Editors' Notes

by Marah Searle-Kovacevic and Merle von Thorn

I was asked to put the Restaurant Guide together on July 8th. All I could think of was what Dick Smith said at Midwest Construction last year: "Rule #1: Don't assign the Restaurant Guide a week before the convention." Well, not to worry, I had a month. I knew it was going to be a challenge, but I also knew it could be done. I regret that the shortage of time has caused me to have to prioritize. I was not able to do all the research I would have liked to do, and there will undoubtedly be some rough edges that I didn't have a chance to smooth out.

But I've had a blast playing tourist, going to as many restaurants as we could manage. If most of the ratings are positive, it's because, with a limited time frame, we tried to review the restaurants that we thought would be good, as well as those near the convention centre and some of our long-time favorites.

This Guide would not have been possible without an amazing crack staff, particularly: Merle von Thorn, associate editor and restaurant reviewer; Alex von Thorn, restaurant reviews, research, and all-around good advice; Andre Kovacevic, tireless data entry and moral support; and Charles Levi, exhaustive legwork. Joan Hardy performed miracles with the Access database from which this guide was generated, and Will Power, another tireless restaurant scout and data-entry beaver contributed vast amounts of time and energy to the final product. Shirley Hicks (<for.arts.sake@sympatico.ca>) created the cover with artwork provided by Athena Jenkins.

I'd like to mention some of Toronto's neighbourhoods of interest:

If you like authentic Chinese food, you absolutely have to go to the west-end Chinatown. There are several different Chinatowns in the Greater Toronto area, this one is the original and the closest. It is centered around the intersection of Dundas and Spadina, and is about a mile from the Convention Centre. It is easily accessible by streetcar, or is a short cab ride. When you get there, you will be faced with blocks of Chinese restaurants. Fortunately, most of them are good, although some are better than others. The interior décor runs the gamut from minimal to nonexistent, and if it's busy and you have a small group, you may have to share a table with strangers.

Our favorite restaurants here include A Taste of China and King's Noodle, both on the west side of Spadina, north of Dundas. At A Taste of China, our current favorites include General Tso's chicken, scallops with peach, and lobster fried rice. At King's Noodle, we love the hot and sour soup, Singapore noodles, Yeung Chow fried rice, sweet and sour boneless chicken, and any of the barbeque hanging in the window. These are good places to take both people who love authentic Chinese food as well as the less adventurous. There are also some excellent Vietnamese and Thai places just to the north. All offer vegetarian choices; Bo De Duyen (Chinese) offers a completely vegetarian menu.

Many of the restaurants in Chinatown are open past 2:00 am; some are open as late as 5:00 am. Some of the Vietnamese places are open 24 hours. Most of the restaurants are accessible, but most of the washrooms are down a flight of stairs. Many offer an inexpensive lunch special on weekdays; there will be a sandwich board or a sign outside if they do. Note that some Chinatown restaurants accept cash only.

Kensington Market, just west of old Chinatown, is the world's most multicultural neighbourhood, with Ukrainians and Iranians, Portuguese and Vietnamese, Salvadorans and Ethiopians, Hungarians and Thais, Koreans and Native Canadians are found side-by-side, or sometimes even in the same restaurant. It is a favorite tourist spot for Canadians, as a pure expression of Canadian multinationalism. Even the trendy places here aren't expensive. The restaurants are colorful, though Kensington's claim to fame is the fruit, vegetable, meat, fish, cheese, and spice vendors, all selling the best quality fresh goods at very reasonable prices, making this a mecca for true foodies. Restaurants favoured by the editors include Jumbo Empanada, Louie's Coffee Stop, and the all-vegetarian King's Cafe. The Market also features two bistros, The Bellevue Diner and La Palette. The second-hand clothing stores, founded originally by American refugees during the Vietnam era, are a unique feature. Driving and parking here can be challenging

Part of Toronto's charm is its blend of old and new, such as the Edwardian charm of the Royal York against the backdrop of skyscrapers. Just four blocks from the Convention Centre is one of Toronto's best examples of these virtues. St. Lawrence Market, originally built in 1803, served as the city of York's City Hall between 1845-1899. The current buildings date from 1901. The North Building, open only on weekends, holds a farmers' market on Saturdays from 5:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. The wise shopper goes early, as popular stalls can sell out by noon. One of my favourite stands is at the south end of the North Building. It sells wonderful, reasonably priced maple syrup and maple candy. The North Building holds an Antique market on Sundays from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.

