Hotel checkout time is normally 1:00 pm. It has been extended until 5:00 pm on Sunday, April 15, for convention members.

As of press time, certain details had not yet been worked out. There will probably be a computer room. There may be a room designated for playing war and other games. And some sort of baby-sitting cooperative may be arranged. Look for signs, or ask at registration.

IMPORTANT STUFF

NAME BADGES AND TAGS: Because of the size of the con, it is absolutely essential that you wear your official name badge or tag. Without it, you will not be admitted into any function (including the party suite). There will be blue meanies to enforce this; try not to run afoul of them. We appreciate your cooperation.

REGISTRATION and INFORMATION: Registration will be open in the Star of the North Hall Section 3, from 11:00 am until 6:00 pm Friday, from 10:00 am until 6:00 pm Saturday, and from 10:00 am until whenever, Sunday. In the same room, Minicon T-shirts, books, and Frisbees will be for sale. At other times it will be possible to register at the Bridge, on the twelfth floor across from the con suite. The Bridge will always be staffed by a committee member. Which brings us to --

THE CON SUITE and THE BRIDGE are located on the twelfth floor. The easiest way to get there is to take one of the main elevators to the eleventh floor, go through the wooden gates up a flight of stairs. Other arrangements are available for the mobility-impaired -- ask a committee member.

BANQUET: A limited number of banquet tickets are still available. Purchase them at registration. For $11.00 you have your choice of (1) Turkey Canoe: Turkey with cheese, bacon and supreme sauce; Minnesota wild rice soup; peas and mushrooms; salad; cornbread; sunflower seed ice cream; or (2) Tyler Too: Roast top sirloin of beef in champignon sauce; Parisienne potatoes; peas and mushrooms; Bavarian cream cake.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS: can be identified by blue name badges/buttons unless trying to hide in the crowd. They're willing to try to help you with any problems or requests; please remember that they have been, and still are, very busy with this con -- be patient.

GOFERS: also known as the Minnesota Gofers, these are the people who help carry out the innumerable little tasks that pop up during a con to harass the rest of the con Committee. Their contributions, generally little-noticed, are nonetheless essential, and are greatly appreciated by all of us. If you'd like to be one of this stalwart little band, trot over to the Registration Room and look for Don Bailey, top-banana of the bunch. Don't slip.

RUNE: The club fanzine of the Minnesota Science Fiction Society, Inc. (Minn-stf) is available to convention members for $2.00 for a year's subscription (4 issues, most likely). Rune is edited by Lee Pelton and Carol Kennedy.

LIQUOR STORES

Since Minnesota is a rather backward state regarding liquor laws, should you find yourself running dangerously low on alcohol and it's after 8 pm you are out of luck. You have been warned.

I can't understand the reasoning behind this early closing time, since most serious drinkers don't get up much before 7. There is no use crying over spilt milk or closed stores. The nearest liquor store is in the Hotel on the ground floor. It is reasonably priced.

PLEASE: NO FRISBEEING IN THE CON SUITE!!!!

A RESTAURANT GUIDE offering suggestions for local dining is available; pick one up.

"When originally published as a novella, the first part of this novel won both the Nebula and Hugo; the complete novel may just repeat that sweep. Shara Drummond invents zero-g dance, uses it to talk to some very strange aliens...By the end, Shara's sister and the man who loves them both come to know these same aliens and with their help lead humanity from its planetary womb to the next evolutionary stage...Authenticity provided by a co-author who is a professional dancer... GUEST OF HONOR: THEODORE STURGEON

One man's opinion of the writings of Theodore Sturgeon

I have never met Theodore Sturgeon, except between the covers of a paperback book or some dusty, neglected, precious pulp magazine. So I am surprised to find that I also feel that I know Ted Sturgeon, human being, as well as Theodore Sturgeon, author. Sturgeon talks to me as no other writer ever has.

One thing shows up again and again in his writings: he has an overwhelming love for the human race. And he understands, in depth, all the weaknesses we are so prone to. He speaks to those who care about people while knowing that a human's good and evil sides are inextricably woven and often interchange subtly. Recognizing this without condemning people for it makes Sturgeon a writer unlike any other I have discovered.

