Tom Duff	A2327 Marie Ellington
A554 Ann F Dietz	S573 Art Dula	S1199 Howard Elliott
A555 Franklin M Dietz	S572 Tamea Dula	A3161 Dorothy Ellis
A556 Karl H Dietz	A2784 Mercedes Dumlao	A3183 Dave Ellis
A2794 Andrew Difford	A1644 Brenda Duncan	A3347 B J Ellisdon
A1721 Atte Dijkema	A1643 Larry Duncan	A3320 Patrick Ellisdon
A1732 Lucy Dijksterhuis	A3074 Frances E Dunn	A1407 Paul Ellis
A1430 Salvatore Dimaria	A2001 Glenna Dunning	A3160 Peter Ellis
S557 Genevieve Dimodica	A575 Jeff Duntemann	A1266 Peter Ellis
A558 Joanna M Dionne	A574 Carol Duntemann	A3588 Andv Ellsmore
A559 Wayne Dionne	S576 Jim Durante	A193 James W Elms
A1701 Sharman Divino	A201 Alistair Durie	A3361 Sherry L Elms
A1190 Bill Dixon	A2386 Marcus Durie	A1514 Jeremy Elsmore

*It's What's Inside The Head
That counts*

We're Herman, the con committee that believes that ideas are important. We created Bacon, the 1978 Annual Scandinavian SF Convention. Bacon was an idea con, through and through, from the membership cards to the committee T-shirts and from the opening ceremony to the Bob Show, a talk show tailored around our Guest of Honour, Bob Shaw, and a true convention first. Bob said: "One of the best cons I've been to... they've used imagination... a labour of love."

And now we want to try our ideas on the '83 World Con. We believe we could make that as memorable as Bacon was to those who attended.

"Ah," you say, "they want the World Con on the strength of a successful, small, parochial con." That's it. Small it was, but size is merely a matter of administration. Can do. Parochial it was not. Most of the programme was in English and wouldn't have been out of place at a much larger affair. Our ideas are neither small, nor parochial. We've already prebooked wonderful Copenhagens major convention facilities, with audience capacity of 2000+ and banquet capacity of 1000+, to give them room.

Look out for us. If you want new ideas in your head for the '81 ballots, try ours!

Create Great Cons

WORLDCON
SCANDINAVIA
1983

PO Box 10040
S-220 10 LUND
Sweden

A1953	Richard Embs	A1789	Andrea Ferrari	A223	Jo Ann Foster
A194	David L Emerson	A2833	Robert V Fertner	A222	Alan Dean Foster
A2823	Steve Emson	A3364	Volker Fervers	A224	Caroline Fowler
A1488	Hanneke Engelenburg	A206	Judy Fetter	A243	Wayne A Fowler
A2560	Arvid Engholm	A3286	Shelly le Feuvre	A2878	Charlotte Fox
A1065	Graham England	A3023	David Fideler	S3502	Mike Fox
A2546	Bo K Eriksson	A1205	Janet Filkel	S3076	Richard C Fox
S1502	Michael J Eris	S207	Jean E Finch	A225	Susan L Fox
A3142	Walter Ernsting	A3103	Mark Finch	A1673	John Foyster
A3145	Franz Ettl	A3351	Peggy A Finch	A1760	Nola Frame
A1389	David Michael Ettlin	A208	Jan Howard Finder	A1560	Bruce Francis
A1597	Francess Eubanks	A1023	Colin J Fine	A1561	Chris Francis
A2576	Leif Euren	A1022	Joan A Fine	S227	Sue Francis
A2871	Bill Evans	A210	Edward P Finkelstein	A226	Steven Francis
A2872	Buddie Evans	A209	Sally C Fink	A3309	Bonita Frank
S3214	David Evans	A3130	A Fiore	A2373	Charlotte Franke
A1105	David Evans	A211	Andy Firth	A1890	Wally Franke
A1765	Frances Evans	A212	Pamela Firth	A1175	Jann Frank
A3538	Humphrey Evans	A2455	Adrian Fischer	A228	Ellen Franklin
S2142	Jean T Evans	S2074	Joe Fishbein	A229	Donald Franson
S195	Naril Evans	A2132	Charles H Fisher	A2356	Elisabetta Franza
A3265	P C Evans	S214	Lou Fisher	A2609	Brian F Fraser
S2341	Paul I Evans	S213	Barbara Fisher	A2610	Mrs S Fraser
A1754	Paula J Evans	A215	Michael Fisher	A230	Cheryl L Frashure
A3516	Richard Evans	A216	Wilma Fisher	A1947	Doug Fratz
A2273	Marion Ewen	S217	Gill Fitzgerald	A2046	Kelly Freas
S196	Thecla R Fabian	A1141	Al Fitzpatrick	A2047	Polly Freas
A2336	Peter Faherty	A1171	Barbara Fitzsimmons	S244	James R Frech
S197	Pamela Faint	A1172	Michael Fitzsimmons	S231	Jay Freeman
S198	Gary Fairfax	A1739	FO - Fladnag	S232	Linda Freeman
A199	Mark Fairfield	A1738	FO - Fladnag	A1256	Wendy Freeman
A200	Jean-Paul Faisant	A1694	Helene Flanders	A1257	Keith Freeman
A3610	Becky Falen	A1487	Johan Flaton	A1984	Janet Freer
A3609	Deborah Falen	A2436	John Fleming	S233	FREFF
A1418	Nicholas L Faller	A1464	Jo Fletcher	A1665	Elio Fregonese
A3313	Pat Fanthorpe	S2733	Kenneth Fletcher	A3123	Yves Fremion
A3314	Stephanie Fanthorpe	A3227	Nellie Flexner	A3035	James E French
A3312	R Lionel Fanthorpe	S218	Jim Flick	A1931	Furda K French
A3315	Fiona Fanthorpe	A1366	Kathy Flint	A1455	Dave French
A202	Mike Farinelli	A541	Leslie Flood	S234	James R Frenkel
S2618	M J Farmer	A3186	Susan Flood	S1987	Roger Freston
S3612	Bruce Farr	A2040	John A Flory	A2114	Douglas Friauf
S3613	Kim Farr	A3615	Nancy Floyd	A3561	Beth Friedman
A3597	Robert Farrant	S2475	Terry L Floyd	A3358	Deborah A Friedman
S2893	Steven F Farrell	A2061	Linda A Flude	S235	Judith Friedman
A1641	Drew Farrell	A219	George Flynn	S236	Richard A Friedman
S2483	Amy Fass	A3375	Peter Flynn	S1883	Beverly Friend
A1259	Neil D Faulkner	A220	Philip Foglio	S3318	Larry Jay Friesen
A1260	Hazel Faulkner	A1842	Dorothy C Fontana	A237	Alan Frisbie
A203	Douglas Faunt	S3097	Forbidden Planet	S528	Patricia J Frisch
A204	Moshe Feder	A1908	Patricia A Forbush	A238	Peter A Frisch
S3405	Lance Feldman	A3221	Paul M Ford	A1114	Adi Fritsch
S3006	Patricia A Feldman	A1397	Jan Fornell	A1255	Alan Frost
A3527	Jay Felton	A2555	Annie Forsberg	A1289	Jean Frost
A1914	Keith Fenske	A2562	Jorgen Forsberg	A3141	Walter A Fuchs
S205	George Fergus	A1072	Rune Forsgren	A1159	James Fuerstenberg
A1925	Vaunda K Ferguson	S221	Lars Fors	A239	Connie Fugate
A1924	Eric Ferguson III	A1696	Paula Forsyth	A3391	John Fulford
A1100	Audrey Ferman	A3169	Susie Forth	A3392	Lily Fulford
A1099	Ed Ferman	A3450	Dr Robert L Forward	A2626	Kathy Fulton
A1258	Michel Feron	S3297	Cheryl A Van Fossen	A2839	Gwendoline Funnell

A240	Roby Furber	A1253	David Gibson	A2717	Laurie Gottlieb
A2931	Nanette Furman-Rozanski	A1390	Denis Gifford	A2037	Sherry Gottlieb
S2599	Malcolm Furnass	A2261	Georges Giguere	A1868	Michael R Gould
S3059	John S Fusek	S994	Donna Gilbert	A1256	Stephen Gould
A241	Gail C Futoran	A153	Andy Gilham	A282	Tom Gould
A242	Carl R Futoran	A992	Steven Alan Gilham	S283	David Govaker
A2198	P Fuzzey	A262	Adam Gilinsky	A1856	Mike Grace
A245	Bill Gabler	A1252	Mollie Gillam	A3067	Bill Grader
A246	D Garrett Gafford	A3339	Elisabeth Gille	A1115	Henry A Grady
A247	Dean C Gahlon	A1668	Bruce Gillespie	S2765	Dick Graff
A248	Gil Gaier	A2680	Ronald Gillies	A1426	Kate Graf
A2817	Gustav Gaisbauer	A2819	Pete A Gilligan	A284	Claire E Graham
A2975	Phyllis A Galbraith	A1646	Charles D Gilliland	A1580	Mark Grand
A249	Ken Gale	A265	Dolly Gilliland	A3453	Granada Representative
A3320	Stuart Gale	A264	Alexis A Gilliland	A2848	Bill Grant
A2202	Dave Gallon	A263	Peter Gill	A1620	Donald M Grant
S250	Thomas Galloway	A2739	Paulie Gilmore	A1622	Douglas Grant
A3253	Mike Galloway	A266	Shannon Giordani	A1621	Shirley Grant
A1799	Alessandro Gamberini	A805	Karina Girsdanský	A2233	Thomas A Grant
A1855	Karen Gamble	A1793	Sergio Giuffrida	A2073	Nick A Grassel
A2744	Peggy Ganstine	S3040	Scott Gladden	S2141	Elyse M Grasso
A2743	Capt R D Ganstine	A267	Peter N Glaskowsky	A1912	Frances A Grau
A2728	Craig Gardner	A3016	Wendy Glasser	A1089	Ray Grau
A1519	David Garnett	A3017	Lance Glasser	A1479	Mia Grauwels
A3121	Brigitte Garnier	A268	Marc Glasser	A1478	Lou Grauwels
A1254	Peter Garratt	A2468	Adrian Glenister	S2325	Daniel Gray
A2900	Simon Garrett	A269	Mike Glicksohn	A285	Lewis E Gray
A1973	Beth Garrett	A1251	Wendy Glover	A3376	Michele Gray
A1884	Glenn Garrett	A270	Mike Glycer	A286	Mike Gray
A251	Richard Garrison	A2814	Anthony Glynn	A2292	Robert Gray
S1899	Judith Ann Gaskins	A1614	Carol Gobeyn	A1463	R G Gray
A1675	Henry Gasko	A1613	Rene Gobeyn	A1921	Ashley D Grayson
A1428	Frank Gasperik	A1346	Jim Goddard	A287	Wayne Gray
A252	Carol Gathings	A1391	Juanita Godwin	S288	Lester K Greathouse
A1216	Dorothea Gault	S271	Nancy Goeke	A2381	John H Greaves
A2010	Donna Gause	A1891	Anne Golar	A2884	P Greenall
A3188	Marybeth M Gauthier	A272	Barry Gold	A3168	Elliot Greenfield
A1625	Nathan B Gavarin	S275	Seth Goldberg	A2943	Gary Green
S2029	Melva Gaylund	S274	Harlan Goldberg	A1556	Juanita H Green
S253	Albert E Gechter	S2700	Mark Goldenberg	A1595	Joseph Green
A254	Jeanne Geib	A2149	Jon (Blackhawk)	A1596	Patrice Green
A1651	Warren O Geib		Golding	A2944	Resa Green
A2128	Janice Gelb	A3094	Stephen Goldin	A289	Rose-Marie Green
A255	Margaret Gemignani	A273	Lee Gold	A3162	Simon R Green
S3410	Joe Genovaldi	A1889	Paula Gold	A2614	Steven J Green
S3411	Francine Genovaldi	S277	Wendy Goldstein	A290	Ted Greenstone
A3174	M Gentle	A2518	Deborah Goldstein	A1071	Carol Gregory
A3493	Soteris Georgiou	A276	Lee Ann Goldstein	A2106	Roger Gregory
A3461	Stephen Georgiou	S278	Jeanne Gomoll	A1075	David Gress-Wright
A256	Barbara H Geraud	A279	Wally Gonser	S291	David P Griffin
S2760	Alan J Gerber	A3484	Jeremy Goodchild	A1249	Moira Griffiths
A2407	Judy Gerjuoy	S280	Joy Goodin	A1876	P Griffiths
A257	Deborah K Gerst	A2712	Kathy Good	A1102	David Grigg
A258	Jay L Gerst	A1838	Bernard Goorden	S292	Joseph Guy Grillot Jr
A3536	Sally Gheorghiu	S1691	Malcolm Gordon	S3110	E Grimsley
A3546	Glenice Ann Gibbons	A1697	Brenda Gordon	A1836	Monique Grollemund
A3545	Terence Keith Gibbons	S1360	Daniel Gordon	A2846	Cheryl Groom
A260	Kim Gibbs	A3451	Gayle-Lynne Gordon	A2845	Paul Groom
A259	Kerry Gibbs	A3587	Robert Gordon	A293	Elizabeth L Gross
A261	Wanda Gibbs	A281	Regina E Gottesman	A3564	Jacky de Gruchy
A2487	Lorraine A Gibson	A2716	Ivan Gottlieb	A294	Rev Richard P Gruen

SPACE 1999

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE, but it will be. What's that, you ask- a special event that lasts for 7 days covering four interests SPACE-ASTRONOMY-SCIENCE FICTION-UNIDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS all under one roof. Films on each of the subjects mentioned right throughout the seven days. Films such as BATTLESTAR GALACTICA, CAPRICORN ONE, SATURN 3, ALIEN, MAROONED, 2001 A SPACE ODYSSEY, STAR WARS, CLOSE ENCOUNTERS, STAR-TREK - THE MOTION PICTURE, ETC ETC. TV PROGRAMMES, such as SPACE 1999, DR WHO, BLAKE'S 7, UFO, INVADERS, PROJECT UFO, SPACE ACADEMY, QUARK, ONE STEP BEYOND, SPACE FAMILY ROBINSON, STAR TREK, TIMESLIP, TIME TUNNEL, THE TOMORROW PEOPLE, plus of course celebrities from each of the series or films appearing in person or on Video tape in special interviews based on your questions. Societies and Organisations, Fan groups and publications will be available for your inspection on their own special stand areas. Models galore from full scale X-Wing fighter, R2D2, C3PO, Tardis, Land Speeder. NASA space craft and ESA displays. Plus special features such as the bridge of the Enterprise, Dr Who and his adventures setting. Also displays by the societies on each of their subjects, Astronautics, Science Fiction, Astronomy, UFO's. Fancy Dress with fantastic prizes, in fact every kind of spin off you can imagine. We expect to present a visual effect second to none - using the excellent facilities of the Wembley Conference Centre.

