LIBERALISM

A liberal is a man who seeks to find a peaceful compromise between the two extreme pasitions of blowing up schools, and integrating them.

A liberal opposes school segregation in Mississippi, but favors it in New York City.

A liberal believes that Nazi John Patler's civil liberties were infringed when he was arrested for picketing Eleanor Roosevelt's funeral with a sign: "Ship her smelly corpse back to Russia."

A liberal is opposed to the use of violence by racists against Negroes, and equally opposed to the use of violence by Negroes to defend themselves against these attacks.

A liberal believes in freedom of travel, except to Cuba, and freedom of association, except for organizations on the Attorney-General's list.

A liberal turns over 10% of his General Dynamics dividends to the Women's Strike for Peace.

A liberal favors free elections, except in Vietnam. A liberal does not cross picket lines, unless they were set up by the Teamsters.

I am not a liberal.

RIOT IN NEW YORK

by John Boardman

It could have been predicted. Here, crammed into squalid slums, were packed thousands of newcomers. Better jobs and decent housing were denied them by prejudiced employers and unscrupulous real estate men. Daily it was rubbed into them that they were not to consider themselves to be as good as the rest of New York's population. Instead of paying attention to their grievances, the government conscripted their sons to fight a war far away, in which they could see no advantage for themselves. Thwarted, they retreated into the traditional solaces of the poor - drink, huge families, Saturday night brawls, petty crime - and found these evidences of frustration dited by their enemies as reasons why they could not be admitted to the full rights of citizenship.

Finally, they exploded. It was later learned that a few subversive agents had been stirring them up, but the resentments were not created by these agents, and the riots would have come without them. On a hot July day they took to the streets, ransacking liquor shops and other businesses, beating up policemen, setting fires, and turning a large part of Manhattan into sheer chaos.

Thus it was in New York City in July of 1863. The Irish riots of that year were, to some Americans, positive proof that the Irish-American population was dedicated to armed revolt, and to violence for its own sake. The carnage and destruction of those terrible days, the worst riot New York has ever known, were considered to be proof that the Irish were an inferior race not worthy of the full rights of American cigizenship. So it appeared to some, but not to all. Too many Irish-Americans were dying on the front lines in the South to make that argument hold water.

By contrast with the 1863 riots, the Negro riots of 1935, 1943, and 1964 were trivial things. No police were killed, no orphanages burned, nobody hanged from the lamp posts in any of these brawls. Yet still, to some whites, they prove that Negroes do not deserve equal rights, have no legitimate grievances, and are plotting revolution. These arguments are invalid for the same reason that the anti-Irish bigotry of a century ago was invalid: too many Negroes are dying on the front lines in the South, for the liberty of us all,

The cause of the black American is a matter of the most intimate concern to his white fellow-citizens. If a state or local government can suppress the freedom of speech, of association, of voting by Negroes, it can exert the same tyranny upon whites. The men sent to Washington by the lily-white electorate of the rural South are blocking measures designed for the good of all Americans. The enemies of the rights of Negroes are also enemies of peace, of the rights of labor, of academic freedom, and of the needs of the poor.

If riots occur, they are symptoms of something left undone by the government and by private persons in places of influence. To merely suppress the riots and forget about them, is to do nothing. Steps must be taken to keep further riots from happening, by dealing with the conditions which cause desperate people to resort to desperate means.

Perdita, for putting on stencil the REG drawing on p. 11;

Dr. Thomas I. Seidman, for sending a copy of the speech which is printed on the following page; Barry Goldwater, for being so frank about what he has in mind for us; the people who voted in the last POINTING VECTOR Presidential Poll (see p. 8); the people who are going to vote in the next POINTING VECTOR Presidential Poll (see enclosure); and Midge West, to whom I owe the cockney-titled article on p. 9.

