THE 'L' YOU SAY

-- comments on disty 51

SHMOZ--(Castora) Did you reprint the comics code in the first part of the article you did in Shmoz 3. I'm interested in the subject matter, but I've never actually seen the mythical list of dos and don'ts put out by the CCA. I agree with you that censorship is bad, but I thought that the CCA was a self policing organization designed to prevent intervention in the field and outside regulation.

WHAT SHALL I CALL IT? -- (Glass) I wish you'd print one or two solid pages of your writing like this more often... It's more fun to read than the fragmentary bits between linos which you usually include. I've never had a rocket blow up on me, probably because I used non metal materials.

DER HOLLANDER--(Hollander) I find myself believing in FIAWOL these days whether I like it or not. Not that I think the FIAWOL attitude is the one to pursue, but in my present situation I can't escape it. I can't walk around campus without bumping into one fan or another, and more of my spare time than ever seems to be consumed in fannishness. I suppose it will have a good effect on me in that it will ultimately make me a little sick of fandom so that I'll start devoting my time to Useful things like reading science fiction again.

BALDRIC--(Atkins) The physics test you sprung on Al was an utter gas (PV=nRT, of course)! And as for your code, the answer should have reached you by now although I t'ond ekil eht ecnedupmi fo ruoy mutamitlu.

I've noticed that the LAfen don't seem to be very interested in baseball as compared with NYfen. I can't conceive of an LA outing to see the Eodgers the way the Fanoclasts go to see the Mets. And you certainly have a point about Al being slow. It once took him  $5\frac{1}{2}$  hours to do a one page AFA F zine over in Charlotte.

NYET VREMIA--(Pelz) But present status in fandom also includes past achievements to an extent. If you want a list of the ten top fans based on activity in the past month or year alone, that's what the fanpolls are for.

CARCASILLA--(Gilbert) I don't know whether to be glad you're missing meetings so that you're forced to contribute to the distribution or not. You know it does look like you've burned yourself out in APA L regardless of what you protest to the contrary. If you are not burned out and tired, you can always demonstrate it... but then I suppose you must be having a rough time with classes too. But if that's the case, then where were you (fanzine wise) all summer?

FSTS--(Fitch) I think that the terms "lower class" and "human garbage" as they have been used in APA L connotate low IQ more than they do "hereditary social position." Of course, this doesn't make the use of the term any better from a human-itarian point of view, but it does make the classification understandable.

TAB TOT LITER T

. it wish as almesmos--

SHMOZ - (Castors) Did you require the comios code in the tiret part of the article you did in Shmoz 3. I'm interested in the subject matter, but I've never actually seen the mythical list of doe and don'ts put out by the CGs. I agree with you that censorably is bad, but I thought that the CGs was a said policing organization designed to prevention in the field and outside repulation.

The Hill I Lail II -- (Blass) I wish you'd print one or two solid pages of your writing like this more often... It's more that to read than the frequentary bits between those which you usually include. I've never had a recket him up on me, probably because I used non cotal materials.

DER HOLLANDEN-(Mollander) I find myseif believing in Flavol these days whether I like it om not, Not that I think the Flavol attitude is the one to persue, but in my present attestion I can't secape it. I can't welk pround campus without bumping into one fan or another, and note of my spare time then ever secan to be consumed in fannishness. I suppose it will have a good effect on me in that it will elected the can't devoting my will elected things in a little stak of fandom as that I'll start devoting my time to Useful things ifto rouding solence fiction again.

BALING -(Atkins) The physics test you sprung on Al was an utter gas (PV-mMT, of course)! And as for your code, the answer should have resched you by now although I trond skill shu somedure! Or rucy mutanithm.

I've noticed that the Lalen don't seem to be very interested in baneball as compared with NI'es. I can't conceive of an LA cuting to see the Hodgers the usy the Papaclasts so to see the Mats. And you certainly have a point about all being slow. It once took him 56 hours to do a one yage ALA F sine over in Charlotte.

Will visit in (Felt) But present status in fundom wise includes real wonidventure to an extent. If you want a list of the ten top fare based on activity in the past month or year alone, that's what the Campalia are for.

ONEGNICATION - (Silbort) I don't know whether to be gied you're missing meetings of the you're forced to contribute to the distribution or not, for know it does look like you've burned yourself out in at a regardless of what you protest to the contrary. If you are not burned out end tired, you can always demonstrate it. . but then I suppose you must be having a rough time with classes too. But if that's the case, then where were you (fansing wise) all suggest?

PETS...(Filed) I think that the terms "lower class" and "busse garbage" as they have read used in ALA I considered low IQ more than they do "hereditary social poslation." Of course, this doesn't make the use of the term any better from a numero tharian point of view, but it does have the classification understandable.