We expect support from all the Fan Groups in the United Kingdom and the USSR will no doubt wish to provide Russian space material for display. Marconi's Black Knight rocket is hoped for to display.

APPLICATIONS FOR VIP TICKETS should be sent to the following address:

STANDS ARE AVAILABLE, ADVERTISING RATES IN THE PROGRAMME AVAILABLE FOR SAE.

SPACE-EX[®]

84

Laser light shows, Computers, participation space games. Market areas well-stocked with everything you could possibly think of. The cost, well we have given this a great deal of thought and realising that this would be every Convention/special event/Film Show/TV Show/Theatre/Fun Fair/Fete rolled into one, and that most of you going to SEACON have already paid in 1979 £9-£11 for a 4 day event. The price was set at £3 per day for single day visitors and for the Enthusiast who would like to literally escape into this world of Fantasy £12 for the whole seven days. Hotel Accomodation, special luncheons etc will be advised to our V.I.P. Enthusiasts who have paid £12. This includes T-Shirt, Button Badge, Souvenir Programme, admission to all areas of SPACE-EX 84 (Barring staff Areas and ISTRA Organisers offices). Special issue of First Day Stamp Covers will be available at a special Stamp Booth. You will be able to have your photograph taken with a Celebrity. Posters, Films, Video Tapes, Records, Slides, Models, Stills, Paintings, toys and games will all be available to the VIP's with a special discount, not available to day visitors. Each year the price for VIP Tickets will rise up until 1980 it will be £12, after that 1981 will be £15, 1982 will be £17, 1983 up until the event £21. Limited number of tickets V.I.P. are available. First 100 received receive special commemorative medallion.

SPACE-EX 1984
V.I.P. Ticket
Application
I.S.T.R.A. (U.K.)
21 Hargwyne Street
Stockwell, London SW9 9RQ

Personal Appearances of the Astronauts, Science Fiction,
Writers, Film Directors TV
celebrities. Plus many more surprises. DON'T DELAY ACT NOW
TOMORROW COULD BE TOO LATE.

S2550 Benita Grunseth	A1358 Rob Hansen	A1187 Carrie L Hedges
S3012 Mark J Grygier	A3530 Thore Hansen	S1957 Dennis G Heine
A1790 Andrea Guazzotti	S307 Bruce W Hanson	A328 Henry Heinisch
A1442 John Guess	A1674 Lee Harding	A2692 Robert A Heinlein
A1742 W N Guest	A1166 Sarah Sue Hardinger	A2693 Virginia Heinlein
S295 John H Guidry	A1928 Nils Hardin	S2955 Kevin Helfenbein
A2534 Urban Gunnarson	A3552 Chris Hardwick	A1963 Martin Helgesen
A3111 Arvid Gunnarson	A1248 Dave Hardy	A3584 Gerben Hellinga
S2507 David Gustafson	A2835 Kenneth Harker	A2556 Ulf Hellsing
A1462 Eric Guy	A308 Jack Harness	A2438 Patti Helmer
A1638 Walter Guyll	A3473 David Harper	A331 Paula Helm
A1080 J David Hacker	A2890 James H Harper	A1715 Cobi van Hemmen
A2158 Ann L Hackman	A309 Michael N Harper	A1032 Fred Hemmings
S300 Joel L Hadtler	A2891 Jacquelyn W Harper	A332 Arthur L Henderson
A3138 Jacky van der Haegen	S2662 J Barry Harrelson	A333 Rebecca R Henderson
S2715 Cindy Haight	A2215 Alun Harries	S334 Floyd E Henderson
A3408 Lora Lynn Haines	A310 Harold Harrigan	S2962 David Hendrickson
A296 Gay Haldeman	A311 George E Harris	A2208 John A Hennessy
A297 Joe W Haldeman	A312 Guy Harris	A2209 Julia M Hennessy
A3233 John Haley	S313 Jeff Harris	A2601 I W Hepple
S3350 Andrew Hall	S2017 John A Harris	A2421 Robert Hepworth
S352 Lynn Hallarden	S314 Matt Harris	A2422 Alison Hepworth
A1661 Billy Hall	A2984 Shirley R Harris	A2165 Randy Herkelrath
A3475 Stewart Hall	A2577 Harry Harrison	A2983 Mark Herkommer
S2851 Edward A Hall	A2337 Anthony Harrold	S1684 Jack Herman
A1035 Beth Hallam	A315 Judy Harrow	A1991 F J Hernander-Lapuerta
A1139 Marilyn Hallett	A317 Rosemarie von Harten	S1969 Matthew J Herrington
A1140 Vic Hallett	A318 Richard Harter	S335 Mark Herrup
A2687 Kristina A Hall	S316 Gregory P Hart	S1536 Jim Hershberg
A2958 Melissa Mia Hall	A3424 Amy Hartman	A2644 John Hertz
A298 Bob Halloran	S3266 Joe Hartman	A2645 Mary Jane Hertz
A3157 P E Hall	A3241 David Hartwell	A3343 Karen Hesketh
A2828 Roger C Hall	A1829 Jon M Harvey	S3426 Alan D Heuer
A1880 William W Hall	A14 John Harvey	A2179 Dorothy J Heydt
A299 Joel M Halpern	A13 Evelyn Harvey	A2178 Wilson H Heydt
A301 David Halterman	A2491 Martha Harville	A1356 Joy Hibbert
A303 Michael Hamilton	A2621 Susan Haseltine	A337 Carol Hickman
A3403 Daphne Ann Hamilton	A1857 Mark Haslett	A336 Lyn Hickman
S302 Charles Hamilton	S319 Big Lee Haslup	S3506 Matt Hickman
A2335 Ian Hamilton	A320 David John Hastie	A3359 Sara Jane Hicks
A1896 Mark E Hamilton	A1349 S C Hatch	A3540 David Higgins
A1351 K Ham	A2818 Hatfield PSIFFA	S2941 David D Higgins
A2430 S Dale Hammell	A1324 Martin Hatfield	A3541 Jean Higgins
A3565 Tim Hammell	A323 Randall Hawkins	A2224 Yvonne Higgins
A1352 Pete Hammerton	A322 Jane Hawkins	A2223 William T Higgins
A3155 Tony Hammond	A321 Donna Jo Hawkins	A2266 Steev Higgins
A304 Asenath Hammond	S324 W M Hawkins	A1228 Carl Hiles
A2393 Sandra Hamm	A1165 David Allen Hayes	A2982 Robert Hilf
S2628 Elaine Hampton	S325 Pat Hayes	A2981 Susan Hilf
A305 Brian Hampton	A326 Timothy R Hays	S338 Alan G Hill
A3165 Catherine Hand	A1338 George Hay	A340 Cathy Hill
A1864 D J Hand	A2492 Sunn Hayward	A3495 Douglas Hill
A2252 Carey Handfield	S327 Doug Hazen Jr	A1459 James A Hillier
A3255 Joan Hanke-Woods	A1227 Julian Headlong	A342 Robert L Hillis
S306 Mary Jo Hanley	A329 Marlene Healey-Ogden	A3550 Kenn G Hill
A2952 John Hanna	A1348 Bruce Healey	A2108 Lee G Hill
A1669 Rod Hanna	A2352 Pamela Heath	S341 Margaret Hill
S1882 J Owen Hanner	A2763 Robert J Heath	A3496 Michael Hill
A1363 Lester Hannington	A330 Kenneth C Heaton	A1214 Rhonda Hill
A1355 Theo Hanou	A3570 Robert Heaton	A2745 Dan Hillstrom
A3531 Anne Hansen	A2559 Anders Hedenlund	S339 Toyo M Hill

TITRESSF

Science-fiction at its freest

- Big names
- Great titles
- High quality fiction
- A list open to all currents and undercurrents of S.F.

TITRESSF

Editor Marianne Leconte

Editions JClattès

3430 T J Hill	A1398 Brian Hughes	A2535 Dolores Jakubowski
A343 Margaret A Hilt	S3206 John L Hughes	A1328 Maxim Jakubowski
S344 Deborah Ann Himelhock	A1018 Richard J Hughes	A3383 Graham James
A3529 Michel Hingot	A363 Terry Hughes	S375 Paul E Jameson
S1682 Irwin Hirsch	A1995 Andrew J Hull	A1050 Philip James
A345 Chip Hitchcock	A1693 John Hulland	A2803 Trond Jansen
A3557 Louise Hitchcock	A364 Elizabeth Anne Hull	A2539 Gun Jansson
A3175 John Hitchin	A2038 Charles P Hulse	S1895 Dennis Jarog
S346 Carol Hoag	A3404 Letty Hummel	A3407 Sharon Jarvis
A21 Liese Hoare	A1246 Immo Huneke	A376 Ben Jason
A22 Martin Hoare	A1359 Immi H Huneke	A1323 K M Jeary
A3099 Andy Hobbs	S365 Jamie R Hunger	A3311 Charles M Jeffcock
A1662 Gary Hoff	A2921 Mitchell C Hunter	A1822 Frankie Jemison
A347 Lee Hoffman	A366 Barry Hunter	S3456 John K Jennings
S348 Joan Hofstetter	A2068 Pamela L Hunter	A377 James Jennings
A1002 T P Hogan	A1078 John S Hunt	A3117 Sven-Ake Jensen
A349 Rose Hogue	A2620 Janet Hunt	A2445 P L Jensen
A1605 Sherlock Hoka	A3341 Philippe Hupp	A2371 Rosemarie Jeschke
S350 Larry J Holden	A3569 Catherine Hurdle	A2372 Wolfgang Jeschke
A1936 Lynne Holdom	A2116 Skia Hurst	A2306 Mrs S Jessop
S2272 Rob Holdstock	S1917 Alan Husby	A1226 R M C A Jewett
A1518 Nils-Olov Holgesson	S367 Nancy Hussar	A383 Steven F Johnson
A351 Ronald F Holik	A1703 Mike Hutchinson	S382 Steven C Johnson
A2384 Stephen Holland	A1334 Linda Hutchinson	A380 M David Johnson
S353 Flieg Hollander	S1708 Don Hutchison	S1955 Cal Johnson
S354 John A R Hollis	A368 James Huttner	A384 Vera Johnson
A2429 Clive Holloway	A1064 Jeanne A Hutton	A2860 Stephen D Johnson
A1934 Norman Hollyn	S369 Bill Huxham	A379 K Heather Johnson
A2530 Sonia J Holman	A2972 Helen Huzarewicz	A381 Robin Johnson
A2196 John-Henri Holmberg	S3052 Clinton Hyde	A2959 Barbi Johnson
A2779 Chris Holmes	S2735 Paul Hyman	A2409 Jim Johnson
A355 John Eric Holmes	A1778 Carol Hyndman	S378 Dennis S Johnson
A3084 Christopher Holmes	A2344 Tony J Ibbs	A3212 Chris Johnston
A1457 Kathy Holmes	A370 Todd E Illig	A1989 Anthony Johnston
A1247 David Holmes	A1024 Tim Illingworth	S2049 Jeff Johnston
A3073 William Holmes	A1151 Scott Imes	S3558 Karen G Jollie
A2802 Kjetil H Holm	A2923 G J Ingram	A385 Chris Jones
A1189 Charles P Holst	A1649 Wendell Ing	A2863 Cheryl Jones
A2965 Karen von Holtz	A371 Alice Insley	S3310 Carole W Jones
A2966 Roger von Holtz	A2829 Aandi Inston	S2249 Dallas Jones
A356 Kleeo A Hondros	S372 George Inzer	A386 Eddie Jones
A357 John M Hopfner	A1866 Mona Irwin	A2333 Gary Jones
A2039 Priscilla A Hopkins	A3167 M A Irwin	A3437 George Jones
S3014 Lorna V Hopkins	A1544 Mark D Irwin	A2207 Harry Jones
A1633 Gail Hormats	A1812 John R Isaac	A3170 Judy Jones
A1751 Kathy Horne	A1762 Jerry Jacks	A49 Marsha Jones
A2450 Meredyth Hossman	A1401 Alan Isaacson	A1433 Neil Jones
S2164 Helen Hough	A1435 Steve Jackson	A2862 Peter Jones
A358 John Houghton	A1600 Steve Jackson	A2526 P N Jones
S1145 Dorothy Houghton	A373 Catherine Jackson	A387 Richard L Jones
A2776 David C Houlton	A1119 Keith Jackson	A1245 Stephen Jones
S2153 Keith Hovda	A3159 James A Jackson	S2097 Stan Jones
S359 Denys Howard	A3229 Sean Jackson	A1865 Tom A Jones
A2594 Nic Howard	A1001 Coral Jackson	S388 Wayne H Jones
A2584 Jane E Howarth	A15 Rob Jackson	A2019 Phillip Jongeneel
A2838 A B Howe	A2122 Patricia C Jacobson	A1626 Peter de Jong
S2726 Jim Huang	A3085 Sig-Linda Jacobson	A1427 Renee Jonscher
S360 Richard Alan Hubbard	A1840 Janice Jacobson	A2569 Ake Jonsson
A361 Jim Hudson	S374 Rebecca J Jacobs	A1020 Ake E B Jonsson
A1329 Tel Hudson	S3402 Vel Jaeger	A390 Kenneth Jordan
A362 Alan Huff	S2155 Gayle Jakubisin	S3386 Chris Jordan

the FRENCH NEW WAVE ???

