

Lokaal Restaurant Lijst

Welcome to SMOFcon 29! For this local restaurant listing, we've gathered a ragtag bunch to share information garnered from dining in Amsterdam. We've been inspired by James Bacon's articles in File 770 and elsewhere, but it couldn't have come together with assistance from other fans and locals. The postcodes (i.e. 1012 AB) are included here because they can be useful for taxis and/or GPS. Note that estimates of travel time to restaurants is based on walking, and Google Maps assisted with some of that data.

Thanks to all our contributors: James Bacon, Ken Bacon (James' dad), Ian Sorensen, Jan Van Ent (and friends), and Janice Gelb. Production assistance from Mark Plummer.

AMSTERDAM RESTAURANTS

Amsterdam is, as you would expect, full of restaurants with a lot of different cuisines to choose from. Getting the right one is the trick. Remember: Do make a reservation, to avoid disappointment or/ a long wait.

By law, restaurants and bars are now non-smoking. Except, you know, the exceptions. Seriously, your mileage may vary, because sometimes tobacco smoking is tactfully ignored.

Accessibility can't be guaranteed in old buildings in Europe so if this is your issue you might want to enquire when you ring to book.

Indonesian cuisine. It is said that you get the best Indonesian food outside Indonesia in Holland. The Indonesian Rice Table can be spectacular. There are many Indonesian restaurants, and your mileage may vary. Some are expensive, some are disappointing for the quality.

Dutch cuisine. "Much that is interesting, but it can work out quite expensive." [KB]

Steak houses. "There are many Argentinean Steak Houses in Amsterdam and they are generally excellent." [KB]

1017 BJ

Telefoon: +31 (0)20 4226426

<http://www.garlicqueen.nl/>

[JG] "Nice small restaurant featuring garlic dishes, including garlic beer and garlic ice cream. Unlike many similar places, the garlic isn't only a gimmick, and the food is actually good, with the stewed beef one of the house specialties and a tasty garlic soup. Prices fairly reasonable." Open Wed - Sun from 16.00. 20 minutes walk.

Nam Kee Chinatown

Zeedijk 111 - 113

1012 AV

Telefoon: 020 624 34 70

<http://www.namkee.nl/eng.html>

[JvE] "Food is good but the restaurant is lacking in atmosphere - not very cozy." Good food (try the oysters) in spite of decor. Tip: order white rice separately. There are at least three of these, this one's the closest. 10 minutes walk.

Blom Lunchcafé

Nieuwendijk 117- 119

1012 MD

Telefoon: 020 624 6026

[JG] On the main shopping street very near the hotel. "Nice quiet atmosphere and decent prices: an order of fried eggs with bacon and toast automatically came with three eggs. They serve an "English breakfast" and lunch. Plus they have a resident cat!"

Thai Bird Restaurant

[JvE] "Quite good and caters to groups." Italian restaurant located (apparently) in a theater. You'll probably pass it on the way to Café Van Kerkwijk. Dinner served Mon - Wed ?? - 22.00, Thu - Sat ?? - 23.00 Lunch served Mon - Friday by appointment, for groups of 10 or more.

Jayakarka

Rembrandtplein 16

1017 CV

Telefoon: +31 20 6255569

[KB] "The best Indonesian restaurant we were ever in, but that was in 1989. Might be worth a look though." For Rembrandtplein, continue straight on from the Kalverstraat into Reguliersbreestraat to the square, which is Rembrandtplein. 20 minute walk.

Restaurant Oud Holland,

Nieuwezijds Voorburgwal 105

1012 RG

020- 422 90 18

<http://www.restaurantoudholland.com/>

[JB] "The best Dutch restaurant I was in. They do a Dutch platter for two or more and is very substantial (no starter needed)."

Reasonable prices, dinner for two for about €50. Restaurant is watched over by a capable Dutch cat.

Brasserie De Poort

Nieuwezijds Voorburgwal 176-180
1012 SJ

Telefoon: +31 20 7142000

<http://www.dieportvancleve.com/>

Dutch restaurant James' dad most wants to try.

You can look at the menus on their website and the reviews are fantastic. It is a bit pricey but the Traditional Dutch Dishes and the Three Course Dinner look ok. In Hotel Die Port van Cleve.

Dinner Thu - Sat 17.00 - ?, Lunch Fri - Sun 12.00 - 17.00. High Tea 14.00 - 16.00. 5 minute walk.

"THERE ARE OF COURSE MANY DUTCH RESTAURANTS, SO LOOK AROUND."

The Sea Palace

Oosterdokskade 8
1011 AE

Telefoon: +31 20 6264777

<http://www.seapalace.nl/en>

You will see this huge Chinese Boat all bright and lit up in wonderful colored lights. Very attractive and very tempting, but not recommended. Expensive, unnecessarily so.

Note they don't list prices on their website. Open daily 12.00 - 23.00.

FEBO. FEBO is "De Lekkerste" (the tastiest). It's self-service (except for chips, which you order from the counter) from little boxes on the wall.

You can get a huge variety of stuff, hot or cold, much of it typical Dutch. "Febo is quick take away food, intrinsically part of the Dutch nightlife.

The foods in mini cabins are Dutch and the chips and sauces excellent.[KB] Comparable to a bacon sandwich in the UK or hot dog stateside." [JB]

At least 22 of these in Amsterdam, this one is just around the corner from our hotel.

Forage for yourselves...

In general... people tell me you can go east from the hotel along Zeedijk, which soon turns southward, and brings you to Nieuwmarkt with Cafe Restaurant In de Waag -- the castle-like building that was once part of the city walls.

You'll find lots of places around that market square. NOT recommended to go east directly from central station. All Chinese restaurants along Zeedijk are fine and usually fairly efficient too. The Thai restaurant (right on also on Zeedijk is quite good, but pricy.

If you walk west from our hotel and then south into Nieuwezijds Voorburgwal, you'll encounter the recommended New Dorrius in the Crown Plaza hotel. There are loads of restaurants in the Haarlemmerdijk area also.

Locals disrecommend eating along Damrak (going south from the station and Victoria hotel) because that area caters to tourism, usually too high prices in comparison to services offered ("money first, customer to pay"). But walking on past the Dam square down Rokin you'll encounter various Chinese and other restaurants again. From the south-east of the Dam square (10 min walk) you'll find Damstraat towards Nieuwmarkt, and Nes going south again, or from the southwest end of Dam Square you can go south again down Kalverstraat towards Spui (20 min walk) or a little west you'll find Spuistraat and one block further along is Nieuwezijds Voorburgwal.

Street Food...

If you don't want a sit down lunch you can have frites with mayo or sate sauce in a bag as you walk along or sit on a wall or something like that.

And make sure you get Nieuwe Haring (fresh young herrings in a bread roll with onions = YUMMY). Sold all along the streets from mobile sellers. You will hear them (or smell them!) before you see them. They keep shouting NIEUWES HARINGS.

Feline watchers...

Amsterdam cats are the most beautiful in the World, and they are everywhere. Cats are there for a reason and when one considers that Amsterdam is below sea level, they are essential.
