

Elsewhere in Detroit

You've heard of Chicago-style pizza and NYC-style pizza, but did you know that Detroit has its own unique style too? Buddy's Pizza is the place to try it within the city. (Note that this location is in a somewhat dodgy neighborhood, but the parking lot is enclosed and monitored).

Southwest Detroit is home to a substantial Hispanic population, and you'll find plenty of places to choose from in Mexicantown. For something a little different, check out El Barzon, where you can get top-notch Mexican food and incredible homemade Italian pasta dishes in the same meal. The chef/owner worked for several years at a high end Italian restaurant in NYC before opening up his Mexican restaurant in Detroit, and he decided it would be silly to abandon all he had learned.

Hamtramck is an independent city entirely surrounded by Detroit. In 1970, 90% of the population was of Polish origin. While that has changed over the years, it is still home to the Polish-American museum and several Polish restaurants including the Polish Village Café.

Ever heard of featherbowling? This Belgian game is akin to horseshoes and Bocci. Detroit's Cadieux Cafe is proud to be the only home of featherbowling in the United States. The game is rarely played in Belgium, and visitors from the old country are often astonished to see the game preserved as it is here. You can enjoy some Belgian beer and moules frites too!

Outside Detroit

The city of Dearborn MI is just outside Detroit and has the largest concentration of Arab-Americans in the USA, which means an excellent selection of Middle Eastern restaurants and bakeries! We like Al-Ameer (12710 W. Warren Ave)—go with a group and get one of the family platters to be able to try a little bit of everything. Everything is also good at Hamido (13251 W Warren Ave), but be sure you order the rotisserie chicken—it's truly incredible. For baked goods, visit Shatilla Bakery (14300 W Warren Ave) for amazing trays of baklava and other Middle Eastern pastries.

Detcon1 Restaurant Guide

Welcome to Detroit! There's tons of places to eat and drink in the city, and we encourage you to get online and do your own research. Check out the <http://detroit.eater.com> and <http://metrotimes.com/food> for reviews and recommendations beyond our list below. But here are a few ideas to get you started!

In the Renaissance Center

There are a wide variety of places to eat without ever leaving the building. The food court located on the lower level (A) contains a selection of fast food restaurants. Some close on the weekend, or close early in the evening, but some of them have agreed to stay open extra for us. Check out the back page for deals at Renaissance Center restaurants!

Volt, the lobby bar and restaurant of the Marriott serves breakfast, lunch and dinner daily. If you're looking for a nice meal that won't take you too far away from the con, check out one of the RenCen's higher end eateries—Joe Muer Seafood, Andiamo (Italian), and Coach Insignia (steak house with an amazing view!).

Very Nearby

Across the street from the RenCen, and connected by Skyway, is the Millender Center, which also houses a variety of fast food and fast casual restaurants. Tom's Oyster Bar is also just across the street and a couple blocks down and features seafood and sandwiches at moderate prices. Or head to Jacoby's German Beer Garden a couple blocks down Brush Street. Sweetwater Tavern is nothing fancy, but boasts the best wings in Detroit.

Also Downtown

If you're willing to walk a little farther, or hop on the People Mover, downtown Detroit features a wide variety of interesting restaurants. Roast in the Westin Hotel is the Detroit outpost of celebrity chef Michael Symon and is a great destination for nose-to-tail eating and great cocktails (PM: Michigan Ave). Cliff Bells (PM: Grand Circus) is a restored art deco club that serves creative, eclectic fare with live jazz on stage nightly. The Fountain Bistro in Campus Martius Park features inventive French food, with a great view of the park—which gets converted to a sand covered "beach" every summer! The park features pop-up food vendors as well, and there are several other Campus Martius restaurants on the list.

Take the Coney Dog challenge! A Detroit original, a Coney Dog is a hot dog topped with chili, mustard and onions. Two chains—American Coney Island and Lafayette Coney Island—vie for the title of best Coney Dog in Detroit. With both chains having locations right next to each other on West Lafayette, it's easy to compare and contrast. Aside from Coney Dogs, they serve classic diner food, including breakfast all day.

Visit Greektown! It has its own station on the People Mover and is just a medium walk from the RenCen. There are lots of restaurants of all different cuisines to choose from. For Greek, we like the newest addition, Santorini Estiatorio. But Pegasus Taverna is a classic, and the pastries from Astoria Pastry Shop can't be missed. For non-Greek dining, check out Redsmoke BBQ. There's also a Five Guys Burgers and a Coldstone Creamery.

A Little Farther Afield

Corktown is the name of the neighborhood near the former Tigers Stadium. The demolition of the stadium took down many of the restaurants that relied on it for business, but several years later it is now one of the most exciting areas of the city. Check out what might be Detroit's most famous restaurant, Slow's BBQ (be prepared for long waits), or visit Mudgie's Deli, St. Cece's Pub, or my personal favorite, Green Dot Stables. This hipster hangout serves beer, cocktails, and two dozen varieties of creative sliders, and almost no single items costs more than $3. If you're looking for a drink in Corktown, check out The Sugar House, or the tasting room at Two James Distillery (the first distillery in the city limits since Prohibition).

Each week thousands of people flock to Eastern Market for its Saturday Market, with hundreds of stalls selling fruits, veggies, fresh-cut flowers, homemade jams, maple syrups, and locally produced specialty food products. The area surrounding the market is a local food district, with more than 250 independent vendors and merchants processing, wholesaling, and retailing food. There are also a lot of dining choices in the area. Roma Café, Louisiana Creole Gumbo, Russell Street Deli, and Supino Pizzeria are some recommended choices, but take a wander around the market and see what you find!

Midtown is the cultural center of Detroit, home to the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, the Detroit Public Library, the Museum of Contemporary Art, and the Michigan Science Center. Dining choices abound, but consider checking out Cass Café—a restaurant, bar, and art gallery all in one. Motor City Brewing Works has craft beer brewed right here in Detroit, and great pizza.
