The Hugo Awards ceremony was marred by the presense of a professional pickpocket who made off with the folding money of at least one author.

In an unexpected move, Phil Foglio announced upon accepting his second Hugo in as many years that he would withdraw his name from this category. This gracious act to spread the Hugos to other equally deserving fans was carried on by Charles and Dena Brown (on the occassion of their fourth or so Hugo. And Richard Sternbach on the occassion of his second Hugo in two years.

The Sidney SF Foundation of Australia presented The Pap Terry to Spider Robinson for CALLAHAN'S CROSSTIME SALOON.

Bill Bowers' speech at the Hugo Presentation was characterized by, "I don't give speeches, I read them." and "when this is over I'll be able to relax for the first time in two years." Father William expressed great love for fandom and his fellow guest of honor, disclaiming any appearance of unfriendliness towards Harlan while admiring him for being able to devote his life to causes that mean so much to him. Harlan, upon leaping onto the stage was struck dumb with emotion. "I don't mean to cause trouble..." he said and affirmed that he, too, was one of us. On fandom's poor reputation he said, "No one said ((to the press)) that a bunch of kids brought 6000 people together for a convention that has last for nearly a week --- and it runs!" as opposed to the army of workers the Shriners would need. From there he turned to his stand on ERA. Pointing out to the absurdity of a fan being ejected from the art show for wearing an ERA shirt by convention workers because of alleged political content, Ellison declared that we can't just ignore the important injustices in this world of ours. It was a warm and moving speech.