and coming autumn 1979, first world publication of MAXIM JAKUBOWSKI's erotic SF novel

the phosphorus war

all with

KESSELRING-éditeur 28, RUE ROSENWALD - 75015 PARIS -

A391 Kristine Jordan	S3300 Robert J Kern	A2294 C Kowalczyk
A389 Jean Jordan	A3026 Michael E Kerpan Jr	S3189 Ellen M Kozak
A3340 Mireille Jost	S3105 John C Kerr	S3517 Peter Kragelund
S3346 W Judge	A1499 Lalee Kerr	A423 Larry Kramer
A1774 George G Jumper	A1434 Henk Kersbergen	A424 Clif Kranish
A2570 Lasse Junell	S411 Paul R Keske	A1592 Kathryn K Krauel
S3064 Dana M Jung	A412 Greg Ketter	A2230 Irene Krawec
S2841 Neil E Kaden	A18 Leroy Kettle	S2078 Arline E Kriftcher
A392 Ginger Kaderabek	A2762 Andrew Key	A1404 Roberto Kriscak
A2016 Dave Kadlecek	A3397 Eden Rain Keyes	A2103 Joseph D Krolik
A2936 Richard Kadrey	A3395 William R Keyes	A425 Judy Krupp
A2432 Eric Kagan	A1083 Anne Keylock	A426 Roy Krupp
A2431 Janet Kagan	S2719 Virginia Kidd	A2008 Malcolm J Kudra
A861 Katharine L Kan	A2160 James P Killus	A3337 Christine Kugler
A3481 Kathleen A Kanarski	A1354 Annette Kilworth	S2330 Annmarie Kuliga
A3482 Thomas A Kanarski	A1353 Garry Kilworth	A427 Waldemar Kumming
A393 Beverly Kanter	A100 Paul Kincaid	A2916 Gary Kurtz
A394 Ira Allan Kaplowitz	A3396 Criss Annette Kindred	A2653 Katherine Kurtz
A396 David Karp	A1475 Annamarie Kindt	A2918 Melissa Kurtz
A1776 Duane M Karr	A1474 Leo Kindt	A2917 Meredith Kurtz
S395 Linda K Karrh	S413 Barry King	A2919 Tiffany Kurtz
A3086 Phyllis Ann Karr	A414 Deborah A King	A2834 Dave Kurzman
A1775 Robert G Karr	A3132 FO - Rob King	A428 Tim Kyger
A397 Keith G Kato	A2970 Joy H King	A429 A C Kyle
A398 Richard Katze	A2859 Nigel King	A990 Dave Kyle
S2077 Roger A Katz	S3060 Paul G King	A430 Kerry Kyle
S3034 Sherry Katz	A3131 Rob King	A989 Ruth Kyle
S401 Keith Kaufman	A415 Trina E King	A3144 Dirk Lachner
A400 Jerry Kaufman	A3295 Tappan W King	A1885 Raphael A Lafferty
A399 Gail Kaufman	A2188 Tim R King	A2877 David J Lally
S3382 Andrew J Kaveney	S2454 Larry Kirk	A3562 Dr J P Lalo
S402 Philip Kaveny	A3264 Barbara Kitson	A2084 Mike Lalor
A3415 Antoinette Kazmer	S2527 Thomas J Klaehn	A3237 John P Lamar
S2129 Melissa M Keck	A416 David K M Klaus	A2394 Margaret R Lambert
A403 Leah E Keefer	A417 Jay Kay Klein	A3581 Rene Lamont
A3044 Morris M Keesam	S418 Shelley Klein	A1848 Peter J Lancaster
A2486 Joann Keeseey	A1874 Beverly Klemes	S432 Dr Stephen Landau
A404 Margaret Keifer	A1734 Zweitse Klous	A433 Jim Landau
A1767 N Jane Kelley	A1440 Gary Klupfel	A434 C P Langeveld
A3599 Mike Kelly	A1439 Uschi Klupfel	A2347 Joan M Langeveld
S405 Patrick Kelly	A3225 Liesje Knappert	A1027 Dave Langford
A3511 Tricia Kelly	A2932 Betty Knight	A1028 Hazel Langford
A406 Floyd Kempske	A2602 Stephen F Knight	A3198 Bob Langley
A407 Mary Kennard	S419 John W Knott Jr	A436 Sarah B Langner
A408 Peggy Kennedy	S420 Charles A Knox	A435 John Langner
A409 Pat Kennedy	A3435 Yvonne Knox	A437 Devra Langsam
S3512 Patrick M Kennedy	A1599 Colleen Kobe	A1728 Kathinka Lannoy
A2363 Ted Kennedy	A1567 Raymond Kobe	A3275 Penny Lansdell
A1335 Barbara Kennedy	A2162 Dorothy J Kocher	S438 Mac Larson
A1185 Leigh Kennedy	S421 Irvin Koch	A3112 Inge R L Larsson
A1186 John Kennedy	S1588 William G Koegl	A439 Stephen Larue
S2134 Mike Kennedy	A2447 Ted Koester	S440 LASFS
A2364 Peter Kennedy	A2449 Laurie Koester	S441 George J Laskowski Jr
A1787 Adam C Kent	A2448 Sandra Koester	A1527 Lyndal Last
A1788 Dorothy Kent	A1993 Christos Kolovaris	A442 Timothy W Latimer
A1504 Dale Kenworthy	A2172 Samuel Edward Konkin III	A3303 Tina J Lattanzio
A2551 Bill Kepner	A422 Kenneth R Konkol	A1142 Joseph Lattin
A1495 Ben van Kerkvoorde	A3251 Kosmos Book Distributors Ltd	A2634 Robert H Laurent
A3195 Andrew Kerley	A3200 Mike Kott	A1465 Margaret Laux
A2021 Hans Kernast	S2791 Sue Kovach	A443 Deedee Lavander
A410 Mark H Kernes		A444 Roy Lavander

ANDROMEDA

BOOKSHOP

CATALOGUES ISSUED REGULARLY....SCIENCE FICTION

HARDCOVER—PAPERBACK—MAGAZINES....NEW & USED.

FANTASY—HORROR—STAR TREK/TV—BOOKS ON FILMS

REFERENCE & NON FICTION—ART BOOKS—ALL IN

SEND S.A.E. FOR SAMPLE CATALOGUE

57 Summer Row
Birmingham B3 1JJ

Tel: (021) 236 1112

A1565 Elizabeth Anne Lavelle	A464 Rick Lieder	A480 Carl Lundgren
A2304 June Laverick	A3185 Anton Lien	S2490 Carl Lumdgren Jr
A2342 Russell Laverick	A465 Dennis Lien	A482 Anita Gail Lundry
S2241 Donna L Laviana	A2493 Gregg C Lien	A483 Donald W Lundry
A445 Dan Law	A2894 Jean-Marc Ligny	A484 Grace Lundry
A3254 Gerald Lawrence	S466 Guy H Lillian III	A485 Melanie Lundry
A2212 P M Lawrence	A1832 Martine Limonne	A2420 Sam Lundwall
A2057 Ann L Lawrence	A3068 Wendy Lindboe	S486 Christine Lundy
A2964 Chris K Lawson	S467 Wm Linden	A487 Frank Lunney
A2963 Jerry L Lawson	A3140 Vincent van der Linden	A3520 Marc Lupescu
S446 James H Lawson	A2516 Michael Lindow	A2251 Francis Lustman
A3463 Steven G Lawson	A2542 Per Lindqvist	S3332 Marcus Luther
A2968 Cpt Henry Lazarus	A469 Ethel Lindsay	A489 Lesleigh Luttrell
A2295 Patrick Leahy	A468 Eric Lindsay	A488 Hank Luttrell
A1591 Norma Leblanc	A470 Tamar Lindsay	A491 Ro Lutz-Nagey
A1355 Marianne Leconte	S2720 Bill F Lindsay	A490 Linda Lutz-Nagey
S2117 Katherine Lederer	S471 D Lites	A2370 Friedrich Lutz
S447 Rebecca A Ledock	A472 Elan Jane Litt	A2086 Michael Luwish
A448 Johnny Lee	A473 Clay Little	A492 Bradford Lyau
A1601 Evelyn C Leeper	A2235 Ron Little	S2002 Ruth Kwitko Lym
A1602 Mark R Leeper	A1415 Richard Litwinczuk	S1892 Dick & Nicki Lynch
A2775 Steven R Lee	A1436 Ian Livingstone	A2495 Janet Lynch
A2615 Tanith Lee	A1466 Tommy Ljungberg	A1862 M Lynch
A3028 Scott A Legore	A2383 Mike Llewellyn	A1241 Paul Lyne
A2636 Ursula K Leguin	A1671 Craig Lloyd	A2519 Carol Lynn
A3150 Henri Lehalle	A1244 Brian Locke	A2709 Elizabeth A Lynn
A3394 Steve Leialoha	A1242 George Locke	A648 Peter Mabey
A449 Hope Leibowitz	A1243 Rita Locke	A1147 Beatrice MacDermott
A1619 Dale I Leifeste	A1846 Tom Locke	A3201 Kathleen MacDermott
A1511 A P Leigh	A2402 Locus Publications (2)	A1146 Aubrey MacDermott
A2124 Linda Leismer	A2401 Locus Publications (1)	S1162 Spike MacPhee
A450 Tauna Lemarbe	A2909 Jeremy Lodge	A582 Kames R Madden
A1333 Pat Lennon	A474 Tracey Lee Logan	A2682 Kathleen Madigan
A1041 Dave Lermitt	A3135 Manuel van Loggem	A2897 Pam Madison
S452 Lawrence J Lerner	A475 Kathei Logue	A2896 Charles A Madison
A451 Fred Lerner	A431 Brian Lombard	A1655 Billie L Madle
A1645 Thomas Leshendok	A476 Jenny Lombard	A1656 Robert A Madle
A454 Maureen P Leshendok	A1380 Alison Longbottom	A3336 Harald Maertens
A1152 Margie Lessinger	A1861 Martin Longley	A2497 Patrick L Maguire
A1046 Colin Lester	A477 Tom Longo	A584 Debbie K Mahaffey
A2751 Viviane Lesy	A478 Anne Looker	A585 Michael A Mahaffey
A3062 Elise Levenson	S2138 Laurie J Loomis	A583 Beatrice Mahaffey
A455 Cynthia Levine	A1061 Hans Loose	A2025 R H Mahoney MD
A2768 Michael Levin	A2110 Jean LOrrah	A1052 Joyce Mains
A456 Joel Levinson	S2734 Linda Lounsbury	A2239 Rita Malcolm
A457 Melody Levinson	A479 Robert G Lovell	A2238 Donald Malcolm
A2773 Paul Levitz	A2853 Steve Lovett	A586 Michael James Maley
A3401 Lon Levy	S2007 Danny Low	A1617 Ted Manekin
A1438 Bill Lewis Jr	A1982 Alison Lowe	S587 O Paul Maness Jr
A1503 Gareth Lewis	A1048 John Lowe	S1654 Laurie D T Mann
A459 Henry Charles Lewis	A1347 Nick Lowe	A2502 Colin Mansfield
A460 Susan Lewis	S3208 K Lowry	A2503 Carole Mansfield
A461 Tawna Lee Lewis	S3423 Chris Lubs	A3333 Judy Mansfield
A458 Tony Lewis	A3522 Charlie H Luce Jr	A588 Ken Manson
A3577 Jos Lexmond	A2524 Alan Luck	S2942 Sharon Alban Maples
A1573 Solomon Lichtenberg	A3269 Duncan Lunan	A2827 Doreen Marchant
A462 Jacqueline Lichtenberg	A3270 Linda Lunan	S2156 Mari Bara Assoc
A2540 Torun Lidfeldt	A3568 Vera Lunde	S3268 Lou V Marino III
S1992 Bib Lidral	A2488 Cara Lundgren	A590 Tim Marion
A463 Daniel F Lieberman	S2489 Kitty Lundgren	A589 Tad Markham
S3406 Paula Lieberman	A481 Michelle Lundgren	A2677 Dana Marlatt

G.M. WEBB
B.Sc., M. Phil., M. Inst. P., F.B.I.S.
Professional Space Scientist and Science Fiction Expert and Enthusiast.

D. Kyle,
Representative U.S.A.

SCIENCE FICTION CONSULTANTS

Largest available collection of reference and illustrative material in U.K.

67, Shakespeare Road, HANWELL,
LONDON W.7.
01-567 6985 or 01-997 2381

WHO

PREDICTED HOW SKYLAB WOULD FALL. ?
WOULD NEVER COPYWRITE HYPERSPACE. ?
CAN TELL A FLAT-CAT FROM A TRIBBLE. ?
ANSWERED 42 TO KEN CAMPBELL'S QUESTION. . . . ?
...ALSO WALKS DOGS?

Gerry Webb of

Science Fiction Consultants

HAS THE BACKING AND CAPABILITY IN ALL ASPECTS OF SCIENCE FACT/SCIENCE FICTION

EST. 1976 REG NO. 2304876

A2678	Lauren Marlatt	S3215	Shayne McCormack	A3363	Ursula Michuta
S2552	Mark Marley	A2229	John Chas McCormack	S1201	Morris H Middleton
S3419	Jacque Marshall	A1949	Martha McCray	S1902	Margaret S Middleton
S2166	Ted Marshall	A3032	Gabriela McCubbrey	A1905	Cheryl van Middlesworth
A3120	Dominique Martel	S3031	Doug McCubbrey	A1904	Ralph H van Middlesworth
A593	Adrienne Martine	A3033	David L McCubbrey	A607	John Miesel
A591	Diane F Martin	A1748	Ann McCutchen	A608	Sandra Miesel
A2996	Jeff Martin	A1749	Terry McCutchen	A1121	Jean Milbergue
A592	George R R Martin	A1808	Steven Edward McDonald	A2388	Norman Milburn
A2464	Hugh P Mascetti	A1766	Don McDonald	A2844	Jim Milburn
A2660	Gary Maschke	A3180	Anthony V McEwan	A1115	John Millard
A2659	Carol Maschke	A581	Margaret McEwen	A610	Craig Miller
A3148	Riccardo Masera	S2957	Mark J McGarry	A1911	Deanna Sue Miller
A2515	Ellen Mason	A2227	Peter McGarvey	A2639	Linda Miller
A2792	Donna L Massara	A2226	Kay McGarvey	A3257	Co Miller
A594	Candice Lee Massey	A2268	June McGaw	A3256	Mel Miller
A595	Marty Massoglia	A1576	Jack E McGillis II	A609	Alan F Miller
A2864	Philip Masters	A1923	Charles McGrew	A1054	Laurence Miller
A1563	Teresa O Mata	A2334	Robert McInnes	A1763	Gay Miller
A2939	Chris A Mathews	A1756	Vonda McIntyre	A1179	Bruce M Miller
A2011	Vera Matich	A1704	Charles McKee	A1562	Ben W Miller
A3207	Trev Matlock	A3176	Arthur McKendrick	A2259	Bruce Chubb Miller
A1672	Glen Matthews	A2899	Kajsa McKinney	A2843	Milo E Miller
A2357	Elaine Matthews	A2898	Rich McKinney	A1109	Chris B Mills
A596	Denise M Mattingly	S3374	Joanne McLain	A2269	Nick Mills
S3528	Alan Mattingly	S2635	Michael McLaughlin	A1013	Bonny Milner
A597	Gary S Mattingly	A2140	Hugh McLean	A1012	Rod Milner
A598	Mary Ellen Matyi	A1280	Richard McMahan	A1606	Teresa Minambres
S3151	Steven M Matz	A1959	Mcihael McMaster	A611	M Ruth Minyard
A1357	Jean Maudsley	A1177	William McMillan	A1599	Lauraine Miranda
A599	J Graham Maughan	A3065	Clifford R McMurray	A2980	Vincent Miranda
A1043	Ian Maule	A2205	Mike McNabb	A2913	Nod Mirhady
A1042	Janice Maule	A2204	Helen McNabb	A1783	Gian Luigi Missiaja
A1557	Malagoli Maurizio	A1392	John McPharlin	A1528	Sue Ann Mitchell
A2087	Frederick J Mayer	A3289	Judith McQuown	A1288	John Mitchell
A2738	Helmutt Mayer	A3548	Frank E McShane	A25	Kathleen Mitchell
A2840	Chris Mayers	A3022	Christine McWilliams	A1769	G Ann Mitschek
A600	Joseph T Mayhew	A3296	Beth Meacham	A1395	Martha L Mittelstadt
A2009	Jeffrey May	A2880	J A Meads	S612	Howard Modell
S2671	Joseph T Mayor	A602	Mike Meara	A613	June M Moffatt
A2376	Krsio Mazuranic	A603	Pat Meara	A614	Len Moffatt
A601	Frederic M Mazursky	A604	Banks H Mebane	A3284	Rashad Mohamed
A3592	Angus McAllister	A2079	Richard C Meece	A3281	Sadiq Mohamed
A2094	Richard McAllister	A1420	Roxanne Meida	A3283	Rafi Mohamed
A2095	Linda McAllister	A2470	Christian Meistermann- Gueret	A3282	Saleema Mohamed
A1224	Donald McArthur	A2471	Lyvie Meistermann- Gueret	A2303	M R Moir
A1639	George McAulay	A605	Constance Mellott	A3573	Ed Mol
A1640	George McAulay	A2528	Lori Meltzer	A2367	Wolfgang Moldon
A2096	Jo-Anne McBride	S2247	Marco Mendez	A1484	Lex Molenhoek
A579	Vincent McCaffrey	A2868	Eric Mendlow	A1402	Roberto Molgora
A1290	Anne McCaffrey	A3325	Williams R Meredith	S615	Caroline Molitch
A2689	Shirley A McCann	A1770	Mark Merlino	A2293	Neil Moloney
A580	Paul M McCall	S3507	Melvin Merritt	S3330	Charles Monteith
A1361	Jill McCaul	A1173	Mary M Mertens	A3100	D V Montgomery
A3104	G T McCauley	A1108	Ed Meskys	A1423	John Mooney
S3209	Brian McClure	A1496	Gerard Metekohy	A3163	David C Moor
A1121	Karen McClymonds	A606	Kathyann Meyer	S2505	Celia Moore
A1122	Pauline McClymonds	A1137	Paul Michals	S2504	David Moore
A1120	Donna McClymonds-Haines			A3057	Jean Moore
A2446	Annette McComas			S1940	Jerry S Moore
A2398	Cheryl McCombs			A2408	Kathleen A Moore