The South Building houses a permanent market, which is open from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. from Monday to Thursday, 8:00 A.M. to 7 P.M. on Fridays, and 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. on Saturdays. These stalls cater to Toronto's diverse cultural heritage.

Further out, but easily accessible by transit, is a long stretch known as "The Danforth" This is the largest Greek neighborhood in North America. It is chock full of restaurants, not all of which are Greek, as well as many interesting boutiques and décor shops. Astoria is a neighborhood favorite. We like the saganaki there, but our favorite Greek restaurant is The Pappas Grill. In addition to the usual Greek favorites, we suggest the grilled quail, or the grilled lamb chops. Just down the street from The Pappas Grill is Willow, one of our favorite Mexican restaurants. We recommend the steak enchilada, but save room for the churros with whipped cream, the Apple Poquito, or any of their other desserts.

College Street from around Grace out to Dovercourt is known as "Little Italy." The oldest of Toronto's many Italian neighborhoods, it has a lot of little trendy bistros and ristorantes, plus some restaurants with many decades of history; however, this neighborhood also has Russian, Portuguese, and other influences. A larger and even more authentically Italian area is the Corso Italia along St. Clair Ave. West ("Santa Clara" to locals) from Oakwood out past Keele. Nearly all the businesses here are Italian; there are outlets of Milan fashion houses and social clubs transplanted almost unchanged from the old country. The area has everything from neighborhood pizzerias to much more upscale places, though nearly all claim to be some variant of a "family" restaurant.

If you keep Kosher, the downtown pickings are slim, but if you head up to Lawrence and Bathurst, or Eglinton Avenue, west of Avenue Road, (please ask at the Info. Desk if you need directions) you'll find a vibrant Jewish neighbourhood, with kosher restaurants and shops to suit your every need. We have listed several Kosher restaurants in the Guide; more information is available at www.shamash.org, which can be accessed at the Info Desk.

Completing this brief ethnic tour of Toronto (there's much more to this city than we've mentioned), "Little India", the stretch of Gerrard St. between Greenwood and Coxwell, is always redolent of curry spices. You can find economical Indian buffets, sit-down meals, vendors of roast corn and pan. Look for the small holes in the wall—these often have great food at really good prices. Local stores sell saris, salwar kameez, shawls, Indian underwear (petticoats, blouses, and drawers), and wonderful fabrics, trims, and jewellery. If you are looking for overpriced, trendy restaurants, you'll find them in Yorkville, just north of Yonge and Bloor. Food is both better and less expensive near the convention centre; though the cachet is, of course, lacking.

We also recommend that you stay away from any of the chain pizza joints, although pizza ordered in a restaurant that bakes its pizza in a wood oven is usually good, and some of the non-chain delivery places aren't too bad. If you must have pizza delivered, try either Massimo's, Amato, or the Magic Oven. Il Fornello does decent take-out, and can prepare pizza on spelt crusts for the pizza lover with gluten issues.

For those who keep kosher, we have listed three restaurants, none of which are near the Convention Centre..

We've listed the restaurants in the food courts in Union Station, most of which are open weekends and holidays, and those in the food courts at BCE Place and the Royal Bank Plaza (which is directly north of and connected to the Union subway station and the Royal York hotel), which are mostly closed outside of business hours (the food court in BCE Place is open on Saturdays). There are also food courts in the Toronto Dominion Centre, which is directly north of and connected to The Royal Bank Plaza, and in First Canadian Place, which is directly north of and connected to the Toronto Dominion Centre, and in Metro Hall, which is directly north of the Convention Centre, between Wellington and King. Those are only open during business hours.

The information provided here is true to the best of our knowledge, as of press time, but is of course subject to change. We recommend calling ahead, especially for large groups. Note that most restaurants are non-smoking, unless they declare themselves to be a bar, have an enclosed room with a separate ventilation system, or have a patio. Smoking is legal on patios, since they are outside, and most patios allow smoking.

