Friday

4:00 - Science-Fiction Theater "Time Is Just A Place" - Don DeFore, Marie Windsor

4:30 - Superboy - Pilot episode for the hit TV series (1961)

5:00 - Camouflage - Walt Disney's contribution to the war effort (or possibly Warner Bros.; nobody's sure)

5:30 - The Wizard Of Oz - No, nobody sings "Over The Rainbow". In fact, nobody sings at all. This is the 1925 silent version with Larry Semon and Oliver Hardy

7:00 - Attack of the B-Movie Monster - See Brinke Stevens and Kenneth Tobey (among others) menaced by a monster that acts as if it's made out of clay. Contains scenes from every B movie you've ever seen!

(Real Movies Begin)

8:00 - Warner Bros. Promo Reel - See scenes from upcoming Warner releases like Back To The Future II and Gremlins II

9:00 - Buckaroo Banzai Across The Eighth Dimension - See Buck and the Hong Kong Cavaliers fight the evil Lectroids from Planet 10 before the good guys vaporize Smolinsk and start WWII

10:30 - Phantom of the Paradise - See Swan, Beef, Phoenix and all the gang in a recreation of Faust as interpreted by Paul Williams

12:15 - Wizards - Animated feature owes just a little (well, maybe A LOT) to Vaughn Bode and several other graphic artists as "sampled" by Ralph Bakshi (pre-Mighty Mouse)

Saturday

8:00 - Akira - Post WWII tale of the emerging psychic sciences. Who is Akira and what are his powers? Powerfully told; far superior to the Marvel comic adaptation

10:00 - Five Star Stories - Amateratsu, future lord of the Joker system, struggles to gain the Fate Lachise as his Fatima - whatever that means. Hey, the animation's great!

11:00 - Dominion - Tank Police - Baku the Great and the Puma sisters try to steal the drug Vapor, and it's up to the more-than-slightly-psychotic Tank Police to stop them

11:30 - Fist of the North Star - Ken fights his big brother Raoul. (An episode from the popular TV series.) A knock-down, drag-out fight with a few surprises, Japanese style

12:00 - Dynamaman - "Spunky The Wonder Squid", "The Seven Loves Of Lucky Pierre" and "The Lizard Of Oz" as mangled by those crazy Night Flight kids

1:00 - Dr. Who Festival - Back by popular demand, all four Ryan Johnson Dr. Who tributes, featuring Barbara Benedetto as The Doctor. Plus extra added attraction: Star Trek: The Pepsi Generation. A real treat!!!

3:00 - Four-Sided Triangle - We blew it last year, but we finally present the lost SF classic from England about two scientists and the woman they love

4:15 - Hellzapoppin' - Many fans of comedy think Olsen and Johnson were loads funnier than Abbott and Costello. This flick only supports that position

5:30 - The Champions - TV episode compilation that retells the group's origin

(Real Movies Begin)

7:00 - Warner Bros. Promo Reel - For those who missed it the first time ... (see Friday 8 pm)

8:00 - War Of The Worlds - George Pal's epic rendition of the H.G. Wells classic

10:00 - When Worlds Collide - Another Geo. Pal classic, as Beta and Zyra swing towards Earth ... and Earth can't get out of the way!!!

12:00 - Dr. Strangelove, Or, How I Learned To Stop Worrying And Love The Bomb - The title says it all, don't you think? Stanley Kubrick's best, and a certified American classic

Sunday

8:00 - Only You - The first Urusei Yatsura movie with several scenes restored since its original release. Princess Elle returns to Earth to claim Ataru as her husband, but Lum objects

9:30 - Dirty Pair - The "Lovely Angels" investigate why cyborgs are opposing a rebellion. See another example of why this series is called "Dirty Pair"

10:00 - Char's Counter-Attack - Space opera at its best as the Gundam saga climaxes. Char Aznable attempts to hurl the giant asteroid fortress Axis at the Earth. Great soundtrack in Dolby

12:00 - Quatermass And The Pit - The British TV version of Five Million Years To Earth. See TV SF on practically no budget. Written by Nigel Kneale, the original Quatermass chronicler

(Convention ends)
