

ANNOUNCEMENT!

FANTASY FANS will (I hope) be interested to learn that THE ACOLYTE, an amateur fantasy magazine, will continue regular publication as a quarterly. Those of you who saw the first issue should have a fair idea as to the type of material we will produce. Those who have not received a copy, may have a free sample, if you enclose 3¢ postage when you write for it.

Future issues of THE ACOLYTE will be either mimeographed or multigraphed, probably the former, and will appear quarterly. Subscription rates: 35¢ for four issues.

THE ACOLYTE wants to publish fantastic and weird stories and poems that are good, but are not quite commercial enough to click with the pulp magazines; and also wants to serve as a medium for beginning writers who have not as yet reached professional stature. Any type of contribution will be considered, but we prefer a minimum of science-fiction, and a maximum of fantasy. We will also have room for serious, thought-provoking articles on various phases of fantasy; and we may use some humor, provided it is first class.

The future of the ACOLYTE rests entirely in the hands of fantasy fans. If we receive the kind of support this venture deserves, we hope to be with you for a long time.

The next issue will appear sometime in December. Please send us your subscriptions, and manuscripts. Those who wish it may have their subscription start with the first issue, which, though dittoed rather than mimeographed, has a number of good items in it; including some previously unpublished material by H. P. Lovecraft.

I should like to hear from every interested fan; and hope to get some worthwhile suggestions from you all. We have a good deal of material on hand, but nowhere near enough to fill an issue the size we plan on---so send us those ms. NOW.

AND DON'T FORGET, we need some subscriptions!