Further information, maps, menus, and commercial Restaurant guides (Zagat, Cheap Thrills, Toronto Life's Restaurant Guides, Toronto's Favourite Restaurants) will be available at the Info Desk for reference. There will also be further information on the Info Desk computers, which will be on line and can access relevant websites.

The last-minute editorial staff would like to deny responsibility for any hyphens pretending to be em- or en-dashes, or inconsistencies in spelling, style, and usage.

Special thanks to Peter Jarvis for taking the time to convey the cover art to the production team. Special thanks also to John McFarland for prompt delivery of the database.

For those interested in such things, this guide was generated from an Access database, exported to PostScript and Distilled to .pdf so that it could be printed by Point One in Toronto.

Comments: One of Toronto's great shames is that the multiplication of coffee chains has destroyed almost all of the independent coffee shops in the city. Escaping this homogenization requires either a trip to Yorkville to the Coffee Mill, Bloor West Village to The Coffee Tree, or to the Danforth for Schilling's. At Schilling's, the coffee is strong and the desserts are plentiful, from delightful Opera to delicious Strudel, and with everything in between, including chocolate truffles. They also serve real food, and their Sunday brunch is still known only to the locals and the patrons of the Music Hall movie theatre a few doors away.

Comments: One of Toronto's better Irish pubs, the Dora hosts a renowned seison on Thursday nights and Sunday afternoons. Food is better in Allen's next door, where there is no smoking permitted. Smokers can puff to their hearts' content in the Dora--it's a proper Irish pub in that respect. We recommend the sweet potato chips, on either side.

14 Esplanade Bier Mark't

Address 58 Esplanade Stars: Not Available

From What Day	To What Day	Opening Hour	Closing Hour
Open Labour Day
Daily		11:00 AM	1:00 AM

Comments: The Bier Mark't won't fool anyone with their claims to be a restaurant--the food is adequate but not spectacular, and mostly consists of nibbles suitable for munching while you focus your attention on the Mark't's chief offerings: not surprisingly, the beer of which 150 varieties are available, and the show. The Mark't's secondary offering is people-watching. This was a trendy place back in the dot-com era, and remains popular among downtowners.

From What Day	To What Day	Opening Hour	Closing Hour
Monday	Saturday	5:00 PM	10:00 PM
Monday	Saturday	12:00 PM	3:00 PM

Comments: Pity poor Phil DiPalmo. He had a very good business on College Street, decided to allow others to expand under his name, and as a result lost the right to use his own last name on his place of business in a legal settlement! So his original restaurant, formerly known as DiPalmo's, is now "Phil's Original BBQ". Best for pulled pork sandwiches, Phil smokes his meat daily in his own blend of spices, and serves them with a delicious barbecue sauce. If you like pork, it's heaven. If you don't, try the beef brisket, it's nearly as good! If you're a vegetarian, go elsewhere!

Breakfast is almost edible, depending on how hungry and how picky you are. There is also a branch on Carlton Street near the College Subway station, but for some reason the Jarvis Street location serves better food. They're open 24 hours, but you can do better.

Hello Toast also serves dinner, including sea bass and filet mignon, in a cozy, congenial environment.

Monday	Saturday	7:00 AM	4:00 PM

Comments: Over Easy specializes in breakfast, and has some high-end breakfast entrees--Eggs Benedict and Eggs Florentine--as well as more standard fare, such as French toast. They are, however, somewhat inconsistent at times, so be prepared for the occasional mistake from the kitchen. Over Easy's weekend breakfasts are so popular that they opened a second floor, accessible only by elevator inside the building, for overflow crowds. This has the benefit of reducing wait time for tables but slightly increasing the wait time for service.

Comments: As the name indicates, Dumpling House specializes in a variety of Chinese dumplings, both fried and steamed. They also have some non-dumpling dishes. The food is very good, although a plate of dumplings is more of a snack than a meal (ed. note: this depends on how one defines "meal!" For some of us, a plate of dumplings is more than a meal!--JW). Nice to share with a group.

Comments: King's Noodle has been one of our mainstays for years. The food and the service are always good, and the prices are reasonable. Be prepared to share your table with strangers—they don't have the luxury of space. We love the hot and sour soup, Singapore noodles, Yeung Chow fried rice, sweet and sour boneless chicken, and any of the barbeque hanging in the window. A good place to take people who love authentic Chinese food as well as the less adventurous.