ray
bradbury:

"(I HAVE) BEEN CONSTANTLY PLEASED, OCCASIONALLY DELIGHTED, AND OFTEN MOVED"

ON where does the real go when it's GONE?

?

KELLY FREAS
SAN JOSE 79

by

Frederick J. Mayer

WRITE: 1622 N STREET , # 302 , SACRAMENTO , CALIFORNIA 95814 , USA

S616	Lou Moore	S2240	Ken Nahigian	A3279	David North
A3045	Matthew Moore	A1968	Mark L van Name	A3042	David R Northcutt
S1005	Perry Glen Moore	A2730	Rana van Name	A1095	Frederick Norwood
A3454	Susan Moore	S3425	Ron Nance	A1096	Mary Norwood
S1916	Todd Moore	A1741	Marva van Natta	A632	John J Novak
S1383	Ian Moor	A2646	Dave Nee	A2512	Maggie Nowakowska
A1410	Myra Morales	A3335	Marvin L Nelsen	A1467	Beth Nutgeren
A3329	Keith Moran	A3537	Caroline Nelson	A1353	Marjorie Nuttall
A1532	Sharon Mordley	A2090	Jenny C Nelson	A1352	Stan Nuttall
A3447	Charles Moreau	A1794	Michele Neri	S633	George E Nyhen
A945	Chris Morgan	S624	Virginia L Nesnidal	A1107	Mike O'Brien
A2426	Martyn Morgan	A625	Barnett A Neufeld	A1371	Rodney O'Connor
A1016	Pauline E Morgan	A3010	J M Nevin	S2586	Michael O'Donnell
A1877	W Morgan	A3050	New American Library	A2696	Roseann O'Kane
A2785	Gerald M Moriarty	S1660	New England SF Assoc	A3442	S O'Neale
A2786	Richard M Moriarty	A1068	Joan Newman	A3294	Patrick D O'Neill
A3317	N A Morland	A1067	John Newman	A1797	Stephanie Oberembt
A2813	Arlene Morlidge	A2650	I Newman	A1084	Keith Oborn
A2296	David Morris	A3197	Kim D Newman	A2417	Joyce M Odum
A1015	Jill Morris	A626	Sanford Rik Newman	A2816	Klaus Oettinger
A1331	Alan Morris	S627	Bruce Newrock	S634	Jodie Offutt
A1958	Richard Morrissey	S628	Flo Newrock	A2915	M A Ogier
A2064	Skip Morris	A629	Richard Newsome	A3108	Guntram Ohmacht
A2704	Duane Morse	A1472	Henry Newton	A2050	Frank C Olbris
A617	Geraldine Morse	A3039	Barry L D Newton	A3508	Harry F Oleson Jr
A1938	Ellen Mortimer	A3038	Judith J Newton	A3509	S Melodie Oleson
A2343	Judy Mortimore	A3102	Kimberly M Newton	A637	M S Olinyk
A1286	Roy Mortimore	A1473	Cherry Newton	A635	Paul R Oliver
A1287	Daphne Mortimore	A3307	Barbara Nichol	A636	Rosa B Oliver
A1468	Gary Moseley	S2265	Stan Nicholls	A2267	P F Oldroyd
A1469	Ken Moseley	A1336	Peter Nicholls	A640	Rondinella Olsen
A1530	Helene R Moses	A1285	Joseph Nicholas	A638	Karl Olsen
S618	Chris Moskowitz	A1534	Ann Nichols	A639	Lin Olsen
A619	Charlotte Moslander	A1130	Warren Nicholson	A2806	Per G Olsen
A2924	Justin Moss	A1535	Mary Nichols	A641	Mark L Olson
S620	Linda Ann Moss	A2673	Catherine L Nicholson	A642	Frank Olynyk
A2752	Jean-Pierre Moumon	A1795	Piergiorgio Nicolazzini	S2903	Lawrence Onesky
A3572	Jeanine Mouton-David	A1461	Saverio Nicoletti	A3025	Anne Opalinski
S621	Joe Moudry	A2263	Marianne Nielsen	A2167	Patricia C Orendi
A2831	Paul Mower	A3334	Uwe Nielsen	A3302	Jane M Orient
S2113	Janet S Mowry	A2804	Hans Chr Nielsen	A1129	Sue Orinski
A2588	Philip Muldowney	A1458	Nigel's Myth	A2089	Robert Osband
A3368	Claudia Muller	A1087	Takis Nikolaou	A2564	Lena Osterman
A1320	Annie Mullins	A630	Larry Niven	A1913	Per Osterman
A2043	Patricia A Munson	A631	Marilyn Niven	A2536	Jan Osterman
A2297	Andrew Murdin	A3172	Maggie Noach	S643	Ben Ostrander
A1543	John Murdock	A3429	Charles E Noad	S2092	Glen Oswald
A1542	Daryl Murdock	A2697	S Nockles	A2995	Jean Ann Oswald
A2466	Mr J Murnin	A3029	Pamela Noland	A3143	Rosemarie Ott-Heinemann
S3357	Judith K Murphy	A3448	Richard D Nolane	A2908	Connie Lilliss Otty
A1081	Ken Murphy	A1657	Patricia C Nolan	A2288	Susan Oudot
S622	James A Murray	A2805	Gunnar Norby	A3384	Simon Ounsley
A623	James J Murray	A2836	Anthony Norden	A1480	Paul van Oven
A3413	Mara Murray	A2837	Valerie Norden	A2412	Darrell C Overcash
A3247	Richard Murray	S2574	Thomas Norgren	A644	A D Owen
A2193	Jeff Myers	A3476	Roger Norman	A1374	John Owen
A2036	Roy A Myers	S2102	Julie O Normand	A645	Tom Owen
A3231	Timothy Myers	S2101	Phil Normand	S646	Mark Owings
A2571	Oivind Myhre	S2961	Clay Norris	A647	K W Ozanne
A2572	Torun Myhre	A1208	Margaret R Norsworthy	A1060	Marea Ozanne
A2279	Harry Nadler	A3043	Gaye S Northcutt	A1537	George R Paczolt

Two Terrific SF Titles from Dell

SHADOW OF EARTH

by Phyllis Eisenstein

A thrilling odyssey of romantic adventure in an alternate reality—in which the English fleet did not defeat the Spanish Armada in 1588! $2.25

THE WILK ARE AMONG US

by Isidore Haiblum

The author of Interworld, Outerworld, and The Return—with a new tale of adventure on a horrifying, bizarre planet: Earth! $1.95

Publishing the best of the new writers
and the established stars.

A3371	Fabio Pagan	A1906	Gerald Pearce	A1210	Cathy Piotrowski
A2881	John Page	A1907	Joan D Pearce	A1281	Brenda Piper
A2811	K S Page	A2679	Elizabeth Pearse	A1279	David Piper
A1103	Sue Pagram	A2425	Christine Pearson	S2159	W McKeel Pitchford II
A2874	Mike Paine	S2136	Nancy Peay	A1362	Marion Pitman
S3127	D H Painter	A1500	Ellen Pedersen	S2119	Stan Pittman
S1711	Lexie Pakulak	A2974	Ted A Pedersen	S3149	Gian Filippa Pizzo
S1710	Jeannette Pakulak	A1039	Bernard Peek	A2271	Patrick Place
S649	Bob Palat	S665	David Peer	S3009	Dwaine M Ploeg
A650	Robert Scott Pallack	A998	Bruce Pelz	S2971	Gary L Plumlee
A651	Gregg Palmer	A1009	Elayne Pelz	A1384	Keith Plunkett
A2196	Allan Palmer	S2482	Ellen Pena	A2439	Ryan G Plut
A3443	Clare Palmer	A1729	Mrs W H Penard	S2032	Stephen D Poe
A2256	Pauline Palmer	A666	Dave Pengelly	A674	Frederik Pohl
A1026	Philip John Palmer	A2870	Cathie Penman	A3355	Michael J Poland
S1090	Alexei Panshin	A2869	Thom Penman	A1618	James Andrew Polk
S2721	Sharon Panzer	A3166	David Penn	A1386	Gerald Pollinger
A2201	P Paolini	A2345	A B Perkins	A2522	Priscilla Pollner
A3063	Jeff del Papa	A1970	Dennis W Pernaa	S3331	Philip Pollock
S3072	Robert J Papatheodorou	A2441	K Perrott	A2260	A R Poock
A2736	Joanne Papin	A2440	C G Perrott	A675	Graham R Poole
A1283	Darroll Pardoe	S667	Alix Perry	S153	Prof Alf van der Poorten
A1284	Rosemary Pardoe	S669	Brian Perry	S2083	Elizabeth Pope
A1714	Nellie Pardoel	S670	Elizabeth R Perry	A676	Judy Renee Pope
A1926	D S Parisen	A2332	Martin Perry	A677	Ann Popplestone
A1557	Mrs J Parker	S3306	Meldee Perry	A678	Andrew Porter
S652	Jeff Parker	A668	Tom Perry	S2945	Rosanna Postelnek
A1405	J E Parker	A3499	Robert J Pesavento	S3087	Robert Post
A2485	Tony E Parker	A3603	Hector Raul Pessina	A679	D Potter
S3518	Rembert N Parker	A2928	Emil Petaja	A680	Pat Potts
A3224	Richard E J Parkins	A1781	Agnes Peterffy	A686	Ruth Pournelle
A2600	William Park	A1411	Becky D Peters	A685	Roberta Pournelle
A653	James Parrish	A2868	Mrs Peters	A1839	Alex Pournelle
A1282	Celia Parsons	A2867	Ian Peters	A681	Francis Pournelle
A2280	Charles Partington	A1158	Denice M Peterson	A682	Dr J E Pournelle
S3047	Christine Pasanen	A2553	Michael Peterson	A683	Phillip Pournelle
A1154	Bob Passavoy	S2724	Joyce Corrine Peterson	A684	Richard Pournelle
A1155	Anne Passavoy	A2548	Chris Pettus	A3124	Christine Poutout
A3468	Joan S Paterson	A2428	Carrie Peyton	A3539	David S Power
S654	Joseph Patrouch Jr	A17	Arline Peyton	A1604	Kennedy Poyser
A655	Fred Patten	A16	Roger Peyton	A1603	Victoria Poyser
S2131	Wendy Lee Patterson	A672	Carole C Pflock	A2187	Janet Prato
S2130	William Patterson	A671	Karl T Pflock	S687	Robert B Pratt Jr
A3321	Hartley Patterson	A3428	Linda Ruth Pfonner	A1453	Andy Pratt
S1585	Patti	A3319	Dean O Phares	A2815	Anita Presford
A1771	Judith R Paul	S673	Susan C Phillips	A2346	Peter Presford
A657	Donald Pauley	A3606	Valerie Piacentini	A1961	Audrey Price
A3586	Kyle Pauley	A2754	Camille Pichon	A1326	Dai Price
A3585	Leon Pauley	A1031	Tim Pickard	A1571	George W Price
A2783	Mark Paulk	A1074	Greg Pickersgill	A2219	Mary Price
A656	Sara M Paul	A2146	Maggie Pierce	A2218	Richard Price
A658	Karen J Pauls	A1858	Georges Pierru	A1321	Chris Priest
A659	Ted Pauls	A1498	John Piggott	A2780	Anna Prince
A660	Ross Pavlac	A2387	Alex S Pillai	A688	Sarah Prince
A662	Missy Pavlat	S2517	James Pilvinis	A1319	David Pringle
A661	Bob Pavlat	A2703	Cheryl Pinckard	A2194	Phillip Probert
A663	Peggy Rae Pavlat	A2702	G Thomas Pinckard	A2718	Liz Procter
S664	James T R Paxton	A2701	Terri E Pinckard	A1352	L Proctor
A1225	Martin D Pay	A2099	Spencer E Pinney	A689	Frederick Prophet
A1616	Natalie S Paymer	A1040	Peter Pinto	A1156	Lawrence W Propp
A3460	J M Peabody			S2657	Gary D Propstein

A Summer Extravaganza of Dell SF & Fantasy

Featuring 6 outstanding selections

THE PERSISTENCE OF VISION

by John Varley

A Quantum Book. "The best short story collection of the decade."—Isaac Asimov's SF Magazine. Includes the 1978 Nebula Award winner! $2.25

BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES OF THE YEAR

edited by Gardner R. Dozois

The 9 top stories of the year, including Stardance (Hugo and Nebula Award winner) by Spider and Jeanne Robinson and The Screwfly Solution (Nebula Award winner) by Raccoona Sheldon. Illustrated. $1.95

JUDGMENT NIGHT

by C.L. Moore

Romantic, swashbuckling tales of life among the stars, by one of the all-time SF greats! $2.25

NIGHTWATCH

by Andrew M. Stephenson

Excellent SF in the tradition of Arthur C. Clarke and Larry Niven. $1.95

BINARY STAR #3

DR. SCOFFLAW by Ron Goulart

OUTERWORLD by Isidore Haiblum

Two hilarious mystery adventures by outstanding SF humorists. Third in our unique series. Illustrated. $1.95

THE ETERNAL CHAMPION

by Michael Moorcock

Heroic fantasy at its best. The first volume in the title trilogy. $1.95

Publishing the best of the new writers
and the established stars.