A brief explanation is in order about the letter column. The last couple of issues have elicited a number of interesting comments from the readers. On the one hand, I want to be fair to them; but on the other, I don't want to see POINTING VECTOR swamped by its letter column in the fashion of Gry or Kipple. So, the letters printed have been cut quite a bit, and it has been me cessary to postpone to #23 or leave out a number of interesting comments by Eric Blumenson, Frances Bukcwski, F. M. Busby, Buck Goulson, Daniel de Vere, Earl E. Evers, Connie Gresser, Dave Hulan, Seth Johnson, Dave Locke, Jim Meier, Derek Nelson, Sharon Offman, Vic Ryan, Dick Schultz, and James Wright.

ADDRESS TO THE KU KLUX KLAN

by Connie Lee, Ku Klux Klan of Alabama

(There have been frequent complaints from readers that the contents of the POINTING VECTOR are weighted too much towards the liberal or radical point of view. In an attempt to restore balance to the contents, and to give the readers an opportunity to judge for them selves the viewpoint of the opposition to integration, I have reprinted a speech which was given in September 1963 at a Ku Klux Klan meeting near St. Augustine, Florida, by a member of the Alabama KKK. The speech is reported by Rev. Irvin Cheney of Daytona Beach, Florida.)

My friends, I want to share with you something of the history, the glowlous history of the Klan. The Klan was born out of bloodshed, out of a real need to protect the southern white man from the carpetbaggers - the Jew carpetbaggers. You know, of course, that the carpetbaggers was Jews, and they come down here and teamed up with the niggers and tried to tale away everything the whate man had. But they learned that the white man would not take this lying down. He organized He organized into Klans. He rose up to defend his honor and his faterests. And, I'll tell you that to this day, the Jews, the niggers, and all the rest of the colored people are not arraid of anything relse, but they are afraid of the Klan.

For the last thirty years, the Klan has not been strong, has not been militant. But the Klan is on the move again, and it is not going to let the niggers and the Jews take over the country. Now some of you say, "But Jesus was a Jew", That just goes to show you how some of these cotton-pickin, half-witted preachors has froled you, Jesus wasn't no Jew, he was a white man. Tesus said that the Jews was descended from Cain, the cursed side of creation. He said that they was children of the devil. So

In the let no sentimental fool tell you that Jesus was a Jew.

Wive been through a lot of battles in my time, and I am and you'd better believe what I say.

Not long ago, a man from the F. B. I. - you know what that is, the Federal Bureau of Investigation - came by to talk to me. Itl guaranted you there's some of them in this crowd tonight, and some of them Jew bastards from the Anti-Defamation League of Binai Brith is here, too. They always spy on mea.

But, anyhow, they come by and said, Now you don't really advocate violence, do you? And I said, "The hell you say, The higgers has declared all-out war on the plan of God, and on God's family, the white man, and in war you shoot," Then they said to me, "Do you know who bombed the church in Birmingham?" And I said,

'No, and if I did I wouldn't tell you. But I'll tell you people here tonight, if they can find those fellows, they ought to pin medals on themes Someond said, "Ain't it a shame that them little children was killed." Well, they don't know what they are talking about. In the first place, they ain t little. They re li er 15 years old - old enough to have venereal diseases, and I:11 be surprised if all of tem didn't have one or more. In the second place, they weren the children ore that means white people.

er medicine and the second

There is little monkeys, but you don't call them children. They re just little monkeys, There's little dogs and cats and apes and baboons and skanks and there's also little niggers. But they ain't children. They're just little nagers. And in the third place, it wasn't no shame they was killed.

Because when I go out to kill rattlesnakes, I don't make no difference between little rattlesnakes and big rattlesnakes, because I know it is the nature of all rattlesnakes to be my enemies and to poison me if they can. So I kill dem all, and if there is four less niggers tonight, then I say, "Good for whoever planted the bomb." We're all better off.

Some people say that we'll all be in heaven together.
The hell we will only God's family will be in heaven, and niggers and Jews ain't God's family. Ain't gonna be no animals in heaven, and ain t gonna be no sons of perdition there. It's just a shame some people brought these black , animals over here, animals highly enough developed so that their seed can mix with your seed, But they won't be here much longer, because the Klan is getting stronger. People up North are begging us to come up there so help them ore ganize. Imagine that? They ve decided that they don't like the niggers too well; either, and they want help. And we are busy and growing in the South Light and their all has

I believe in violence, all the violence it takes to of ther scare the niggers out of the country or to have them all six feet under. My old Daddy told me never to trust that and hever to trust a nigger. That was good advice.

