

C. C. & P. (Don't Ask, ED.)

Good morning, boys and girls. Welcome to my neighborhood. Today we are going to meet with Mr. Security Man. Can you say security? - I thought you could.

As you can see, Mr Security Man is wearing his traditional costume, or as he likes to call it, his uniform. My! Look how shiny all that black leather is, and see how sharp those silver points on his arm look. I really think the big red nose and orange hair really makes Mr. Security Man look sharp.

You know, boys and girls, security is not just the job of Mr. Security Man, all of us need to know how to help in making our little corner of the neighborhood a little more secure. And to help all of us, I have asked Mr. Security Man to give us a list of tips that we can all live by to make our neighborhood a little more enjoyable for all.

Swords and axes really make a costume look great, but care must be taken with them to insure that nobody else can be injured by them. To aid in this, we are asked that all bladed weapons be sheathed in a hard, protective covering that will cover both the edge and the point. Also we should be careful that we don't have anything sticking out that could catch somebody as they are walking past you.

The State of Arizona, and isn't it a wonderful place, runs by the code of the old, wild west. This means that you can carry a gun while you do business. Can you say handgun? - I thought you could. We should remember that the hotel does not allow real guns on their sites, and realistic looking guns are not allowed either.

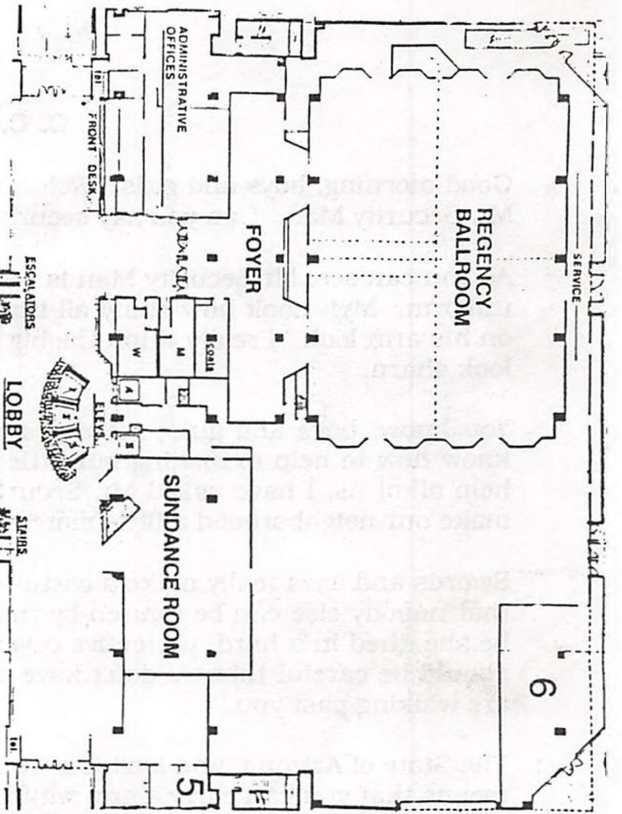

You know boys and girls, spiked apparel looks nice on television, (if you get the same channels in your neighborhood as I do), but they loose their effect when worn in public. So we should never wear them while we are at the con.

Protecting the area you live in is very important, and remember that during the weekend, you are living in a hotel. You wouldn't carve your initials in your bedroom wall, would you? I thought you wouldn't. Also boys and girls, remember to say your prayers and brush your teeth before you go to sleep in your own rooms. You all know that you shouldn't sleep in public areas, you never know who may come up and dump ice water on you.

Alcohol is a very interesting item to talk about. Can you say booze? - I thought you could. But really, boys and girls, you shouldn't drink any alcohol if you were born after July 1, 1967, the legal drinking age of Arizona is 21. Also remember that you should not bring any breakable containers (can you say shatter - I thought you could) onto any of the hotel floors. This is very important when you look at the pool deck. Glass is very hard to clean out of a pool, and if they have to clean it out, you can't swim in it. So don't do it.

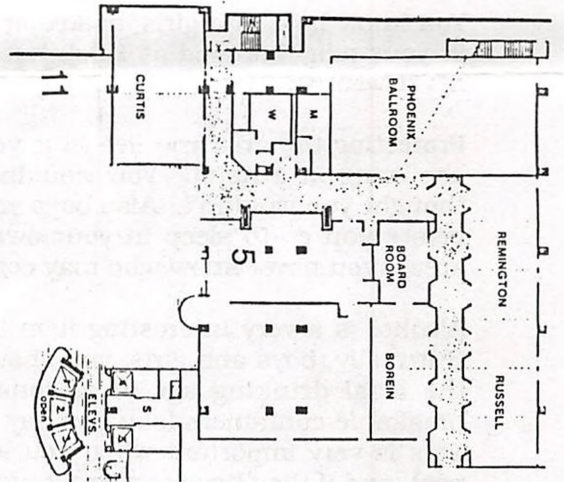

And lastly, boys and girls, we should remember that attending a convention is not a right, it is a privilege to be honored and protected. Mr. Security Man has the right to remove any bad boy or girl from the convention and have them removed from the hotel. And if this happens, they will not have their membership fees refunded to them.

I can see by the clock on the wall that our time is up for today. I hope that you all remember the important information (can you say important - I thought you could) that Mr. Security Man shared with us today. Remember, security is the business of all of us. I hope you had a wonderful day in my neighborhood and I hope you can come back real soon.