S1815 Edith Pruss	A1834 Jean Reval	S718 Rochester Science Fact and Fiction Assoc
S1816 Gilbert Pruss	A2595 Ronald W Revere	A2705 Debi Rodder
A2979 Geraldine Przeslawski	S2125 George E Reynolds	S3504 Larry Roeder
A3035 Patri Pugliese	A2148 Mark Reynolds	A719 Bob Roehn
S2521 Andy Purcell	A3243 Rochelle M Reynolds	A720 Dick Roepke
A3571 Wilma Pusterla	S1888 Mark D Rhodes	A721 David W Roesler
A2854 Ellen Puurman	A1967 Robert J Rhodes	A1296 Mic Rogers
A778 Jo Ann S Putnam- Scholes	A2313 Stephen Rice	A1554 Mark Rogers
A1063 Terry Pyle	A1817 Tony Richards	A1547 Harry Rogers
A1870 Liliana Quaratesi	A2210 Colin Richards	S1932 Mike Rogers
A3462 Janet Quarton	S706 Mark E Richards	A1548 Gayle Rogers
S690 Bruce R Quayle	A2761 Paul L Richards	A1298 Doreen Rogers
A2299 Mr N J Quinn	A3452 Phil Richards	A1327 Don Rogers
A2339 Alan Quirt	A1417 Louise Richards	A1297 Tony Rogers
A2338 Sandra Quirt	A705 Frank Richards	A1546 Val Rogers
A3230 John Rabson	S3352 Ribert J M Rickard	A722 Phil Rogers
A691 Alan Rachlin	A2991 Reid Mason Riddell	A1549 Tony Rogers
A1650 Lee Radigan	A707 Ira Lee Riddle	A723 Randy Rohrbough
A1303 Charles Frank Radley	A708 Polly Riddle	A1416 Hal Rollason
A2456 Boyd Raeburn	S1586 Verlane Riddle	A2380 Derek J Rolls
A3260 Joe Rafferty	A2216 Stuart Riddle	A724 David B Romm
A1302 Dave Raggett	A2953 Mary Jane Riech	S2066 Noel Rosales
A2766 M W Raisbeck	A709 Judy King Rieniets	A725 Harrison M Rose
S3216 Blair Ramage	A710 Howard Rifhin	A1642 Michele Rosenberg
A3178 Philip Ramp	A3007 Jacqueline B Riley	A1345 Betty Rosenblum
A3179 Sarah Ramp	A711 Michael Riley	A729 Howard Rosenblum
A3431 Robert M Randolph	A1746 Thron Riley	A728 Scott Rosenberg
S2496 Lavona S Rann	A1798 Roberto Rimondini	A726 Stephanie Lee Rosenbaum
A692 James E Ransom	A2926 Brenna Ring	A727 Robert A Rosenberg
A693 Valerie A Ransom	A2925 Barbara Ring	A2366 Roland Rosenbauer
S694 Joan M Rapkin	A2927 Katherine Ring	A1522 Sue-Rae Rosenfeld
S695 Myron C Rapkin	A3989 Jacob Rip	A731 Steven J Rosenstein
A3203 Patricia Ravitt	A712 Bill Ritch	A730 Elvse S Rosenstein
S2699 Andrew M Rawling	A2812 D W Rix	A733 William H Ross Jr
S696 Jerry C Rawlinson	S713 Gretchen Lee Rix	A3293 David M Ross
A697 Jason Ray	S714 David A Roach	A1337 Juliana Ross
A2147 Jane C Raymer	S2520 R Bruce Robbins	A1520 Kathy Ross
A2663 W Irene Reddick	S2666 Gary R Robe	A732 Linda D Ross
S698 Robert L Redmond	A715 Carol A Roberts	A734 Charles Roth
A3271 Diana Reed	A3560 Helena Roberts	S2501 Susan Rothman
A3474 Martin Reed	A716 John P Roberts	A1773 Allan A Rothstein
S2973 Larry W Reese	S1764 Michelle L Roberts	A1700 William Rotsler
A3369 Cesare Reggiani	A717 Jo Robertson	A1399 Brian Rouse
A3370 Mrs Reggiani	A2173 Beth Van Over Roberts	A2190 Rita R Rousseau
A699 Randy Reichardt	2175 Kenneth Mygatt Roberts	A1209 Kathryn J Routliffe
A2024 Larry L Reid	A19 Peter Roberts	A1053 Dave Rowe
A2023 Mary-Karen Reid	S2331 Peggy Roberts	A736 E L Rowe
S700 Jason Rein	S2954 P Roberts	A737 Thomas C Rowe
A1170 Midge Reitan	A2174 John Maddox Roberts	S738 Vincent Rowe
A1358 Peter J Relton	A1800 Roger Robinson	A1030 Marcus L Rowland
A2978 Barbara Renko	S2276 Ian Robinson	A3354 David Rowley
A2977 Dorothy M Renko	A2152 Jeanne Robinson	A1106 Cedric Rowley
A3580 Auguste Rens	A1300 T R Robinson	A3449 S Rowley
S1974 Neil H Renton Jr	A1085 Brian Robinson	S2624 Glen Rowsam
A703 Laura Resnick	A1628 Jack F Robinson Jr	A740 Eveleen Roy
A702 Mike Resnick	A3036 Gregory Robinson	A739 John F Roy
A701 Carol Resnick	A1627 Kathryn Ann Robinson	A2930 Charles Rozanski
A704 Neil Rest	A2151 Spider Robinson	S741 Robin R Rubel
A2561 Helena Reutersward	A2354 Mr B Robinson	A2674 Joyce Rubin
A1338 Anders Reutersward	A1299 Alan Robson
	A1871 N G Robson

JULES VERNE?

BARBARELLA?

THAT WAS A LONG TIME AGO

for all that is new in French SF

TEMPS
FUTURS

THE LARGEST SF SHOP IN PARIS

(old and new)

SF books & magazines
comix strips french & us posters toys calendars

postcards

8 rue DANTE PARIS 5^e tel 325 85 19
off boulevard saint-germain
or just write for the free catalogue

A3069 Bruce K Rudd	A769 Jan Schaadt	A1339 Robert Shaw
A1568 Karl Fritz Ruehr	A770 Philip Schaadt	A5 Sadie Shaw
A742 Lawrence A Ruh	A768 Thomas E Schaad	A2875 Nick Shears
A3471 Susan Rule	S771 Kathi Schaefer	A2876 Audrey Shears
S743 Steven E Runin	A2566 Bertil A G Schalen	A3465 Abby Sheckley
A744 Eileen F Ruppert	A772 Jeff Schalles	A3464 Bob Sheckley
A2654 J Edmund Rush	A2861 Jane E Scharfenberg	A1863 Harva L Sheeler
"Renfield"	S773 Mary H Schaub	A2324 Charles Sheffield
A2270 Florence Russell	A1091 Dorothy Schaumburger	A3503 Vivian Sheffield
A745 Richard S Russell	A1092 Joseph Schaumburger	A3433 Mark Shepherd
A746 Charles Ryan	A774 Samuel Scheiner	A795 James Shepherd
S3328 Dick Ryan	A3574 Willem Scheltens	S2665 Rickey Steven Sheppard
A747 Mary Ryan	A775 Ken Scher	A3513 Cordelia Sherman
A1059 Andre de Ryck	A1412 Dora Schisler	A2842 Richard C Sherman
A1060 Jet de Ryck	A1578 Ellen Schlakman	A797 T L Sherred
A2418 Linda Saalman	A776 Steve Schleef	A796 Mary L Sherred
A748 Louise Sachter	A1447 Eva Maria Schluck	S798 T M Sherred
A2348 W J Saddler	A1448 Thomas Schluck	A3389 Jean Sheward
A2403 Jacques Sadoul	A3239 Stanley Schmidt	A3533 Takumi Shibano
A2404 Josette Sadoul	A2375 Karl-Heinz Schmitz	A3534 Sachiko Shibano
A749 Art Saha	A777 Ruth Schoenberger	A799 Stu Shiffman
A750 Don Sakers	S1429 James D Schofield	A2005 Ellen Shipley
A751 Jim Saklad	A2889 Raymond Scholer	A2006 William Shipley
A3147 Mariangela Sala	A779 Robert Scholes	S800 Ina Shorrock
S752 Mike Saler	A2541 Sverre Schriwer	A801 Norman Shorrock
A3090 Alan Salmi	S780 Stephen F Schultheis	A802 Elliot Kay Shorter
A753 Doris Salomon	A781 Gary Schulze	A803 Sandra Shorter
A754 Ronald M Salomon	S2362 Mauricio-Jose Schwarz	A2150 Rick L Shupe
A2912 Chris Salton	A782 George H Scithers	A804 Joe Siclari
S756 Martin Saltz	A1188 Craig Scott	S806 Renee Sieber
A757 Rick Saltzman	A2479 Ruby R Scott	S807 Roger Siedlecki
S755 Rita Saltz	S2480 Sarah F Scott	A808 Dana B Siegel
A2285 Robert L Sanders	A783 Joyce Scrivner	A809 Jeff Siegel
A2246 Debra F Sanders	S784 Suzanne Seager	A2625 Stan Sieler
A758 Drew Sanders	A2000 Kathy Sedwick	A2777 J Sieroto
A759 Kathy Sanders	A785 Timothy E Seefeld	A2737 Sandy Sietmann
A3002 Delta Sanderson	A1978 Charles Seelig	A810 Andrew Sigel
A760 Sue E Sanderson	S786 Amelia K Sefton	A2300 Saverio Silingardi
A1551 Margaret Sanders	A3246 Douglas David Seifert	A1197 Robert Silverberg
S761 Richard Sandler	A1629 Ellen Seil	A3134 Kees Simjouw
A2186 Janet Sanford	A1583 William Seil	A3133 Peter Simjouw
A3177 Alan Sangster	A3115 Ewa Sejby	A1972 Dona Simmons
S762 Walter K Sannwald	A787 Phillip Seligman	A1971 William Simmons
A1659 Ben Sano	A788 Gail M Selinger	A3367 Dieter Simon
A2956 Susan Anne Santo	A1538 Nigel Sellars	A811 Erica Simon
A763 John T Sapienza Jr	A2544 Eugene Semitjov	A1939 Stanley Simon
A764 Gene Sargent	A1449 Jeaninne Senten	A2756 Sheila Simonson
A1757 Chandra Sargent	S2361 Judi Sephton	A1986 L E Simons
S765 Joseph Sartelle	A790 Joan N Serrano	A2758 Mickey E Simonson
S1552 SASFS	A1792 Sergio Sessa	A2757 Eric Simonson
A1786 Emilio Sassi	A791 Michael Sestak	A1501 Peter Simpson
S766 Mark Sattolo	S792 Coletta M Sevcik	A812 Jackie Simpson
A2922 John Saunders	A2832 Paul Shackley	A2708 Don Simpson
A1370 Nichola le Saux	A2115 Joseph P Shaine	A1818 Cyril Simsa
A3182 Bruce Saville	A793 David Shank	A813 Patricia Sims
A2976 Steven Sawicki	A1759 Kay Shapero	A814 Roger Sims
S767 Mary Sayer	A1758 Nicolai Shapero	A815 Richard B Sims
A2590 Howard Sayles	A2378 Jessica Shapiro	A1424 Michael Sinclair
S2443 Joe Scanlan	A794 Sharon K Sharp	A816 Jon Singer
A1356 Mike Scantlebury	A3400 Steven Shatz	A1294 Howard Singerman
A2967 Hester Schaad	A4 Bob Shaw	A2161 Raymond P Singer Jr

FOUNDATION

"Consistently the best academic/scholarly sf magazine" -- Science Fiction Review

"Contains some of the best reviews I've ever read" -- Charles N. Brown, IASFM

Each issue of Foundation features autobiographical articles by top sf writers, serious but lively critical essays, and a large selection of in-depth reviews of current sf titles.

Look in the book room for our current issue (no.17) containing articles by Philip K. Dick, Fritz Leiber, Brian Aldiss, D.G. Compton, B.J. Bayley and Charles Platt, plus reviews by Ian Watson, Brian Stableford, John Clute and many more.

Recent issues have featured articles by Aldiss, Michael Bishop, James Blish, Thomas M. Disch, Stanislaw Lem, Michael Moorcock (articles in both no.15 and no.16), Brian Stableford and many more, plus reviews by Clute, Richard Cowper, Christopher Priest, John Sladek, Stableford, Watson, Cherry Wilder, and a cast of thousands.

A year's subscription costs £3.00 ($7.50) until the end of 1979, when these figures rise to £4.00 ($10.00). So don't delay, write now for a subscription (and for details of available back issues) to: Science Fiction Foundation, (Dept A), North East London Polytechnic, Longbridge Road, Dagenham, Essex, RM8 2AS (Cheques etc. payable to Science Fiction Foundation)

David & Charles wish all participants a fine Season

New from David & Charles -
Science Fiction -

ARIES 1

Edited by John Grant

£4.95

The Many Facets of Science Fiction Explored by Such Writers as:

Robert Holdstock

Colin Wilson

David Langford

Terry Tapp

Christopher Priest

Malcolm Harris and many others.

Full of stories that cannot fail to please anyone in search of stimulating, thought-provoking entertainment. Anything can happen in the world of the possible and within these pages, anything does. The stories range across the whole field of science fiction from hilarious space opera to evocative tales of human emotion, from purest flights of the imagination to grim warnings of the future that may await us should the world of the possible suddenly become the disturbing world of the probable.