White About O'the care Some of the niggers say, "We want to go to your churches." there ain t but one manly thristian thing to do when they try, and that is to meet 'em at the church house door with a baseball bay and beat their brains out.

A gustine that ought not to live - that burn headed bastard of a dentist. He's got no right to live at all, let alone walk up and down your streets and breathe the white man's free air. He ought to wake up tomorrow morning with a bullet between his eyes: If you were half the men you claim to be you'd kill him before sun up.

(At this point an elder ty bystander shouted, "Tell us about King(")

Oh. you mean Martin Luther Coon. That's the biggest enemy wolve ever had. He's crooked as a snake. He ought to have been kieled a long time ago, I heard him on IV the other night saying, "The NEEEgro is not satisfied." Well, he never will be because before they are satisfied they all will be six feet under the ground. That Elijah Muhammed said the other day that they were ready to sacrifice 10,000,000 niggers in their fight. Well now, that's just fine, because if they are will-ing to sacrifice 10,000,000; I'll be more than happy to help bem sacrifice the other 10,000,000

They want to mix with you, do they? Well listen, if you ix fee cream and axle grease, you don't hurt the axle grease much at all, but you play hell with the ice oream. In spite of what these numb-skull idlots on the Supreme Court say, they

by John Boardman

History records few odder romances than the love affair between the Ka Klux Klan and Senator Barry Goldwater. At first glance Goldwater would appear to be the antithesis of what the KKK stands for. Although he is an Episcopalian, his father was a convert from Judaism. He runs a department store, and the KKK has always regarded department and chain stores as the enemy of the small American shopkeeper. He displays in his personal life an image of slick modernity much at variance with the homespun yokels of the Klan. And yet he has defended them from attack, and they have responded by supporting him for the presidency.

and they have responded by supporting him for the presidency.

At the Fermilican convention of 1964 the American people were treated to the appalling spectacle of the delegates! refusal to condemn the KKK. Moderate Republicans, distressed at the increasing strength of racism and reaction in their party, introduced a resolution condemning the KKK, which has nearly a century's record of brutal anti-Negro, anti-Jewish, and anti-Cathelic violence, and the John Birch Society, whose leader calls prominent Americans from General Eisenhower on down "Communists". To this was added the condemnation of the Communist Party which has become ritual in American political life, although no one pretends that the Republican Party stands in any danger of Communist infiltration. The Goldwater delegates, secure in their control of the convention, shouted down the resolution and booed its proponents off the rostrum. Some of them went so far as to set fire to the clothes of a Negro delegate in their enthusiasm for the Arizona senator.

The KKK obviously appreciated this action. On 25 July. Grand Dragon Calvin F. Craig of the Georgia KKK said: "I'm going to be a Goldwater Democrat. It is not necessarily Goldwater himself; itas just that the people are going to have a chance of voting for states rights and constitutional government or for going down the road to socialism. With Goldwater, we've got a chance to regain states rights." (Congressional Quarterly. p. 1650, 31 July 1964.) Clearly Goldwater's many appeals for "states rights" have been effective.

Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton, an Alabamian, explained why the KKK supports Goldwater. "It's not that we're going along with an individual. We're going along with the principles that the Republican Party has adopted in its platform. I say the Klan can carry the Deep South with the conservative—thinking people because the members of the Klan organization are people who are dedicated and will work, and who will use their influence for the things they believe in." (New York Times. 30 July 1964).

the things they believe in." (New York Times. 30 July 1.64).
Unlike Richard Nixon, who in 1960 spurned the support of the American Nazi Party, the 1964 Republican ticket accepted the endorsement of the KKK leaders. Vice-Presidential candidate William Miller said, when asked about the Klan support, "Senator Goldwater and I will accept the support of any American citizen who believes in us, our platform, our positions and our posture." (New-York Post, 31 July 1964). Three days later, questioned on the same point, Republican National Chairman Dean Burch replied, "We're not in the business of discouraging votes."