Comments: Sam Shopsyowitz built his restaurant up from nothing on Spadina Avenue, and when Spadina became more Chinese than Jewish he moved to greener pastures downtown, across from the Hummingbird Centre. He no longer owns the restaurant that bears his name, but the sandwiches are still respectable, the matzo ball soup and blintzes are still delicious. The menu at Shopsy's keeps expanding, and they now serve almost everything, but they don't do it all well. The farther you get from the Jewish and the Deli, the more chances you are taking. Desserts are generally safe. I have fond memories of consuming the triple chocolate cake after attending the ballet with my mother. They also do takeout, and you can buy a large salami to take home.

Comments: Completely out of the general convention area, but accessible by subway, this is the real place for smoked meat in Toronto. No one knows exactly how, but Wolfie makes a sandwich like no one else in the city, cutting the meat for each sandwich individually while you watch. Whether eat in or take out, Wolfie's will astound you. The Deli itself features an extensive collection of Coca Cola memorabilia. This place won't be around in twenty years (Wolfie isn't getting any younger), don't be telling your friends at Torcon 4 that you missed your chance!

Comments: On The Danforth, Toronto's Greektown. Astoria is one of the oldest restaurants in Greektown, and is a neighborhood favorite. Though not as trendy as some of the newer places, they are known for their good food, large portions, and reasonable prices. Comments: There really is a Greg, and he has been personally supervising this location of his Toronto chain for 20 years. Homemade ice cream and frozen yogurt in a variety of "flavours of the moment," including Pears and Ginger, Bavarian Orange, Lemon Chiffon, and Oreo Cookie. We love the Toasted Marshmallow and Grape Nut; however, find the Chocolate disappointing and Chocolate Frost not worth bothering with. Good milkshakes.

Comments: Cafe Diplomatico is one of the focal points of Toronto's Little Italy, a long stretch of College Street which comprises a mix of Italian and Portuguese restaurants. Of these, the "Dip", as it is known to the hip, has been a dependable source of cheap meals, gelato, and good espresso. Some say the city's upcoming fashion trends of the future in the city clothing choices of the clientele. Certainly the parade of fellow diners and passers-by is as much a part of the experience as the food or coffee.

Comments: The neighbourhood around Camerini abounds with little restaurants which serve the local residents, but even among these, Camerini is deserves a pilgrimage. Run by two brothers, the resemblance between Camerini and the film Big Night was so close that at one point the restaurant boasted that "Louis Prima will not be here tonight." This is not an Italian fusion restaurant, it serves authentic Italian food without pretentious flourishes or strange ingredients. Warning: Patrons of Camerini do not appreciate loud dinner conversations. Lunch Tuesday – Friday 11:30 A.M. – 3 P.M.; Dinner Tuesday-Sunday 5 P.M. – 10 P.M.

Comments: Yonge street both north and south of St. Clair boasts many restaurants, although fewer than in the days when two movie theatres were open in the area. Of the survivors, Caro is the most interesting, chiefly for the pizza. Caro serves, without a doubt, the best goat cheese pizza in Toronto---a marvellous delight. They have other pizzas, including an intriguing trout-and-pear pizza, but it is the goat cheese that keeps me coming back. They also have pasta and entrees.

Comments: Domani's opening shocked the neighbourhood, previously established as "Little Poland." While the neighbourhood more or less retains its Polish flavour, among the pierogies and kielbassa, one finds an Italian Wine Bar. Although I have not personally eaten there, many of my friends have, and they swear by the food, and by the tendency for the entrees to be completely and extensively described on the menu, viz "Fusilli with Roasted Chicken, Grilled Eggplant, Sweet Peppers in a Basil Tomato Goat Cheese Cream Sauce." No mistaking what you are getting in a place like that!

Comments: The Hot House is a big place, but the seating is spread out enough that it never seems really crowded. The Hot House serves good Italian food, except when it doesn't. Salads are good, and frequently feature interesting flavour combinations. In general almost anyone can find some acceptable choice on the menu, which is pretty extensive, and reasonably varied, if not wildly daring. They have a very popular Sunday Jazz Brunch—reservations recommended. The Hot House is a conundrum: some people like it a lot and some people think it has overstayed its welcome. Still others find it a reasonably nice place to go, especially with a large-ish group. Perhaps you should go and add your opinion. Editor's note: my husband proposed to me during brunch at the Hot House. Proofreader's note: mine didn't but her marriage persists, while mine did not; draw your own conclusions.