Available from all good book shops or direct from David & Charles Newton Abbot Devon

A2525 David Singer	S1784 Libreria Solaris	A851 Andrew Stephenson
A2866 Matjaz Sinkovec	S1207 David Solo	A850 Deborah K Stephens
A1379 Traci Sinner	S3273 Keith Soltys	A1524 P V Stephensen-Payne
A1378 Sharon Sinner	A1425 David Somerville	S2778 Debbie E Stephen
S817 Patricia J Sipple	A2807 Oystein Sorensen	A2100 Philip B Stephens
A1690 Giani Siri	A833 Martha Soukup	A3091 Phillip Stephens
S3046 William Siros	S1709 Spaced Out Library	A853 Rick Sternbach
A3446 Wojtek Siudmak	A834 W Sean Spacher	A852 Edith Stern
A2298 Theo Skeat	A3249 Sandra Spacher	A854 Michael Steuart
A1802 Mike Skelding	A2545 Gunnar Spade	S2112 Mark Stevens
A1293 Cas Skelton	S3614 Rus Spangler	A857 Sylvia Stevens
A1292 Paul Skelton	S2427 Mike Speegle	A856 Milton F Stevens
A2206 Fran Skene	S835 Richard C Spelinan	A855 Paul J Stevens
A818 Steven J Skirpan	A2706 Carig Spencer	A858 W D Stevens
A2225 Stanley Skirvin	A2284 C J Spicer	A1623 J L Stevenson
A2220 Joan Skirvin	A3457 Chris Spray	A3486 L Stevenson
A2543 Henry Skoglund	S836 Brenda Springfield	A859 David Stever
A3095 Kathleen Sky	A3158 Frank Springall	A20 John Steward
A1322 Joyce Slater	S2180 Robert W Springer	A1508 Mr J Stewart
A1316 Ken Slater	A2374 Bernd von Sprockhoff	A1069 John Stewart
S819 Richard D Slater	S837 Kathea Spurlock	A1070 Anna Stewart
A1291 Richard Slaughter	A1983 M B Squires	A2994 Susan Lynn Stewart
S2935 Cora M Slinker	S860 David St John	A2905 Linda Stillie
S820 John Sloan	A2668 Thalia St Lewis	A2904 Graeme Stillie
A1712 Johan Slotema	S1131 Stephen M St Onge	A1954 Elizabeth N Stinson
A2197 C Slous	A1414 Brian Stableford	A3487 Derek Stokes
A3252 Malcolm Smale	A838 Joel L Stadtler	S1915 Rick Stolba
A1118 Robert Smets	S839 Darleen Stahl	A1164 Jack Stone
S1367 Alan H Smith	A1315 Martin Stallard	A1153 Debra Stopa
A2278 Brian Smith	S2633 Mark Stanberry	A863 Jon Stopa
A821 Beresford Smith	S840 Mark Stanfill	A862 Joni Stopa
S823 Chris Smith	S841 Steven B Stanley	A1569 Daniel W Story
S826 Deba V Smith	A23 Tim Stannard	A2463 June Strader
A2423 D H Smith	S842 David H Stanton	S1677 John Straede
A1801 Jay E Smith	A843 Donald R Stark	S1678 Cheryl Straede
A1037 Kevin Smith	A2675 David Starr	A1317 David Strahan
A822 Leslie H Smith	A2676 Valerie Starr	A2199 Mike Strain
A2467 L Brent Smith	A844 Sylvia Starshine	A2200 Cynthia Strain
A824 Laurence C Smith	A2460 Joe Staton	A864 Johan Strandberg
A3001 Michele Smith	A2459 Hilarie Staton	A865 Lars-Olov Strandberg
A3285 Mr F R Smith	S2305 Ian J Stearn	A2328 Leslie Strang
A827 Michael T Smith	A845 Bob Stearns	A2277 Andy Strangeways
S825 Michel B Smith	A1533 Jerry H Stearns	A2369 Hubert Strassl
A2211 Philip J Smith	A846 Freda Stearns	A2368 Lore Strassl
A828 Paula Smith	A2105 Judi Steck	A866 Erwin S Strauss
A1550 Richard J Smith	A1445 Daniel Steel	S867 Scott Street
A1343 Ritchie Smith	A1443 Duncan Steel	S2400 Bob Strickler
A829 Lee Smoire	S847 Gary Steele	S2399 Kemp Strickler
A2797 Kenneth M Smookler	A1446 Helen Steel	A868 Linda Strickler
S2154 John Scott Smyth	A1444 Valerie Steel	S3501 Christian Striker
S830 Rick Sneary	A848 Dan Steffan	S869 Vikki R Stroop
A3125 Bob Snedden	A1212 Suzi Stefl	A1772 Leigh Strother-Vien
A2769 Robert Sneddon	A1541 Helen Stegall	A1873 P Stuart-Palmer
A1481 J M Snoek	A2538 Gabriel Stein	A2222 David Stuart
A3292 Robert L Snow	A1768 Lawrence R Stein	A1872 W Stuart-Palmer
A3472 Adrian Snowden	S2481 Charlene Steketee	S870 Virginia L Stubblefield
A1559 Jan Snyder	A1837 Thierry Stekke	A871 Curt Stubbs
A2771 Carol A Sobel	A2139 Karen Stephen	S872 Mahala Stubbs
A2770 Richard A Sobel	A849 Aubrey G Stephens	A1875 Robert Stubbs
A831 Frank M Sobolewski	A3455 Mark Stephen	A1903 Martin Stugart
A832 Edward T Socolofsky	A1523 P Stephensen-Payne	A3290 Theodore Sturgeon

MAXIM & DOLORES JAKUBOWSKI :: LITERARY AGENTS ::

We do not handle only SF but when we do
it's good SF

from france :

GODFREY BLUNDEN
DAVID MELTZER
ALEXEI & CORY PANSIN
MICHAEL PERKINS
JOSEPHINE SAXTON
JEAN-PIERRE ANDREYON
TONY CARTANO
PHILIPPE CURVAL
DOMINIQUE DOUAY
PHILIP GOY
JEAN-PIERRE HUBERT
MICHEL JEURY
CHRISTIAN LEOURIER
PIERRE PELOT
CHRISTINE RENARD
ANDRE RUELLAN
KURT STEINER
PIERRE SURAGNE
GILLES THOMAS
JULIA VERLANGER
DANIEL WALTHER
STEFAN WUL

We also represent the SF list of french publishers :

DENOËL - FLEUVE NOIR - J'AI LU - KESSELRING

and barbarella vol.3 by J-C FOREST

(translators available)

95 finchley lane-London NW4

Specializing In Scarce And Out Of Print

Science Fiction And Fantasy

Catalogues Available Upon Request

Now Stocking In Print Titles From Many Speciality House Publishers
Arkham House, Donald Grant, Whispers Press
Underwood-Miller and more

Fantasy and Science Fiction
Collections or Single Items of Importance
Bought, Sold and Appraised

Star Treader Books
434 West Pender St.
Vancouver, B.C. V6B 1T5
Canada

Please offer early works by Wm. Hope Hodgson

A3213 James Styles	A1525 David Thayer	A904 Albert Tribble Jr
A1010 Milton Subotsky	A3480 Greg Theakston	A3338 Claude Tricon
S873 Somtow Sucharitkul	A890 Gregory A Thokar	S2888 Ellen Triebwasser
A3027 Patricia Suhrcke	A2082 Karel Thole	S3556 Anthony Triggs
A1803 Edward G Sunden II	A2392 Lois M Thomas	A1125 John Trimble
A1833 Alain Surget	A1730 Jo Thomas	A1123 Bjo Trimble
A1952 Valerie Sussman	A1049 David Thomas	A1124 Lora Trimble
A2281 Geoffrey Suter	S1045 W Haydn Thomas	A3146 Horst G Troester
A2433 Lisanne Sutherland	A2391 William M Thomas	S1590 David Troidl
A874 James L Sutherland	A1117 Pascal J Thomas	A1740 William Trojan
S1104 Brian Sutin	S2902 Jennifer Thompson	A905 Henry Troup
S2072 Alan Swain	S789 Denise Thompson	S1687 John Trungove
S997 David Swanger	A893 Don C Thompson	S1688 Yvonne Trungove
A1314 Robert Swan	A1365 P Thompson	A906 Larry Tucker
A3505 Karl E Swanson	A1313 Neil Thompson	A2670 Wilson Tucker
S875 Mark Swanson	A892 Carolyn H Thompson	A3218 O D Tudor
A3390 Roger Sween	A1905 James E Thompson	A907 Leslie J Turek
A2885 Erik H Swiatek	A2410 Marjorie Thompson	1219 Marianne L Turlington
S2123 Rosemary L Swift	S2901 Michael Thompson	A2301 Nicholas Turner
A2937 Avon Swofford	A1920 Molly A Thompson	A2035 Evelyn Turner
A2557 Lars Sydolf	A2028 Caryl Thompson	S2764 Cin Turner
A1755 Harriet Sylvester	S891 Doug Thompson	A2508 John W Turner
A2390 David A Symes	S3217 Dave Thornell	A2133 Trubie L Turner II
A2389 Fay Symes	A894 Ira Thornhill	A3211 George Turner
S3373 Nurit Szarvas	A895 Janet Thornhill	A1901 Patricia Turner
S2163 Rina Szwarc	A1860 Margaret Thorpe	A908 R Lauraine Tutihasi
A876 Lou Tabakow	A1859 Nalcolm Thorpe	A2742 Lisa Tuttle
S2169 Sami Tabikh	A2107 John Thorsen	A909 Vincent M Tuzzo
S877 David Taggart	A3071 Robert Thurston	A2442 Darthe Twomey
A878 Francis A Tait	A3070 Joan K Thurston	A2591 Peter Tyers
A879 Geri Tait	A1819 Andrew Tidmarsh	A1985 Diana Tyler
A880 R Stuart Tait	A1820 Esther Tidmarsh	A2531 Kevin Tyler
S2630 Vanessa Tait	S896 Celia C Tiffany	A2985 Darlene Tymn
A3591 Michie Takahashi	A2044 Stephen Tihor	A2986 Marshall Tymn
A1381 Michael Tallan	A1695 Eric Tilbrook	S2120 Gerard R Tyra
A1574 Susan Tallmadge	A1545 Michael Dean Tippens	S2121 Sandra S Tyra
A3291 Jayne Tannehill	S2051 Harold Tisdale	A3521 Dawn Uebel
A1088 H P Tanner	A897 Gerald Tishman	A2790 Susan Umpleby
A2568 Anders Tapper	S2237 Judy Tockman	A1341 Sally Underwood
A2567 Siv Tapper	A1312 David Todd	A3412 Tim Underwood
A2379 Graham Tapp	A2461 Angelo Toffoletto	A1014 Dave Upton
A3154 Ian J Tarr	A2947 Adrienne Roy Tollin	A3551 Tise Vahimagi
S881 Philip Taterczynski	A996 Anthony D Tollin	S2847 Marsha Valance
A882 Michael J Tawney	S1683 Peter Toluzzi	A911 Renee Valois
A885 John D Taylor	A898 Gregory M Tomensky	A3245 Patricia Ann Vandenberg
A883 Charlene Taylor	A899 Sandy Tomezik	S912 David A Vanderwerf
S3173 M Taylor	A900 Suzanne V Tompkins	A1351 Yves Vandezande
A2882 Angus M Taylor	A2264 Lorna Toolis	A1350 Maria Vandezande
A2767 Peter Taylor	S3193 Juri Toomi	A913 Bob Vardeman
A884 Patricia F Taylor	A1491 Kees van Toorn	S914 Anna Vargo
A3523 Robert R Taylor	A2355 Laura Torriani	S2549 Allen Varney
A3222 Susan P Taylor	A1393 Franco Tralli	A3418 John T Varn
A886 Patricia L Taylor	A3497 John Trasler	A915 Edward Vaver
A2465 Martin P Tee	S910 Beverly Traub	A916 Victoria Vayne
A1229 Clive D S Telford	S2426 Matthew J Traub	A453 Thomas Veal
A887 Gary Tesser	A1413 Susan Trautman	A3008 Faith E Vedder
S2258 Marc A Tessler	A901 David Travis	S2234 Jo Ann Vegors
S2664 John P Testa Jr	S2171 James Treadwell	A1483 Jan Veldhoen
A1062 Alice Lynne Testa	S902 Jeannine Treese	A1611 Charles Venezia
A889 Lola R Testa	A903 Karen Trego	A1610 Myra C Venezia
S2753 San Tewen	A2529 Paul J Tremblay	A917 Joan M Verba
		A1301 Mark Verbeke

Lahal !

DRAY PRESCOT

his family, friends and all the diffs and apims of

KREGEN

wish you

HAPPY SWINGING

and hope you have a great convention in Brighton

Remberee

Alan Burt Akers

Scorpio, Antares, Kregen

JOHNSTOWN IN 1983

THE ONLY BID THAT PROMISES THE FOURTH
JOHNSTOWN FLOOD!

