THE NEWSZINE of WISCON

Friday EVENING

Vol. 17, No. 3

Programming Corrections

We had bad tidings on Friday evening when we found out that Terry Garey won't be attending Wiscon this year. So unfortunately we won't be able to enjoy her astute remarks on panels this year. But luckily for us, Laurel Winter, a short fiction writer and poet, will be filling Terry's reading slot Saturday. Stop by and have a listen.

In other news, Susanna Sturgis has arrived with limitless energy to apply to several Wiscon topics. She'll be joining the "Mistress or Menace: Marion Zimmer Bradley" panel as well as "Fantasy & Science Fiction over the last 15 years: have women's roles improved?" Try to fit these into your busy schedule.

Authors may want to stop by the Chairman's Suite on the sixth floor at 5:00pm on Saturday. We have reserved that slot for autographings. Everyone else should bring books by their favorite authors and stop by to have them signed. Please use good judgement in this; don't hand someone a stack of thirty books—there are other people waiting.

Registration

Registration numbers for Friday are in. Total registration is 444. If we can just get another 222 people to register, we can really give Jesse Helms something to think about.

WISCON IN 3-D

You may be wondering why we're spread across not one, not two, but three floors of this hotel. Well, the answer can be found in one word: RENOVATIONS. So try not to be narrow-minded! Don't develop a prejudice against a floor! Go all the way down to the bottom to see the wonderful Art Show, and stop in the Video Room, too. Then work off a few calories and get up to the sixth-floor ConSuite (refuel on some great munchies while you're there... watch for the petit fours appearances). Let Wiscon build up your muscles!

Publications

If you see late-breaking news, stop by the Con HQ/Publications room on the second floor to report it for the next Mad Moose Gazette.

We do have the official SF³ mimeo and electro-stenciler here, so if you are interested in putting out a one-shot fanzine, talk to someone in Con HQ / Publications. We do charge a nominal fee to cover the cost of supplies.

Social

In case you haven't noticed, the ConSuite is on the sixth floor, not on the second floor. The map is correct, and the name of the suite is correct, but it is on the sixth floor.

The dessert banquet is sold out. If you were unable to get tickets, you can still come by for the Guest of Honor speeches and interview, and the Tiptree Award ceremony. They will be starting as soon as people have finished eating.

Incidentally, copies of the Tiptree award "short list" are on the freebie table for those interested.