My own personal judgement of whether a story is good depends on the degree to which the author can get me to care about what is going on. Better yet is the story that makes me care about the characters I'm following through the maze of plot. The best ones are those that tell me, in language I can understand, how something that is happening to the character is related to something that has happened to me. The list of stories in that category is very short; a disproportionate number of them are by Theodore Sturgeon.

He can give us horror, in stories like "Killdozer", "It", and "Memorial". But he can tell poignant love stories, as shown in "Case and the Dreamer", "Bright Segment", and the once-daring novel Venus Plus X. Two of the funniest short stories I have ever read are his "Ether Breather" and its sequel "Butyl and the Ether Breather". "The Pod in the Barrier" helped me shape an opinion that I hold to this day, that EVERYBODY has some value, in their own way, if you look hard enough at the right time. "Maturity" is a story that means much to me because Robin English, in attaining his goal, reminds me that too much of anything, no matter how good, can be deadly. (You can buy the special edition of this story, published for MINICON, and discover what it means to you.)

Sturgeon is a man who can weave words, involve your emotions, make you think, make you feel glad to be alive. His gift is in knowing people and being able to put that knowledge on paper for us to share. Truly, ALL his stories are love stories.

I guess that what I feel about Ted Sturgeon is really pretty simple: I love the man, I love his writing. And when I finally get to meet him, I think I will be meeting an old and dear friend -- for the first time.

Lee Pelton

Theodore Sturgeon was born on February 26th 1918, in New York City. And though he, at various times and places, served in the Merchant Marine, managed a hotel, and operated a bulldozer, he never fulfilled his early ambition to be a circus aerialist.

His first published science fiction story was "Ether Breather". in the September, 1939. Astounding. Since then he has won the British Argosy Short Story Contest with "Bianca's Hands" (1947), won the International Fantasy Award for More Than Human (1959), and both the Hugo and the Nebula awards for "Slow Sculpture" (1971). He has been a book reviewer for Venture and Galaxy, was a columnist for If, and written all manner of fiction. Another collection of his short stories will be published soon, entitled The Stars Are the Styx.

TOM DIGBY by Nate Bucklin

Chocolate-covered manhole covers. Vacuum cleaners that vacuum themselves up. Mama and Papa Werewolf arguing over whose turn it is to "change" the baby. Waiting by a sign marked "Not a Bus Stop" until the vehicle marked "Not a Bus" arrives.

All these ideas, and many more, are products of the fertile mind of Thomas Graham Digby, a fan who has dreamed up more scienti-fantastical ideas in fourteen years as an active science fiction fan than many of us have in our libraries. Tom (or Thom, or simply "Digby") has written short stories ("The World of Not-A") free verse ("I sent you a message in a cloud of tachyons..."), songs ("Have you ever been to a part of the world/Where people don't believe in the moon?"), cartoons ("No parking. Violaters will be stomped on..." with its accompanying illustration), limericks ("Two Siamese twins from Bombay..."), and countless idea trips like those above. He has also managed to appear as a character in a story by Larry Niven, "What Can You Say About Chocolate Covered Manhole Covers?". Although his writings have generally appeared only in Apa L and Minneapa, Los Angeles-and Twin Cities-based amateur press associations, to which he contributes regularly, he was nominated for the Hugo award for Best Fan Writer in 1971 and 1972.

In person, Tom is tall, affable, red-haired, and too lively to be 39, with the fastest walking stride I have ever encountered. He also has a distinct southern accent which 15 years of living in the Los Angeles area have done little to eradicate, and possesses the rare ability to liven up a party without having to out-talk, out-drink, or out-sing anybody to do it. Fellow sapient beings, fandom has only one Tom Digby--walk up to him and say "Hi."

Microprograming Notice

There will be weird (and wonderfully woozy) bits of silliness before all programming items, during the auction, on the elevator and any-time we feel sufficiently strangled by seriousness. There will be no advance warning, though we have harnessed a (widget) and two boffs as bozoid indicators, so keep your eyes open. If you find yourself in the middle of a microprogramming item, don't dream it, be it.