JOHNSTOWN IN '83, c/o GEORGE R. PACZOLT,
CHIPMUNK PRESS, 1732 MAGDALENE WAY
JOHNSTOWN, PA. 15905 USA

A3583	Wim Verboom	A927	Dal Ward	A2643	Judith M Weiss
A1733	Jaap Verburg	S3387	Lesley Ward	S940	Jay Weiss
A3575	J Verdiesen	S929	Murray R Ward	A3024	Beth Weldon
A3576	M Verdiesen	A2307	Mrs S Ward	A3075	Kathy Weldon
A2573	Biorn Vermo	A928	Michael J Ward	A1357	Margaret Welbank
A3088	Michele L Verneti	A2830	Simon Ward	A941	W A Weller
A2808	Willy Verwoerd	A1311	Peter Wareham	A1594	Elizabeth Welling
A2308	P J Vickers	A2353	G Warminger	A1593	Robert O Welling
A918	Linda C Vickery	A2071	Bonnie Warner	A1996	Manly Wade Wellman
A2809	Frank W Vikanes	A2554	Karl Warneryd	A1997	Mrs Wellman
A3553	David Vincent	A1910	Beverly Warren	A1652	James Welsh
A2969	Joan D Vinge	A930	David Warren	S1929	Richard Welty
S2444	Dennis Virzi	A2476	Elizabeth Warren	A1945	Barbara Wenk
A1493	Bert Visser	A1909	Bill Warren	S944	David P Wentroble
A1494	Joyce Visser	A2137	Robert E Warren	A1492	Angelique van der Werff
A1869	Gianfranco Viviani	A2477	William Warren	A1217	Robert Werner
A3379	Alessandro Voglino	A1510	Elaine Wash	A1308	D West
A3567	Elisabeth Vonarburg	A1804	Alezander Wasiliew	A1944	Eva West
A3566	Jean Joel Vonarburg	S931	Gerry Wassenaar	A3114	J Westerlund
A1731	Rob Vooren	A1360	Diane Wathen	S1942	H Perri Corrick West
A2275	Marion van der Voort	A1359	Mike Wathen	A1368	Mike Westhead
A2274	Richard van der Voort	S2727	Barbara Watkins	A3439	Brian Westley
A1143	Luk de Vos	A3164	Simon Watkins	A1943	Michael M West
A1144	Tris de Vos	A1318	Ashley Watkins	A8	Eileen Weston
A1408	Frank van der Waart	S1897	F L Watkins	A7	Peter Weston
S919	Michi M Wada	S1898	Julie Watkins	S1941	Richard C West
A3015	Michele Wade	A2821	John Watkinson	A2826	FRank Westwood
S920	Roland Wagenbach	A1342	Anthony Watkins	A1509	Marye Wexford
S921	Steven T Wagenbach	S2081	Claude Watrous	A1025	Richard Wheatcroft
A2322	Karl Edward Wagner	A2452	Linn Watson	A3478	Laura Wheatley
A2323	Barbara Wagner	A1310	Judy Watson	A946	Susan Wheeler
A2183	William C Wagner	A2661	Jay W Watson	A1960	Michael Whelan
A1452	P S Wain	A1309	Ian Watson	A2883	Bob Whitaker
A922	Barry P Waitsman	S932	Edward G Watts	A947	Robert Whitaker
A2098	Barry Walden	A1805	John R Watts	A2176	Andrew A Whyte
S2642	George Waldman	A1806	Pete Watts	A948	Diane White
A923	Jacob M Waldman	A933	Bob Wayne	A1306	James White
S2632	Mitchell Augustus Walker	A934	Constance Wayne	A1878	Kathleen B White
A1999	M H Walker	A2026	Clay Webb	A949	Laurine White
S924	Gary D Walker	A1513	David Webb	A2892	Michael White
A1229	Ashley Walker	A1082	Gerry Webb	A1307	Peggy White
A2647	Keith Walker	A2027	Jeanette Webb	A1998	Owen Whiteoak
S3409	Stephen Walker	A2948	Michael E Webb	S2940	Paul A White
A1192	Amy Wall	S936	Nancy Jane Webb	S950	Robin White
A2558	Olle Wallen	S937	Richard P Webb	A951	Ted White
A2118	Linda Wallers	A2993	Jill Weber	A1927	Allyson Whitfield
A1111	Michael Wallis	S2033	Kimberly Weber	A1572	Pamela Whitlark
A1198	Linda Walls	S935	Michael A Weber	A3308	Tom Whitmore
A3030	Thomas Walls	A1666	Roger Weddall	A2018	Stephen Whitmore
S925	Michael Walsh	A1737	G de Leeuw van Weenen	A1956	Terri Whitney
A3543	Peter Walsh	A1735	P de Leeuw van Weenen	A3156	Kim Whysall
A1073	Simone Walsh	A1736	R de Leeuw van Weenen	A3323	Charles A Whyte
S2127	S G Walters	A3219	Sue Weil	A2063	Art Widner
A3555	Allan George Walton	A938	Sydney Weinberg	A3137	Mrs van de Wiele
A1056	Chris Walton	A1648	David J Weinberg	A3136	Patrick van de Wiele
A2221	Diane L Walton	A3441	Glynis Wein	S952	Marc Wiener
A3554	Maria Lourdes Walton	A2514	Irene S Wein	A3061	Robert Wiener
S926	Anthony D Ward	A3440	Len Wein	A3348	Michael A Wigley
A2109	Anthony Ward	A2091	Greg Weir	A1946	Sharon Faye Wilbur
		S939	Ann Weiser	S953	Joseph K Wilcoxon
		A1441	Alezander Weiss	A1372	Richard G Wiles

The Tolkien Society

The Tolkien Society was founded in 1969 for the many people seriously interested in the life and works of Professor J.R.R. Tolkien, and is now a Charity registered in the U.K. We were most honoured when, in 1972, Professor Tolkien accepted the post of Honorary President, and offered any help he was able to give. Since his much regretted death, he remains our Honorary President 'in perpetuo', at the suggestion of his family, with whom we continue to enjoy friendly relations.

The Society's regular Bulletin, Amon Hen, provides news, book reviews, short articles and a listing of recent references to Tolkien in the media. At present it carries reports of the LotR film, part one. The journal Mallorn has appeared at least once yearly. Mallorn 12 (now available) contains important reviews: of Carpenter's biography, by Priscilla Tolkien; of the Gawain translation, by Paul Kocher; and of The Silmarillion, by Rosemary Haughton; plus what is thought to be Tolkien's earliest published poem. In addition, occasional booklets are published which deal in depth with matters of interest to the Society.

Members of the Society's Committee are attending Seacon, and further details can be obtained from them. However, if you miss us, please write to Mr. L. Simons, Membership Secretary, 11 Regal Way, Harrow, Middlesex, HA3 0RZ, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, or, if writing from overseas, an International Reply Coupon.

ib do qm ym hix hnm do ip pyppae i wfan h

hix hnm do ip pyppae i wfan h

JOURNEY

The Calendar for 1980

THOMAS SCHLÜCK

Literary and Art Agency

with a specialty approach to Science Fiction and Fantasy

For Germany and other Countries.

wishes all SeaCon Guests a Happy and Enjoyable Event!

Hinter der Worth 12
3008 Garbsen 9
Germany

☎ 0 51 31/9 30 53

S3393 Charles L Wiley
A3238 Cherie Dee Wilkerson
A2589 Richard J Wilkes
A1136 Sandra I A Wilkes
A1135 Reginald C Wilkes
S3250 Donald Wilkins
A1512 Stephen Wilkins
A954 Howard Wilkins
A2286 Dave Wilkinson
A2126 Marlene Willauer
A2637 Paul J Willett
A2054 Betty Williams
A2437 Allan R Williams
A957 Terry Williams
A1055 Dewi Williams
A955 David J Williams
A956 Ian Williams
A1850 Linda B Williams
A1456 Madawc Williams
A958 Blanche Williamson
A2592 John Williams
S2509 Ron Williams
A1431 Kevin Williams
A959 Jack Williamson
A1851 David Williams
A1852 Elric Williams
A1988 E S Williams
A2351 Mr J Williams
A2030 Edie Williams
A1432 Susan Williams
A2619 Doug Williams
S960 Bernard J Willinger
A1918 Joan C Wilson
A1966 F Paul Wilson
A2302 Mark Wilson
A2257 Judith Wilson
A1206 Elizabeth A Wilson
A2349 Steve Wilson
S2608 Rolf Wilson
A2795 Roch J Wilson
A2593 Paul Wilson
A2789 Clifford R Wind
A961 Miriam Winder
A1670 Joy Window
S962 Robert J Winfield
S963 Suzanne L Winfield
A1138 David Wingrove
A965 Alan Winston
A1777 Rita Prince Winston
A964 Joan Winston
A3118 Joelle Wintrebert
A2088 Leslye Wintrob
S3607 Michael D Wippell
A1419 Charles Wise
A2395 Paul Wisowaty
A2396 Mary Wisowaty
A3192 Patricia Ann Witham
A1161 Carye D Wixon
A1160 Dave Wixon
A2157 Marty Woelfle
A966 Gene Wolfe
A967 Rosemary Wolfe
A968 Lew Wolkoff
A2319 Don Wollheim
A2320 Elsie Wollheim
A2321 Betsy Wollheim
A3515 Peter Womersley
A2951 Boyd Wong
A969 Ken L Wong
A970 Ed Wood
A971 Jo Ann Wood
A2383 Clive Russell Woodley
A972 Susan Wood
A1340 Mark Woodward
A1211 Amy Woodard
S3299 James Kirby Woosley
A974 Susan F Woosnam
A2523 Joan Woosnam
A1844 Marcia Workman
A1845 Sarge Workman
A975 Charles E Wright
S2184 Marjorie Wright
A1058 Jackie Wright
S976 Lawrence A Wright
A2825 B A Wright
A2494 Richard Wright
A1807 P M Wrigley
S977 Paul S Wroblewski
A2500 Daniel Wynne
A978 Benjamin M Yalow
A2707 Chelsea Quinn Yarbro
S980 Earle S Yerger
A979 Cyndy Yerger
S981 Jack C Young
A1388 Martin Young
S982 Susan R Young
S1893 Alexander Yudenitsch
A2069 Sheryl Zedler
A1482 Hans van der Zee
A2684 Anne Elizabeth Zeek
S983 J Barry Zeiger
S985 Roger Zelazny
S984 Judy Zelazny
A986 Leah A Zeldes
S3360 Leonard F Zettel Jr
A1727 Mrs S Zielschot
A1726 Robert Zielschot
A1713 Gerda van Zoen
A2934 Robert F Zogg
A1133 Bernie Zuber
A1134 Teny Zuber

SEACON CLASSIFIEDS

COMPLETE SF-FANTASY-HORROR CATALOG. Large Selection of new books, paperbacks and fanzines. Small Press, Trade and Speciality publishers. Send 50¢ or 3 IRCs. Collector's Editions, Box 236, Vienna, MD 21869, USA.

PARTICIPATE IN CHRYSE-3, The 3rd Convocation, Humanistic-Revolutionary of Space Enthusiasts. Four scheduled events: August 24th, Friday 8-11PM, Open House for the Future / Saturday, August 25th, 1-3PM, "Avenues to Tomorrow," / Sunday, August 26th, 11-1PM, "What Can Anybody Do?" All events will be in Room 3 in the Surrey Suite. Sponsored by UNITED FOR OUR EXPANDED SPACE PROGRAMS, Post Office Box 14585, Santa Barbara, California 93017, U.S.A.

HELP TO DESTROY THE HUMAN RACE BY SUPPORTING NUCLEAR WEAPONS, COMMONLY CALLED "THE DETERRENT". FOR FACTS, FIGURES AND ADVICE WRITE - CAMPAIGN FOR NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT, 29 GREAT JAMES STREET, LONDON WC1N 3EY.

MEN AND ALIENS - The Astral League invites you to live together in Cosmic Harmanee. Just send 50p (inc. VAT) today to D. (Watch out for our Greatest Hits, and the Astral League's Disco Album).

THERE'S SOMETHING YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT...

CITY COME-A WALKIN'
(DELL BOOKS - 1980)

TRANSMANIACON
(ZEBRA - ON SALE NOW)

Dracula In Love
(ZEBRA BOOKS - 1979)

SOMETHING...

AND SOMEONE

"HE WRITES WITH AN ORIGINAL VOICE...
ONE OF THE ODDEST WRITERS IN SCIENCE FICTION..."
-TERRY CARR

John

Shirley

SHORT FICTION BY JOHN SHIRLEY WILL APPEAR IN UPCOMING ISSUES OF The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction ("QUILL TRIPSTICKLER ELUIDES
A BRIDE") AND Universe 9 ("WILL THE CHILL").
TO ORDER A ZEBRA BOOK, SEND $1.95 + 35¢ POSTAGE
TO Zebra Mail Order, 21 East 40th St., New York, N.Y., 10016

The HIGH FRONTIER

Spaceflight Exhibition

ORGANISED BY THE ASSOCIATION IN SCOTLAND TO RESEARCH INTO ASTRONAUTICS AND IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE THIRD EYE CENTRE

SEPT 15th - OCT 14th 1979

THIRD EYE CENTRE

350 SAUCHIEHALL STREET GLASGOW

PATRONS PROFESSOR GERARD ONEILL PROFESSOR VINCENT REDDISH
ROY GIBSON DIRECTOR GENERAL ESA PROFESSOR ARCHIE ROY

Enquires John Dodds Third Eye Centre 041-332-7521

FANTAST (MEDWAY) LTD

39 WEST STREET

WISBECH CAMBS ENGLAND

☎ 0945 61242

previously

Operation Fantast

WHY NOT WRITE

FOR OUR CATALOGUE?

special export wholesale terms for british books

Greetings to Seacon 79

from

The Scandinavian Science Fiction Association

The Scandinavian Science Fiction Association — SFSF, in Swedish — is the foremost sf organization in Sweden. Now in its 20th year and with close to 1.000 members, the Association is a majority stock holder in the Science Fiction Book Store, Inc., in Stockholm City; it publishes the quarterly Science Fiction Forum, distributed nationally in book stores; its line of original Swedish science fiction books — both novels, short story collections, and non-fiction — has issued some ten titles since its inception; and its member newsletter, Fanac, has passed its 100th issue.

For foreign fans, the SFSF issues Sverifanac; a quarterly news fanzine in English. Sverifanac is available in trade or at $1 for 4 issues. And if you plan to visit Stockholm, you are welcome to the frequent club meetings and semiannual conventions arranged by the Association.

For Sverifanac, for further information, or just to keep in touch, drop us a line at SFSF • P O Box 3273 • S-11337 Stockholm • Sweden • phone (08) 508771 weekdays 4—8.

E. J. CARNELL LITERARY AGENCY

SAWBRIDGEWORTH

HERTS.

(LESLIE FLOOD)

SCIENCE FICTION SPECIALISTS

Established 1951 - still looking to the future.

Best wishes to all clients, associates and everyone at Seacon '79. from Leslie Flood.

AIMING FOR THE STARS?

EXPLORATION OF THE PLANETS is well under way. Read all about it in the two regular monthly magazines of THE BRITISH INTERPLANETARY SOCIETY:

SPACEFLIGHT ranges from popular to a semi-technical character, plus an extensive news coverage, book reviews etc.

JOURNAL OF THE BRITISH INTERPLANETARY SOCIETY: first published 1934 and has long enjoyed a world-wide reputation for original contributions to Space concepts. Issues appear in four categories: Space Science, Space Applications, Space Technology and Interstellar Studies.

PROJECT DAEDALUS, a 192 pp. Report summarises four years of work by a team which examined the practical problems which would have to be met in sending an unmanned probe to Barnard's Star. This is an outstanding original contribution and a landmark in plans for interstellar exploration.

To find out more, simply write for a free copy of Spaceflight and other details to:

The Executive Secretary, British Interplanetary Society,
27/29 South Lambeth Road, London, SW8 1SZ, England.

WILL THE MAILS OBLIGE?

If so then you will find copies of PERCEPTIONS OF SCIENCE FICTION, edited by Colin Lester, on dealer tables in the book room - 112pp of international sf&f, including:

*FICTION - hard sf to the surreal - from Romania, Japan, India, New Zealand and elsewhere;

INTERVIEW with Pole Stanislaw Lem by Yugoslav Zoran Živković;

*ESSAYS by such diverse talents as Darko Suvin, Patricia Warrick, David Wingrove - and others - on fiction, authors, music, etc;

*POETRY: 16 pages of poems from Michael Bishop, Robert Frazier, Peter Redgrove, George Macbeth, Norman Talbot, and others;

*REVIEWS ranging widely from various hands.

The price of this eclectic and entertaining book is £1.50. Only 100 copies will be available here (if the mails oblige) - others can be ordered from: Outrigger Publishing, 69 Wellesley Road, Croydon, CRO 2AL, England, or from dealers.

HAVE A GOOD CON!