Then, on 7 August, four Georgia Klansmen were arrested for the 11 July murder of Lt. Col. Lemuel Fann, a Negro educator from

To Tours say, they

Washington. Instantly Goldwater decided that his hooded friends were becoming a little hot to handle. Within hours he repudiated the KKK support. This seems to have been an act of political expediency rather than a change of heart. KKK leaders apparently understand their candidate's problem, as they have not retracted their earlier support for him.

But what do anti-Semites think of the senator's Jewish ancestry? Lorena Willis, Marry Golden's correspondent at the Republican convention, picked up the following two opinions from two Goldwaterites there:

"He had to be Jewish! Jesus was Jewish, and Barry Goldwater is the second coming of Jesus. He has come to save the world from its sins and America won't be lost to God, but will be white Protestant, Anglo-Saxon forever now that the Deliverer has come."

"He has just enough Jew in him to know what the Jews are up to. We haven't had a Jew like Barry since Paul of Tarsus. He is going to put this country on its feet like St. Paul put the Christian Church on its feet." (Carolina Israelite, July-

August 1964, p. 26.)
Except for a few hold-outs like George Lincoln Rockwell, and the National States Rights Party, most right-wingers seem to have allayed whatever doubts they may have had about Barry Goldwater's Jewish ancestry. In effect, Goldwater is the can-didate of the Ku Klux Klan. Other people, thinking of voting for him, ought to take that fact into account.

ain't got no right to mix with you and don't you let 'em. you have to fight and shed blood, theirs or yours, do it! You won't hear the white man whising when he has a few casualties - like the niggers do. They scream and cry about those dead animals in Birmingham. The niggers started the war and when you start a war, you expect some to die. More will die, and you'd better be ready to see to it that they do. I'm speaking for

God, and you'd better listen. and no other organization has. We need a good strong group in St. Augustine. You come and sign. But don't come if you are weak or a coward. This ain't no peaceful organization. We aim to do whatever is necessary to put the nigger back in his place, preferably in his grave.

This issue is also the consequence of considerable experimentation with stencils and paper. I have obtained some good quality 6-stetner stencils at the low price of $1 a quire from Mark Shaw Stationers, 53 Vesey Street, Manhattan. I am much less enthusiastic about the paper, some of which (pp. 11-18) has a tendency to offset badly. My supplier (Pace Paper, 861 Pacific Ave., Brooklyn) assures me that this is the slack time of year in the paper business, and that a wider choice of rape er will be available at a later date. But I have about given up on getting a decently absorbent mimeo paper at less than

A STATE OF THE STA

State of the late of the state of the state

by John Boardm n

He was born in Kentucky, in a shabby cabin in the hills. His parents were illiterate folk, gharled by the necessity of wringing a living from unproductive fields. His father had a weak character and a shiftless disposition, and any drive in the family was provided by his mother. As he grew up, two outstanding attributes characterized him: great physical strength and absolute, undeviating honesty. His enemies characterized him as a stupid backwoods caf, but his relatives and close friends knew him as a strong and great-hearted man whom no adversity could byercome.

His courtship, if courtship it could be called, wound a long and devious way before he eventually married. Several times it seemed certain that he and his sweethears would be wedded, but postponement intervened. Finally, when he did marry her, all who knew him were astonished that she had eventually secured him.

This was Abraham Lincoln. Alas for the dignity of our American Muses, it is also Abner Yokum. The parallel is so clear that it is hard to imagine that Lill Abner's creator, Al dapp, didn't have something of the sort in mind. It is a subtle way of reminding us that Abe Lincoln was not a plaster saint, but a living human being who enjoyed a good joke even when, as not infrequently happened, it was on him.