ARTIST GUEST OF HONOR: RICK STERNBACH

I've known Rick (as he's known to his friends) since, oh, I'd say 1974 or so. He came to the Hub back in those days for some unremembered reason -- he said that he was skin diving off the North Shore, but I have my doubts. Those were the Nixon years, you know, and a lot of mighty strange things happened in those days. Things that unless you were a California Republican, you never found out about.

Richard M. (aMaeus) Sternbach had just sold his first cover to Ali Ben Bova (these were also the days of the first gasoline shortage, when America found out that Arabs were into more than just coffee beans and horses), and he had heard about the fan group up in Boston, and he paid us a visit or three. By '75 it got to the point where people up there just saved their dirty dishes for ol' Rick to do up on his weekend trips. Yessir, Rick, he surely loved to wash dishes; that and do pizza box cover artwork. Spike MacPhee, one of the people living at Terminus (the center of a lot of this activity, and Rick's hang-out, when he was in town), thought a lot of Rick's work (Spike is not a California Republican, so it must have been Rick's artwork), and he thought that it was his duty to save all those pizza-box covers, and styrofoam cups with "ACE" Farko cartoons, and pictures of Kentucky Fried Denkiri on them.

Asenath Hammond was visiting us a bit, too, and seeing how Rick lived in Connecticut, and she lived in New Orc City, why it was only natural that if'n they were going to be visiting the goodfen of Boston at the same time, that they ride together. And thusly from a carpool was created a marriage, formed not in heaven, but in terstate (I-86, in fact). Yessir, them's were the days when Minneapolis fandom was just a children's story to those of us on the eastern half of the country (that is to say, east of the Hudson River), that Rick and Asenath and Krissy told to quiet the unruly ones after a late night of story telling and Terminus Dinner Conversation. There were Iron Men in that age, and we will never see their rusted hulks again.

Rick's gone from the Hub of the Universe now (but then so am I), all of these are but memories -- and write-only memories at that. Rick had illustrated Science Digest, Astronomy, newsweek but not Time, a backdrop at WGBH-TV in Boston, the famed starry sky in the main programming tent at Highcon, the legendary '76 worldcon in Highmore, South Dakota, and the cake at the Terminus Halloween party. A couple of years ago, Rick and Asenath left their palatial home in Cornwall Bridge, Connecticut, for Hollywood, where Rick worked on the Walt Disney movie that everyone is still talking about. (Why just a few days ago, Garth Danielson asked me, he said, "Hey, what ever happened to that Disney SF flick that Sternbach was working on?") He's working for JPL now and Asimov's Magazine, and who knows, maybe even waiting for checks from Galaxy, just like everyone else.

Yes boys and girls, this is Rick Sternbach, the man and the myth; now it's up to you to decide which is which.

THE MASTER OF THE WORLD by Jim Young

My friend Robert E. Vardeman (the "E" stands for "Earth") has long wanted to take over the world. What is most remarkable about him is that he, unlike many others, is actually doing something about it.

I first became acquainted with him through his fanzine Sandworm. Little did I know that Vardebob would start his world-girdling plot through its pages; for early in 1971 he succeeded in confusing the Department of Defense into believing that Sandworm was a journal published by the Sandia Corporation. Sandia is, of course, one of the nation's foremost defense contractors, and a staple of Albuquerque's economy. (The corporation was founded during the First Staple War.) Many people in Washington think that anything with the word "sand" in it must have something to do with Sandia, you see, and this is how Vardeman managed to order three or four surplus nuclear reactors and a Trident submarine C.O.D.

Bob had no trouble selling off the reactors to various fourth world nations -- the Martians have always had lots of plutonium, though very little oil -- but could do little with the submarine. Finally, he was forced to invent a retractable caterpillar track for the thing in order to sell it to the town of Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, as a potential door prize for its annual Bob Barker Festival.

