important this anthology is. Geoff Maloney got up and made another nice speech and the night ended generally warm and fuzzy, and a healthy way towards breaking even on our first print run. Canberra is now on the map. (It's that little blodge under Sydney and to the left of Wollongong...)"

In Print

The first CSFG anthology, Nor of Human... edited by Geoffrey Maloney and illustrated by Les Petersen, Contributors: Michael Barry; Chris Andrews; Peter Barrett; Matthew Farrer; Maxine McArthur; Robbie Matthews; Carole Nomarhas; Les Petersen; Allan Price; Paul Ryan; Antony Searle; Geoff Skellams; Krystle & Mark Snitch; Alison Venugoban, was officially launched on 7 April by Jack Dann at the Canberra Writers Centre. Details can be found at <http://www2.dynamite.com.au/robbiem/anthology.htm>

Robbie Matthews adds "Nor of Human... was launched last night. There were far more people there than I was expecting ... probably about 50. Probably the biggest thrill was having to send out for the box of books that I had left in the boot, that I had brought along "just in case". I had been guessing no more than a dozen sales, and planned accordingly. Jack Dann got up and made a very nice speech about how "Australia was where the action is" in the book industry, and how

Dawn of the DMFs

"crust" notes "On Saturday 7 April at 4.00pm there will be a screening of the film "Dawn of the DMFs". This is a locally made sci-fi movie which took the producers ten years to complete.

The screening is at Kaleide Cinema RMIT 360 Swanston St Melbourne and is a fund raiser for Food not Bombs, which is a group which helps to re-distribute food to the needy, which would otherwise have gone to waste."

In Electrons

Jonathan Strahan notes "I was over at the Redsine website, and noticed that they've done a special issue on Geoffrey Maloney, which can be found at: <http://www.redsine.com/featured.html>. It includes a bio, interview, three reprint stories, and an original (I think)."

Bookshops

Rose Mitchell reports "found this great second-hand bookshop in Moonee Ponds with a huge range of SF&F - nearly a full wall stacked to the ceiling - contains some real gems. It's situated at Moonee Ponds Junction - bus and tram terminus. RMC Stamps 639 Mt Alexander Road, Moonee Ponds VIC 3039 PH: 03 9326 1746 FX: 03 9326 1746 E: rmcstamps@ozemail.com.au"

Lucy To Judge

Lucy Sussex notes "It's official - I will be one of the judges for the Premiers' Awards (Victoria) in the non-fiction category. You actually get paid for this particular gig..."

Bullsheet Media Watch

Sue Ann Barber notes "they reprinted the article on me/MSFC from the local Brunswick paper in the local Coburg paper - same article, same picture." Robert Hood reports "I'm pleased to say that a photo I took at Nick Stathopoulos's Icarus exhibition made it into the April 2001 issue of Locus page 38." Dennis Callegari made a brief appearance on the soon-to-be-defunct television program Greed. He reckons he wasn't greedy enough. In The Australian Review, Terry Dowling looks at Sean McMullen's The Miocene Arrow, along with some overseas stuff. The Herald Sun 2/4/2001 featured a photograph of old-time Melbourne fan Peter Kemp in full Scout Uniform. The accompanying article makes no mention of his fan involvement. Sophie Masson has an article entitled "Shakespeare and Me" in the March issue of Quadrant.

Fan Funds

DUFF winners Naomi Fisher and Pat Molloy spent some time in Melbourne, managing to get to the Nova Mob, Friday Night Gathering and The MSFC, as well as a visit to Healesville Wildlife Sanctuary, where they weren't bitten by a wombat.

Peripatetic Fans

Brian Forte reports "The Limberger-Forte clan have moved, from the leafy eastern suburbs around Norwood to the equally leafy suburbs just south of the square mile of Adelaide. We're closer to the city centre (2 minutes in a car to Victoria Square, 15 minutes by foot), two flights of stairs up (with magnificent views) and we don't have to look after a garden anymore. This latter pleases me more than it should I suspect.

If you have our contact details stored anywhere it's time to change them thus: 12/27 Trevelyan Street, Wayville S.A. 5034 Telephone: 08 827 21274 (within Oz)+61 8 827 21274 (outside Oz).

Karen Pender Gunn has changed her first name to KRin. She is organising a Relay for Life team to walk at the Whitehorse walk venue in November. This raises money for the Anti-Cancer Council of Victoria. The cost is $10 per person and the idea is that the team takes it in turn to walk, with the whole thing running for 48 hours. If you are interested, contact her at fiawol@ozramp.net.au. KRin also notes that she is back in gainful employ, working with the Anti-Cancer Council Library.

Aging Fandom

Carey Handfield's 50th Birthday saw a number of elderly Melbourne fans and ex-fans dusting off their Zimmer frames to celebrate his birthday. The gathering was noted for the number of Perth expatriates including Cindy Evans, Roy Ferguson, Craig & Julia Hilton, and Julian Warner, along with the usual Melbourne suspects, David & Sue Grigg, Rob Gerand, Lucy Sussex, Race Matthews, Marc & Cath Ortlieb and Claudia Mangiamele. The younger generation were represented the Ackroyds and the Ortlieb & Handfield children.

Millennium Freecon

(A report by Rose Mitchell)

The Millennium Freecon, held recently at the Australian Museum in Sydney, was a two-day event, organised by Sydney fan Garry Dalrymple, aimed at those who wanting to attend author-based SF cons. It also served to increase the profile of new and emerging Sydney authors. This and two similar events held in 2000, have helped revitalise Sydney's author-based fandom.