Abraham Lincoln's mother was born Nancy Hanks. Li'l Abner's nother, before she caught Lucifer Yokum one Sadie Hawkins Day, was Pansy Hunks. Abe Lincoln whipped the Clary Grove boys; Li'l Abner whipped the Skonk Hollow boys with equal finality. Even the comic hero's name tends to give him away. Capp claims to have compounded Yokum out of "yokel" and "hokum", but "Linkum" was a common mispronunciation of Lincoln's name.

There are, of course, non-Lincolnian elements in LLII Abner. In the dawn of the strip, the feud between the Yokums and Daisy Mue's family, the Scraggs, loomed large, a sort of Montague-Capulet situation. In later years the Scraggs played a lesser role, and are now apparently retired.

Li'l Abner has increasingly become a vehicle of social and political satire; in effect, its hero, like Abe Lincoln, has gone to Washington to take a part in public life. May he end by freeing us all from the slavery of taking ourse was and each other too seriously.

THE TRUF ABOUT RUSHA!

by Eric Page as told to Midge West

(Midge West, the POINTING VECTOR's highly valued British Editor, sends this interpretation of a talk given by Eric Page to a meeting of the Wood Green Young Socialists. The article has been read and approved by Page.)

mean this facetiously - is that it is big. So big that you cannot begin to conceive the vastness of it. Covering sixteen States whose climates range from near Tropical to near Arctic, and a population which was over 90% illiterate before the Revolution, but now has less than 1%. I would like to quash the belief that no freedom of movement exists for the visitor to Russia. I personally experienced no over-riding presence of authority, and whilst there, was allowed to go where I pleased and speak to whomsoever I wished. At this stage it is only fair to point out that we Stidents were in Russia for only one month, and came from a Western environment with a three party system. I myself, am a member of the Labour Party, my political outlook is Socialist, and all my comments and opinions should be viewed in this light.

To appreciate the Russians, and their way of life, you have to understand that Communism is their "Truth" as Democracy is ours. To them Lenin is this "Truth" personified, and they idolise him in a way which is difficult for us to realise. Lenin died in 1924, yet you will find so much evidence of his life in the form of Statues in every conceivable corner, museums for his original writings, pictures and other reminders, that you find it hard to think of him as dead. People join long queues to pass his regularly embalmed body, not just on anniversaries, but every day. You can find no other example of this posthumous adulation on such an intense scale in the world. We do not revere Keir Hardie or George Lansbury in this way, and even the Americans cannot provide such an example. I doubt - for instance - if the post-Kennedy feeling at present, will last for forty years. When you appreciate that the Russians held Stalin in almost equal esteem, you know how difficult de-Stalinization must have been for them. Before going to Russia, I believed, like most people, that the Stalin Purges were directed against Anti-Communists, but I was told that true and dedicated Communists were the victims, that Stalin kept himself almost entirely divorced from the people, and in many problems, such as electrification, he made stupid mistakes which they are still paying for today. Khrushchev was once sent a written question, anonymously, asking him to outline his activities during the Stalin era. At a large meeting he asked the questioner to show himself, and when no one in the audience moved, replied, it "That was what I did in the Stalin Regime," and it is now generally felt that the best thing to do in Stelin's time was keep your mouth shut and wait for it to pass, although we would consider this morally wrong.

The Russians are a strictly disciplined people, with a discipline one can only liken to the Victorian times here. To give, instances, in schools they have a list of rules placed in the entrance which are a pointer such as; (1) All Students will present themselves for lessons in a neat and tidy appearance (2) All Students must sit up straight and behave in an attentive manner during lessons. (3) Talking during lessons is forbidden, and you will only address the Tutor when given permission to do sol (4) All Students will mise upon the Tutor entering the classroom. (5) All Students writing must be heat and legible etcl. In the classrooms you will find very little in the way of visual aids or pictures on the wall to distract the class. Another example is to be found in their public transport system. In Moscow, as elsewhere you can travel any distance on the Underground for 5d: Buses for 4d, and Trams for 3d. It is very easy to evade these payments as there are no Ticket Collectors or Conductors to ensure that you have paid, yet during the time I spent there, I saw no-one trying to avoid payment, in fact they went to great pains to get a ticket. You may say han but this is because they fear being reported, but I found very little fear of authority. To illustrate this, I would relate an incident which occured while walking through Moscow with a Russian Student. Another Muscowite approached me to enquire about buying a sweater a something that happens quite often, and which I had become used to - My companion became very indignant, and marched the stranger to a mearby Policeman. I felt uncomfortable about getting him into trouble. but after some minutes of arguing, my companion returned even more angry: He explained that the Policeman had refused to take any action about it, and the offender had accused him of taking me around for much the same purpose. It was a section