Comments: Part of chain of restaurants featuring pizzas cooked in a wood-burning oven. Other Italian fare also available. Gluten-sensitive pizza lovers take note! Il Fornello will prepare a spelt-crust pizza. Reservations recommended on nights when the symphony is performing at Roy Thompson Hall across the street—in the words of a co-worker "everyone goes there before the Symphony! You'd think it was the only restaurant for miles [it's not]!"

Friday		4:00 PM	4:00 AM

Comments: Insomnia started as an Internet café with the slogan, "the Internet is a scary place. Never surf alone." Several months ago they junked their last terminal, and they are the only Internet café in the city to successfully make the transition to full-service restaurant. VERY full service, kitchen is open until 4 A.M. on Fridays and Saturdays. The menu is quirky, and they still haven't corrected the spelling error in their "Loatian" Spring Rolls. Where is this "Loas," anyway? But the spring rolls, like everything else, are delicious, and they have an extensive cocktail menu and some great desserts, including the "Climax," their flourless chocolate cake.

Comments: Joe Badali's is an Italian family restaurant, as indicated by the staff's name tags: "Kelly Badali" and "Amin Badali". But "family" doesn't mean "bland"; this restaurant uses liberal amounts of garlic and pepper, and the menu has a varied selection of pasta, meat, and vegetarian choices. The one significant advantage of this place is the cavernous room in the back; we held a Torcon meeting here on a Friday night with a dozen people and we were seated immediately with no reservation, so it will be a great place for impromptu fan gatherings.

Comments: The Old Spaghetti Factory actually inhabits a 19th century factory building, and has several novelty seating areas including a carousel and a streetcar inside the building. Occasionally noisy because it is a favourite for families with young children and birthday parties, the Spaghetti Factory offers full spaghetti dinners including bread, salad, ice cream and complimentary coffee for under $12. The restaurant, infamously, does not take reservations. Service can be inconsistent. Food is unremarkable—people go for the atmosphere.

Comments: Open since 1959, the former Sicilian Ice Cream Shop renovated itself in the early 1990s to a full-service restaurant and café, dumping their quirky jukebox in favour of hanging lamps, and moving their ice cream counter from the center to the side of the establishment. They didn't change the gelati, though—these remain amazing and come in both scoops and in mouth watering tartufo arrangements. They also serve "real" food. Service can be spotty when things get busy.

Comments: They advertise themselves as "The Evolution of Lounge" and probably are a fine place to have a drink, but food service is notoriously slow and some of their options are too eclectic even for trained stomachs. Recently, a dinner group of 12 experienced six stomach problems after eating. Order carefully. This said, if you're looking for a fun nightclub, of the noisy, smoky, Queen St. variety, you could do worse.

Comments: There was a time when I would take ridiculous detours to pass by Jerusalem so that I could order their falafel balls to go. They were that good--especially when they were fresh and hot. The Jerusalem has been serving Middle Eastern meals for about twenty years now and they still know what they are doing. And they don't stint on the portions. For pita and various tasty dips, shish-ke-bab, or platters, this is the best Middle Eastern restaurant in the city. Only the dining room is handicap accessible.

Comments: Located among the other purveyors of lunchtime sustenance for suits and supporters of suits in the Royal Bank Plaza food court. Cultures' motto is "Fresh Food Fast." They created a niche, preparing salads, smoothies, and sandwiches for a lunchtime crowd weary of fried fast food. Less popular in an era of greater culinary choice, Cultures remains a decent place to get a quick, reasonably-priced, reasonably healthful lunch if one happens to be trapped in an office-tower concourse. This editor likes the raspberry-mandarin orange smoothies. Business hours.

Comments: Open since 1959 and now run by the son of the original owner, Barberians is a classy joint but lacks some of the pretentiousness of downtown steakhouses like Bardi's. Barberians is more worried about service than the status of their clientele, and it serves really good steak. Vegetables are extra. Comments: The interior is dark and like a men's club. The food is excellent, the service exceptional. There is a short well-chosen menu featuring steaks, chops, and some chicken and fish complemented by a nice wine list. The smoked salmon appetizer was wonderful. Reportedly the best pork chops in the downtown area, as well as great caesar salad, chicken, and steaks. There is nothing here for vegetarians. Though expensive, it's good value for the money. Free pop refills. For handicapped, staff will carry you to washroom.

