DIRTY LITTLE SECRETS

. . . Is the daily newsletter of Norwescon 32, and we're doing our best to invent new ways to be wrong about journalism.
Your temporarily indisposed editor is R'ykander (Dara) Korra'ti, Cynic-in-Chief. Submission are due by 10pm for the next morning's print edition, or later if you find us in person inking up our keyboards for the night. And don't push us, man, we're not drunk enough (yet). COPY!

This edition published by a punch-drunk pod-person.

THURSDAY BURBLINGS FROM THE CHAIR By Becky Citrak, Chair

What a great day this was!

Registration - both Convention and hotel - was busy all day.
There were a couple of glitches her and there, but by and large it went well.

Programming was well-attended, as was the Small Press Party. Opening Ceremonies was wonderful!
Who knew Dr. Seuss could be so much fun?

Friday will be interesting.
Check out the Norwescon Town Meeting at 11:00 a.m. in Evergreen 2. This is your opportunity to make suggestions and throw out ideas for Norwescons to come.
The masquerade (Saturday) is always a hit and programming has something for everyone.

Have a great day!

ATTENTION TOBY AND DAVE

Are you wandering, lost without your meticulous multi-page book lists? Lady Jaynes books in the dealers room is holding them for you.

PERSONALITIES RISE FROM THE DEAD

On Saturday the midnight movie will be the site of much rejoicing as the Dead Gentlemen come back to life (a few of them anyway) and grace us with their presence in Evergreen 1 & 2.

HOCKEY—THE GAME WHERE YOU GET TO BEAT EACH OTHER WITH STICKS

Oh wait, isn't that the Sunday Special Event in Grand Three. This bit is really only interesting to those of us who like the Vancouver Cannuks so keep reading if you care . . .

The Cannuks beat the LA Kings 1 to nothing at a packed GM Place last night. The only goal coming from Ryan Kasler, with the assists from Mat Sundin and Alex Edler at 5:49 in the second. Roberto Luongo stopped 20 LA shot son the Canucks' net. The team will next play the Avalanche in Denver on Sunday.

WHAT WILL THE NEIGHBORS THINK?

Remember even though it seems like we're the only guests at this hotel there are others staying here who may well be dismayed by what they see or hear. Keep it legal people or keep it out of sight!

CONTENT NEEDED!!!!!!!

There's a good chance that this space would be better utilized by something that you pull out of your head instead of something that I pull out of my . . . ear. Find a nifty little box and give us all your dirty little secrets.

We accept party reports too!

MONSTER MASH

Have you ever wanted your very own Owlbear? Come and be a mad scientist for the afternoon. Join in the ripping and stitching of plush toys. Now with no fee! This event is not suitable for children, especially mine as you'll be destroying a number of their toys.

OVERHEARD

"Let's kill him and take his toy."
"Do you need to get under the table?"

BATTLE OF THE SMART PHONES

Geeks-R-Us is proud to present the ultimate battle of the smart phones.

VS.

Battle to be held on Saturday, April 11th in Seaports Lounge at Norwescon 32. Owners will showcase their new toys and compete to see who can take the most pictures of local color and post them to the Web in a 10 minute period. To compete humans must own an Internet connected telephone with a camera and data plan.

Geeks-R-Us CEO Graham Bell says, "Well it's not rocket science. but with the newest toys on the market it might well be the next best thing."
