EDITORIAL -

The editorial page has blossomed out with a "new look" this month; the old familiar masthead stencil finally gave up the ghost after nearly three thousand impressions, which is pretty fair mileage any way you look at it. Dave Prosser has promised a new stencil whenever he can squeeze in the time in a very busy schedule

There has been some other changes, also, in the "Rate" section. We believe the listed increase will take care of the postal increase without running us too far in the red. This is pretty hard to estimate, however, and further changes may be necessary after a few actual mailings are made. We hope that we will be able to afford a little better quality of paper and stencils also, as well as some needed repairs on the typewriter.

The subscription rates will remain the same for the time being, but if we are able to find time to turn out issues larger than the current 24 pages, a small increase may be necessary here, also. We have an excellent possibility of obtaining help in preparation of future issues, so that a larger size magazine is very possible in the near future.

The December issue is nearly full and looks like a very interesting one. We hope to have Charles Kearns very fine column "The British Scene", as well as John Vetter's "Famous Fantasy Artists" series back again after being omitted in order to include all old copy on hand, some of which had been held for several months.

We have a little space left & will use it to send all our readers our very best wishes for the coming holiday season with a happy and prosperous new year. We hope that we will at long last find time to answer some correspondance; this will be our number one new year's resolution, at least! G.B.