With the proceeds from these sales, he initiated the first large-scale human cloning experiment, creating several hundred clones of himself. These simulacra are often seen wandering conventions hotels at strange hours of the day or night, and may be detected by following the trails of ice-cubes they leave in hallways. (The clones work by extracting energy from the air, causing them to excrete the ice which condenses around their heat pumps. Very hand at parties, I'd say.) In recent years his clones have been seen in every state of the union, several provinces of Canada, and one of them (serial number Z9M9Z) is currently the mayor of Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

Since the development of his clones, Vardebob has wrested control of his home-town, Albuquerque, and through a series of edicts he has caused it to become the hot-air ballooning capital of the planet. This has obviated the necessity of employing politicians, a development which has not only drastically reduced the city's property tax levy, but has also helped ease the entire state's balance of trade problem by making hot air a major export. (Note that much of southern Minnesota's summer weather comes from New Mexico courtesy of the jet stream. I've recently started bargaining with Vardeman to get him to make this a winter export as well.)

Vardeman's next move, he says, will be to take over the science fiction publishing industry, a move that will no doubt be aided by his mysterious connections with the super-secret Illuminati organization. He tells me that his next work is guaranteed by his publishers as the largest best-seller since Luke, and its title will be Star Trek 1999: Mork and Mindy on Battlestar Galactica in the Star War against the Sons of Hercules. True to his arid birth-right, as ever, he says the protagonist of this epic is a girl named Maude Dibb.

Which is reason enough and them some to welcome him to this Minicon as an honored guest!

MIMEO ROOM

a fannish method of reproduction other than Bob Tucker.

After getting the obligatory Bob Tucker reproduction joke* out of the way on to business.

The mimeo room has been set up to encourage new fans to enter the world of fanzines (sounds a little pretentious doesn't it) and to offer repro facilities and instruction of same.

* For more information on Bob's amazing Reproductive(TM) abilities stop Bob during the con. He'll be seen smoothing things over. Note: don't touch his bottle and don't interrupt him in a clinch. He'll take the babe first.

The room is located in the LaSalle Room C (check your map). Our hours are very flexible, the room will be open most of the time with someone to do the work for you. The Gestetner(TM) 360 Mimeograph and the Gestetner (TM) 455 Electronic Stencil Cutter are only to be used by Mimeo Room Staff. As long as the room is open, there will be some one there to operate the equipment. There will be typewriters to type stencils on, as well as paper to draw on.

FREE: WOW

100 copies of anything you want.

Anyone coming in will be given 2 regular stencils or 1 regular stencil and 1 electrostencil and 100 sheets of paper, printed both sides.

MINICONAPA

Perhaps a little misleading but what the heck. Tha Apa is open to anyone with 100 copies of a zine and 25¢(not to be spent foolishly). Material should be in by Saturday Midnight. Collation takes place and the night goes on.

Anyone not contributing to the apa can pick one up Sunday for 50¢ should any remain. Proceeds to Taff, Duff and the Better Half Transfer Fund.

Additional materials are available:

Paper 75¢ for 100 sheets

$3,50 per ream.

Stencils 25¢

Electro-stencils 75¢

There will be an open discussion type seminar on fanzines and why by fanzine editors and the like, sometime Saturday afternoon. Depends on whom we can round up. Sunday afternoon there will be a seminar on drawing on stencils by Ken Fletcher. Check our posting on the door.

If this sounds very casual, it is and that's the way I want it to be. Nothing serious, just fun with ink and stuff. Bring your crazyness, or your crazy.

ART AUCTION

This year we're trying something new (Nu? Gnu?). The first person to bid on an item of art, gets to choose (if the person wants to) which auction the piece of art will be auctioned at. There will be an early evening auction (8:30 pm - 9:30 pm Sat.) and a late evening auction (12 midnight-1:30 am) to choose between.

The Sunday afternoon auction (12 NOON-1pm)(All times are approximate) will be reserved for pieces not auctioned off at the first two auctions. This will give you the opportunity, if you have to get into costume to choose the late nite auction, or, if you want to be sure not to miss SEX MADNESS, to choose the earlier auction. If you are not now totally confused, you will have to do so by your own devices. And remember-
ANTLERS OPTIONAL!!!

TAFF DUFF

Taff Duff auction material includes old fanzines! name tags, artwork, books, and t-shirts.

NO PHOTOGRAPHY IS ALLOWED IN THE ARTSHOW or art auction, unless you can furnish indisputable evidence that the artist has granted you permission to photograph his or her artwork.