Another facet of the Russian character that impressed me. was their great political awareness, everyone I spoke to could answer questions intelligently, and were surprisingly knowledgeable about what was going on in the world. I talked for hours with a Student in one of their many parks, asking the most pointed and direct questions on Hungary, the Berlin Wall, and the Sino-Soviet split. He was adept at giving facts and figures. and very skillful at excusing the Red Army's interference by saying that he had friends who were in the Army at the time, who assured him that they were given orders not to fire, but they were fired on first. He quoted the economic problems of East Germany as being responsible for the Wall, but I still felt that this was no answer to the problem. This keen political interest undoubtedly stems from the fact that Students have to take compulsory Political and Economic exams before qualifying for higher education, but it does not account for the quick, and sometimes surprising answers I received from the children. One eleven year old girl asked me why we kept the Queen, I had to admit that there was no positive reason for doing so, and I was pleased that a child could pick the arguments I was weakest on and out argue me. Other right-wing Students voiced the opinion that the answers we got were stereotyped, and to be regarded with some scepticism, but I did not get this impression, partly because I did not believe the black picture that is painted of Russian life in our Western Press, possibly because I wanted to believe that Socialism had succeeded somewhere, but mainly because I was fully convinced of their sincere belief in the eventual success of their system, their acceptance of the fact that a terrible price had been paid for it, but at least they now had the courage to admit this, and

THINGS THAT GO BUMP IN THE MAILBOX

CREATH THORNE, Route 4, Savannah Missouri 64485: Thank you for sending me the copy of PV. It was interesting and stimulating, though brief. I ospedially missed the lettercol where the readers get their kicks in and J3 rest rames though occasionally some get of-fended - but that's all in the game and makes for an interesting fine ((Fmz?)) No doubt you will dissect my letters and point out the ridiculous points in them, but I don't mind too much as long as I get a chance to reply and as long as the editor doesn't make remarks about my letters that aren't not to the point being discussed. We could argue liberalism and conservatism for quite a while -- it is much easier for an editor to smear one person. I don't think that you are that type, though, and am highly glad of it. The strong personality coming through in PV makes for a highly interesting zine...

I disagree with the editorial on the front page of PV. ((#21)) A century ago the states formally left the union. This was the only reason that the government intervened. They do not have cause to do this at this time. On the other hand, it is true that the present situation cannot continue for a long length of time. The situation is balanced on the edge -- it will either fall back to a safe position or it will tip over and we will see violence that will make former violence look like child's play. I sincerely hope that the latter will not happen. But surely you will admit that the overthrow of the governments of the southern states would only increase violence. We must find a humanitarian way to end this situation. I don't know the answers but somewhere in this country there must be people who know how the situation might be handled. This might sound naive. Still -perhaps what the South needs more than anything else is a sound public relations program. I also think that it would mean calling an end to demonstrations, while working in other ways ((what other ways?)) to increase the white person's 1dea and evaluation of the Negro. I do think that the situation can be solved in other ways than the overthrow of the southern state governments.

((The situation in the more obstinate southern states is precisely what it was in 1861. When President Lincoln ealled for troops, he spoke of "combinations" too strong to be overcome by any other means. And the southern states did not leave the Union; it is legally impossible for a state to do so. (Texas vs. White, U. S. Supreme Court, 1869.) Alabama and Mississippi are even now in a state of revelt against the Constitution and laws of our country, just as they and other southern states were a century ago. The front-page editorial in POINTING VECTOR #21 simply asks that the federal government use its greater power, as it did in 1861-65, to over-rule these state governments, replace them with governments which will guarantee the rights of all citizens, and supervise the first honest elections in those states since Reconstruction.

this was right in 1865, why is it wrong now?))