Comments: Open in the same location for the last 44 years, Cyrano's is a fine place for a good steak and also features daily seafood specials. Their advertising says "Remember Cyrano's for your next romantic dinner for two or gathering with friends, family, or business associates," and that sums them up--whether you're a party of two or of twenty, they aim to please (although you might want to reserve for twenty--they rented out half their restaurant to a copy-shop a few years ago).

Comments: Not to be confused with the Movenpick Marche on Richmond, Le Bistretto Movenpick is a sit-down restaurant with a regular menu. The food is very good—we especially enjoyed the steak tartare and the mussels. Smoking is allowed on the bar side. They have good ventilation, so even though we were on the smoking side, smoke from several tables away didn't bother me. They offer a lunch buffet for $11.95 on weekdays. Comfy chairs. Also simulcast horseracing off-track betting $7 Admission +$5 for DRF and programmes.

Directions: Front/Royal York. Go north on York to Richmond.

Comments: This is the flagship restaurant of the Movenpick chain. Swiss in origin, the original dining concept blossomed in multicultural, at first extending their cuisine to Continental European specialties---French, German, and Italian---but then spreading still further to Chinese, Indonesian, sushi, North American, and other cuisines. They are known for the quality of their baking, and their ice cream; in addition, the smoked salmon is excellent. The format is sort of like a very upscale cafeteria; you wander around picking up this and that, having your dining card stamped for each purchase. The biggest problem here is that the place is so large, and there too much choice for the indecisive. Two very important things to keep in mind: Don't lose the card! (they will charge you a hundred dollars if you don't have it.) And a 12% service charge is added to every bill, so there is no need to tip beyond that. This makes the place kind of pricey for what it is, but it's still quite popular and may have a dinnertime line on Friday or Saturday evening. Editor's note: "Kind of pricey for what it is" is putting it mildly. I found the food to be O.K. but not exceptional, and very overpriced for what you are getting. It is convenient for large groups who have trouble agreeing on food, since everyone can choose a different cuisine. It is also convenient for late-night snacks, and those awkward middle-of-the-afternoon meals, when some parties have had lunch, some haven't, some just want coffee, and others want a three-course meal. The proofreader likes the chocolate chip muffins very much indeed.

Comments: The food is wonderful, although some of the sauces are similar to each other, and require a subtle palate to distinguish between them. In addition to their regular menu, we recommend the tasting menu, from which people can order as many different appetizers and main courses and they would like to try (desserts are extra). At $22.95 the tasting menu is not cheap, but it is a good value---we recommend going with a group so as to be able to try more dishes.

Comments: Billing itself as "Toronto smallest concert hall", the back room of the Oasis offers entertainment several times a week, ranging from poetry readings to rock concerts. Many of the local Science Fiction poets have given readings here. It's an intimate setting, somewhat reminiscent of somebody's parents' basement, if the basement were kitted out like a small concert venue. Tapas is served in both the front and back room, and considering the small size of its kitchen, Oasis does this very well. No dish ordered to date has disappointed.

Comments: Salad King is located at Yonge and Gould, near Ryerson University, and is a student favourite. Despite their name, their specialty is Thai food. They offer good food at very reasonable prices. You can choose to have your dish spiced with up to 20 chilis, although there is a written warning regarding the wisdom of doing so. Alex and I started with 5, went to 10, and are in the process of working our way up. It's small and crowded, so not recommended for large groups. Closes fairly early.

Comments: The Free Times is the only dependable folk music club in Toronto, with nightly entertainment of one sort or another. The menu is a fusion of Jewish favourites with North American cuisine, featuring daily specials. Many Toronto science-fiction and fantasy poets, such as Sandra Kasturi and David Clink, have done readings at the Free Times. This is not surprising, since Judith Merrill was a friend of the owner and inaugurated the poetry series there. The Free Times is looking forward to seeing Torcon 3 delegates, but strongly urges reservations for large groups. They have a wonderful Sunday brunch with many Jewish favorites.