Several fans interested in con running met for an informal information sharing meeting, or a serious SMOFFing session depending on your view point on the Friday evening before Freecon opened. Notes from this meeting can be found at <http://members.optushome.com.au/aussff/WconDisc.html> and a paper on how Convergence 2002, the 2002 Natcon, got up and running and this can be found at <http://members.optushome.com.au/aussff/Rosedoc.htm> I which also includes some background on future plans for Worldcons in Australia. Garry also had given a great deal of thought to the possibility of Sydney holding a Worldcon and his musings can be found at "http://members.optushome.com.au/aussff/GarryD.html". The meeting was quite productive, for nothing else than people meeting each other face to face, sharing information and experiences and bonding! Good-natured ribbing and parochial interests of course abounded.

The program, devised by Chuck McKenzie, an ex-Melbourne lad now residing in the harbour city, was well structured, innovative and above all else interesting. The hour and a half sessions, made up of two items per session, were interspersed with tea breaks, giving people ample opportunities and time to network and meet people. Attendees were encouraged to wear their name badges in prominent places so that others could approach them. This worked exceedingly well; I think I met and spoke to nearly everyone who attended over the two days.

Highlights were the talk by Dr Bill Zealey from the University of Wollongong and President of the Australian Institute of Physics. His presentation focused on the feasibility of mining asteroids and suitable planets and moons in our solar system, juxtaposing SF with real economics and state of the art engineering technologies. He postulated that mining in near earth orbit is possible within the next fifty years.

Sue Batho led a lively discussion, with lots of audience participation, on cult TV series and how to differentiate between SF and Fantasy and neatly categorise your favourite TV show. An integral part of the theory concerned frocks, and the important role they play in the larger scheme of things. It aligned with my own theory on judging TV shows or movies - what I refer to as the 'Frockability Test', whereby a show's artistic merit is in direct inverse proportion to how good the frocks are: great frocks, crap show.

David Bofinger led a discussion on the seminal works of SF, which was pronounced 'semenial', and competently presided over all the smutty jokes and puns, making sure that everybody got a shot (er, is that another smutty pun?).

The Sunday session started off with some lively role-playing and this was followed by readings from emerging horror writers Robbie Matthews, Les Petersen and Alison Venugoban, both from Canberra, and established author Rob Hood. Venugoban read from her third novel, 'Androgyny', which she explained had lots of 'naughty bits', piquing a lot of interest.

After group photos taken by Cat Sparks, last year's Ditmar winning artist, on very low-tech equipment belonging to Ted Scrivens, small press publishing in Australia was dissected and analysed. The topic moved swiftly to the impact of the GST on book publishing in Australia and was threatening to get bogged down in accountant-speak when the moderator, Mr McKenzie, quickly drew proceedings back onto an even keel. After a short break, David Bofinger and Chuck McKenzie lead a panel on humour in SF&F. Overseas publishers perceive that Australians don't like humour in their genre material. This perception was quickly denounced as the panelists and audience discussed comedy in SF&F books, TV shows and movies and Chuck got to plug his humorous book, Worlds Apart.

SF artists, Marco Nero (conceptual artist for Farscape), Cat Sparks and Les Petersen (Cartoonist) joined by a gate-crasher panel member whose name most of the audience missed, discussed opportunities for the SF artist, both in Australia and overseas. Nero warned the audience to watch out for unobtrusive graffiti on Moya, in Peacekeeper language of course, advising 'for a good time ring Zhaan' suggested by Virginia Hey, the actor who plays Zotah Zhaan (the Blue Chick).

Freecon was a very well run and well thought out convention and congratulations are in order to the organisers. Two more Freecons are planned later in 2001 and it would seem that the Freecons, and to a lesser extent Aussiecon Three, also have generated interest in running conventions in Canberra. A minicon is planned for May in that city and details can be found at <http://members.optushome.com.au/aussff/csfcon.html>

The fan-run convention scene is certainly picking up in Australia, what with Freecon in March, Swancon at Easter, CSFcon and Friends of Science Fiction in May and Multiverse in June, altogether a full calendar over the next few months.

Postscript: Several mini auctions were held during both days and $217 was raised in aid of DUFF.

Silly Season

Someone has come up with the idea of getting lots of people to enter their religion as Jedi in this year's Australian Census. Come on people. Be sensible. I can just imagine twelve blokes sitting around in a room saying things like "Let's say there's this incredible Force in everything. We can call it the Holy Ghost. And we'll need some sort of Darth Vader figure but with a really good side to him. Give him a catchy name like Light Sabre or Light Carrier - Latinize it up a bit...Lucifer should do." Next thing you know you've got a world religion and people killing on another because they can't agree that Carrie Fisher was the "one other" mentioned in the prophesy.

Convention News

Convergence, the 2002 Australian NatCon, has released its P.R. #2 with details on preliminary program planning, Masquerade details, Hotel Rates, Dealers Room information and other useful stuff. ## Letterature

Re the search for Paul Stevens, Sally Beasley notes "As far as I know, Paul Stevens is still working for Myer in Perth City, and can probably be contacted via them. Haven't seen him for a while, though - they moved him somewhere else (he used to be in charge of the book department)."

Other Stuff

Conjose Feghoot Contest

Conjose will be running a Ferdinand Feghoot Representation Competition. The competition, open to all artists, is to produce a representation of Conjose's

Imaginary Guest of Honor for use in the convention's publications.

1. The artwork must prominently feature Ferdinand Feghoot.
2. The artwork must be capable of being displayed at the convention and reproduced in some manner in our publications.
3. The deadline for entries is April 2, 2002. (This may change.)