GLEN AND TERRY GIBBONS for science fiction and fantasy

NEW AND OUT-OF-PRINT BOOKS, MAGAZINES AND PAPERBACKS
REGULAR CATALOGUES AND MAIL-ORDER SERVICE

MEET US AT SEACON

HEDGE END, NORTH TRADE ROAD, BATTLE, EAST SUSSEX TN33 0HW

Science Fiction & Fantasy Games

DUNGEONS & DRAGONS

is the ORIGINAL Adventure game in worlds of the strange and fantastic

In DUNGEONS & DRAGONS You are a Wizard, a Hero, an Elf or, perhaps, a Dwarf. You adventure in eerie tunnels deep beneath the earth in search of treasure and magic. But fearsome monsters - Orcs, Trolls, Wights, Dragons and worse - must first be defeated. A truly unique game which allows you to unleash your imagination and make your fantasy world come alive

SCIENCE FICTION & FANTASY FIGURES

Citadel Miniatures exciting new ranges of superbly detailed miniature metal figures will be available on our stand.

TRAVELLER

In this adventure game set in the far flung future, you are an adventurer on the frontiers of space, exploring new worlds and winning fame and fortune. You have the weapon skills, knowledge and experience to journey in a universe limited only by your own imagination, encounter and defeat hostile aliens, and learn new technologies. You will be the stranger in a strange land in Traveller, the ultimate in science fiction games.

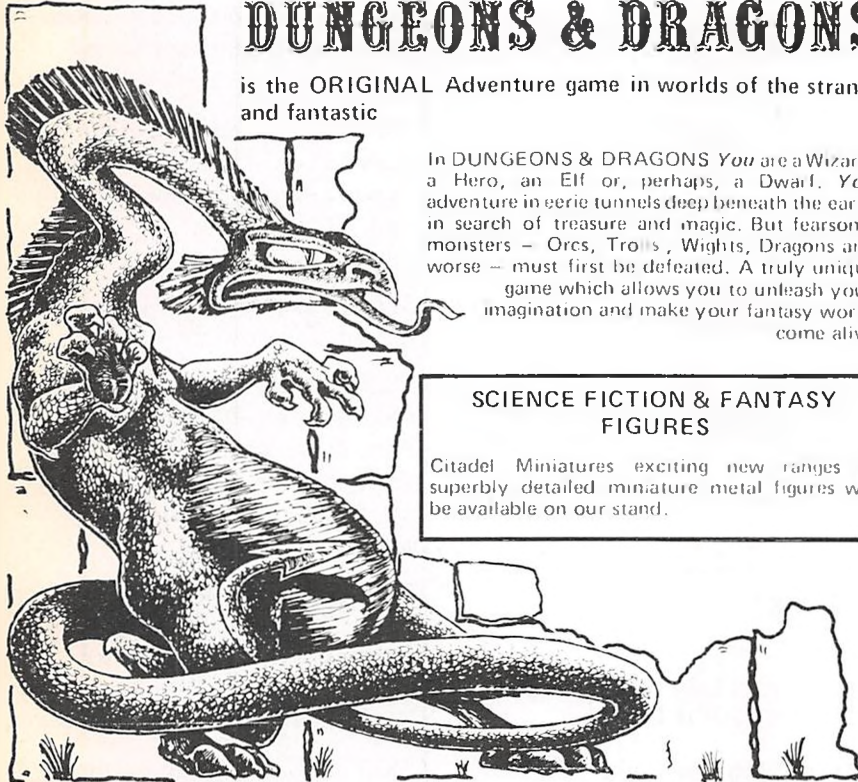

NEW TO FANTASY GAMING?

Send 30p in stamps + large stamped (10p) addressed envelope for our illustrated games catalogue, full pricelists, details of White Dwarf magazine and Citadel figures, and explanatory, introductory leaflets.

SEE THESE GAMES AND MORE ON OUR STAND AT SEASON '79

Games Workshop
1 Dalling Road, London W6

Tel: 01-741 3445
S.S.A.E. for full games lists
TRADE ENQUIRIES WELCOME

THE GAME OF TIME

In my past days of the future it came to be that a certain Time-Lord invented "4th Dimension", mirroring his exploits and battles. He once played it during the hour of Time-Worship, and when brought before the Time-Elders for this crime, he explained that it was his way of praying. When he saw the sixty sections he thought of the seconds in a minute and minutes in an hour. The twenty-four pieces reminded him of the hours in a day, while the twelve Blue pieces became the months, and the four playing circles the seasons in a year. The three Time-Warp circles represent the old way of being Time-Trapped in three dimensions.

The Time-Elder wept when he heard this story, and pardoned the Time-Lord. In his wisdom he sent him to the distant past to spread the gospel of 4th Dimension, so that in the future Time-Worship would be better understood.

This story will be true. I should know, for I was that Time-Lord.

In 4th DIMENSION (4D), you are a mighty Time-Lord, and your powerful army of Guardians, Rangers, and Warriors stands ready to do battle. Your opponent is equally strong, and knows that only one of you will survive this conflict of time and space; for you are both Time-Lords, able to alter the fabric of reality, and there is room in the Universe for only one with such power.....

4D has just been launched in the U.S.A. by TSR Hobbies Inc., while a full range of 4D sets are produced in Great Britain by J.A. BALL & CO., 58 COMMERCIAL ROAD, SWINDON, WILTS. SN1 5PF. Send 50p for "card" 4D set, or S.A.E. for price list.

"I was just a chess player, until I discovered 4th Dimension." The effect is Time-shattering.

TRADEMARK
4D
TH DIMENSION

THE TIME GAME

We never avoid the issues.

With THRUST—SF IN REVIEW, we've built our reputation on never failing to take a close look at the most sensitive and controversial issues concerning science fiction, and continue to receive the highest praise and most heated comments from professionals and fans alike in the sf field.

THRUST's regular features include columns by such authors as Ted White, Charles Sheffield, John Shirley, Dave Bischoff and Chris Lampton. Our uniquely frank feature length in-depth interviews have included sf personalities such as Harlan Ellison, Keith Laumer, John Brunner, Fred Pohl, Ted White, Norman Spinrad, Kirby McCauley, Theodore Sturgeon, Joe Haldeman, and C. J. Cherryh. Our special guest features have included such articles as "Harlan Ellison vs. the Spawning Bischi!" by Dave Bischoff, "Why I Am Not Announcing That I Am Leaving Science Fiction" by Norman Spinrad, and "On The Future" by Isaac Asimov.

IN THE SUMMER 1979
ISSUE (#12):

RED SABERHAGEN
CTANIA BUTLER
MICHAEL BISHOP
CHARLES SHEFFIELD
TED WHITE
JOHN SHIRLEY
DAVE BISCHOFF
JESSICA SALMONSON
CHRIS LAMPTON
DAN STEFFAN
STEVE BROWN
DARREL SCHWEITZER
RED PATTEN
DOUG IRATZ
DON DAMMASA

Enclosed is $_____ for:

- 4 issue subscription ($5.00 USA, $7.00 foreign)
- 8 issue subscription ($9.50 USA, $13.00 foreign)
- Back issues:
- | | |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> no. 5 | <input type="checkbox"/> no. 3 |
| <input type="checkbox"/> no. 9 | <input type="checkbox"/> no. 8 |
| <input type="checkbox"/> no. 11 | <input type="checkbox"/> no. 10 |
| | <input type="checkbox"/> no. 12 |
- ($1.50 each)

Name _____
address _____
city _____ state _____ zip _____

THRUST PUBLICATIONS
11919 Barrel Cooper Court
Reston, Virginia 22091

SABERHAGEN • BUTLER
THRUST ISSUES 1-100
no. 12 $1.50
SCIENCE FICTION • REVIEW
sheffield • bishop • shirley

FRIENDLY TEXAN PARTY Part 4

OPEN
TO ALL FANS

SAT- AFTER THE FANCY DRESS COMPETITION

Where? - Joanne Burger's Suite, Metropole Hotel, or LOOK FOR THE SIGNS!

Sponsored by Texas United Fandom (TUF)

56 Eighth Avenue/New York, New York 10014/Telephone: (212) 741-0270

Index to Advertisers

- 11-16 Ace Books
- 93 Advent
- 70 Albacon
- 31 Alpha Science Fiction
- 109 Andromeda Book Co.
- 19 Anima
- 129 ASTRA Ltd.
- 80 The Astral Group
- 17/47 Australia in '83
- 72 Australian SF News
- 5 Avon Books
- 53 Bailey Bros. & Swinfen
- 87 Bantam Books
- 21 Berkley Publishing
- 89 Biytoo Books
- 131 British Interplanetary Society Ltd.
- 88 Cayrel
- 91 Change of Hobbit
- 128 Collector's Editions
- 56/7 Dark They Were And Golden Eyed
- 121 David & Charles Ltd.
- 115/7 Dell Publishing Co.
- 61 Del Ray
- 129 DH Management
- 105 Editions J-C Lattes
- 131 E. J. Carnell Literary Agency
- 130 Fantast (Medway) Ltd
- 135 Fantasy & Science Fiction
- 78 Fantasy Centre
- 95 Forbidden Planet
- 38 Fortean Times
- 132 4D Time Game
- 127 Friendly Texan Party
- 66/7 Futura
- 97 Galileo
- 132 Games Workshop
- 131 G & T Gibbons
- 35 Gollancz
- 125 Johnstown in '83
- 133 Levin, Barry R.
- 127 Moore, Chris, Design Associates
- 60 New English Library
- 125 New York in 1986
- 59 Orbis Publishing Ltd.
- 131 Pacific Quarterly SF Issue
- IRC/20 Pan Books / INSIDE REAR COVER
- INSERT Panther
- 74 Penguin
- IFC Pierrot Publishing / INSIDE FRONT COVER
- 125 Prescott, Dray
- 76 Red Lion Inn/NWSFS
- 127 Schluck, Thomas
- 121 Science Fiction Foundation
- 133 Science Fiction Shop, The
- 111 SF Consultants
- 29 Science Fiction Research Association
- 130 SFSF
- 102/3 Space-Ex 1984
- 30 Sphere Books
- 123 Star Treader Books
- 119 Temps Futurs
- 132 Thrust Publications
- 133 Tolkien Society
- 123 Translation Agency
- 99 Worldcon Scandinavia 1983
- 79 Young Artists

ARE YOU THE COMMITTEE MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SHOCKING ANTI-SORCERY BIAS ON
THE SWORD AND SORCERY PANEL?

YOUR GERMAN REPRESENTATIVE FOR SCIENCE FICTION AND ARTWORK

UTOPROP

Literarische Agentur • Literary Agency
Spezialisten in Science Fiction

ALPERS, HAHN AND FUCHS

Please contact: Werner Fuchs,
Gerberstr. 1, 4006 Erkrath,
West Germany

(Or meet us at the convention)

The biggest and best issue any Science Fiction magazine has ever published!

ACT NOW—
Reserve Your 30th Anniversary Anthology of

Fantasy and Science Fiction

at no extra cost...

Thrill to Fantasy and Science Fiction's 30th Anniversary Anthology—320 pages packed with the best science fiction and fantasy ever published. Over 20 novelets and stories by the most exciting, most inventive SF writers, including:

Isaac Asimov, Brian W. Aldiss, Anthony Boucher, Ray Bradbury, R. Bretnor, Avram Davidson, Philip K. Dick, Thomas M. Disch, Harlan Ellison, Robert A. Heinlein, Zenna Henderson, Shirley Jackson, Daniel Keyes, Damon Knight, Richard Matheson, Walter M. Miller, Robert Silverberg, Theodore Sturgeon, James Tiptree, Jr.

Daniel Keyes' Flowers for Algernon, Walter M. Miller's A Canticle for Leibowitz, and Alfred Bester's Fondly Fahrenheit, are just three of the all-time favorites collected here for you. Get this special 30th Anniversary Anthology, made up of the best remembered and most highly regarded classics from the first 30 years of Fantasy and Science Fiction, months before the hardcover edition goes on sale. It comes to you at no extra cost as our 320 page October issue, on your subscription to America's foremost science fiction magazine.

Original stories and novelets by the world's most outstanding science fiction writers are just part of what you get each month in F&SF. Isaac Asimov's widely read Science column, macabre Gahan Wilson cartoons, illuminating SF book reviews by Algis Budrys, and Baird Searles Film Guide appear in every issue. You'll also enjoy spectacular F&SF cover art, puzzles, and reader competitions.

F&SF is an eight-time winner of the Hugo Award for the best science fiction magazine. It has published more Nebula Award winning stories than any other magazine, and has won the Locus Poll as the best SF publication, for the past two years. F&SF rewards you each month with unforgettable fiction, and unique, informative features. Subscribe NOW—be one of the first to get your whopping 320 page 30th Anniversary Anthology at no extra charge.

A 30th Anniversary subscription to F&SF makes the perfect gift for everyone who loves to read! Do something different—Give F&SF.

Clip this coupon today for your 320 page, 30th Anniversary Anthology of Fantasy and Science Fiction!

Mail without delay to: Fantasy and Science Fiction,
Box 56, Cornwall, Conn. 06753

Yes! I want to treat myself to a feast of Fantasy and Science Fiction at better than 30% savings over the regular newsstand price. Enter my subscription, including the 320 page 30th Anniversary Anthology, for:

- 9 months for only $10.00
 I want to double my savings; send me 18 mos. for $20.00
SPECIAL SEASON 79 RATES
Overseas postage is included.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Payment must accompany order.

Autographs

WHERE CAN YOU TRAVEL NEXT IN THE MOST EXCITING LITERATURE IN THE COSMOS?

AVON
Publishers of

Brian W. Aldiss
Piers Anthony
Isaac Asimov
J. G. Ballard
Gregory Benford
James Blish, Jr.
Robert H. Boyer
Algis Budrys
Octavia E. Butler
Terry Carr
John Christopher
Hal Clement
Susan Coon
Joan Cox
Grania Davis
Thomas M. Disch
Philip Jose Farmer
Michael Franklin
Freff
Parke Godwin
Roland Green
Martin Harry Greenberg
Joe Haldeman
Harry Harrison
Zenna Henderson
Marvin Kaye
Garry Kilworth
Damon Knight
C. M. Kornbluth
Simon Lang

This fascinating sourcebook contains an outstanding basic reading list; an index of Hugo and Nebula Award winners; a comprehensive listing of over 200 authors with profiles of style and other suggested authors you might enjoy; a detailed rundown of the great SF series; a guide to the genre's upcoming stars; a concise and entertaining history of SF and much more! It is an indispensable compedium in the vast universe of science fiction!

Martin Last
Ursula LeGuin
Stanislaw Lem
Mark M. Lowenthal
Richard A. Lupoff
Peter Lyle
George R. R. Martin
Ann Maxwell
Kirby McCauley
J. T. McIntosh
Patricia McKillip
Mike McQuay
Beth Meacham
A. Merritt
Francine Mezo
Michael Moorcock
Joseph D. Olander
Frederik Pohl
Hugh C. Rae
Frank S. Robinson
Bill Rotsler
Baird Searles
Carl Sherrell
Robert Silverberg
Clifford Simak
Sheila Sullivan
Jack Vance
Jack Williamson
Kenneth J. Zahorski
Roger Zelazny

AVON Books • 959 Eighth Avenue • New York, NY 10019 • USA
The Hearst Corporation