The article by Midge West was read with a reasonably open mind by me until I reached the part where she described how she mand by me until I reached the part where she described now she had removed Conservative leaflets from the letter boxes. This was almost unbelievable that she would do a thing like this and expect to be commended for it. Perhaps I am a rollitical illiter— are but I have never heard of action like this being encouraged, though it goes on in this country also. (Tammany's been doing it here for decades.)). I finished the West article, but I will admit that I will not take any of her statements for fact until I double check them for accuracy. It is also easy to tell that Tank I double check them for accuracy. It is also easy to tell that my Miss West was prejudiced as she obviously is not for the Conservative Party. All leaders have admitted that the spring elections came off much better for the conservatives. I than anyone thought they would. When Hume took office it was thought that the Labour Party would smash Him - now the parties are running neck-and-neck. Also by delaying the elections until fall it is quite possible that the Labour Party mambers will stay home and watch the telly while the Tory candidates come to victories at It is daite true that many of the Labour Party members are the type the show more interest in the new TV shows than in politics;

this country, it must be nearly impossible to get them going lini England, for the voting day procedures sound awfully tedious tand complicated. They are particularly different from the way there also smaller towns around Hagerstown used to hold elections. Up to 109 at just a half-dozen years or so ago, there was a town of about u from 2,000 residents six miles from Hagerstown that had little need at elu-for printed ballots. Each party printed up ballots, with the names of its candidates imprinted, and handed them around to registered voters during the weeks before the election. On voting day, the voter usually just dropped one of these slips of paper into the ballot box, unless he was such a rugged individualist that he insisted on writing the X marks onto an a official town ballot. Then there was the man who was mayor of an equally small town for year after year. Finally he decided to find out how many years he'd been head of the government, and didn't succeed because there weren't any munitanticipal records of any kind going back more than 20 years. I was Some towns didn't even bother to keep registration books a few years back. Poll workers would just recognize those who came to cast ballots and keep a mental file on that person to make sure he didn't come back. But all this has been changed, because the county government bought voting machines and made them available to the municipalities, necessitating changes in procedures, and the informality of the old ways and vanished with these changes. need be, lick China...He's afraid the Japanese industrialists will lose their source of raw materials in Asia. Could it be that some clients in Dick's law firm are big U.S. industrialists?

"Why not just buy the stuff from whoever has it for sale? Or swap our wheat for their tin, etc. But maybe it's cheaper to sacrifice American boys and conquer the whole works."

"I'm already financing Dick's plans, but I will chip in a few more bucks and buy him a rifle. Then he can take Mac and Rusk and all the industrialists with him and go to China and shoot about 300 million Chinamen. Which is about what it will need to conquer China.

"I wish our politicians would quit scaring us about war. But they go half-way around the world looking for fights, and they will find them. And then a lot of our boys get free one-way tickets to the scene."

LEN BAILES, 1729 Lansdale Drive, Charlotte, North Carolina: I'm rather disappointed by your editorial on page 1. You stated many grievances and many charges against the governments of Mississippi and Alabama. Most of these are disgracefully true, but they don't form a reason which justifies forcible overthrow of the state government. The Constitution and Declaration of Independence make it clear that there is only one circumstance when such action is called for. That circumstance is when there are no legal, means for ensuring the constitutional freedoms of the citizens of a state. ((Please re-read the editorial. What I ask is use of the legal means - the only legal means left. Federal law ought to be enforced by state and local officials. Where it is in fact not, federal marshals are sent in. Where they are insufficient - as they are here - the army is sent for.))...Until the people of the more backwards southern states are educated to accept the fact that Negroes are human beings, this Will be to no effect.

((This has been tried for ten years now, and seems to have had appreciable effect only in the border states and the larger southern cities. I suggest an easier job - educating the southern segregationist to realize that if he resists integration he'll go to jail.))

((What Goldwater said, at a speech in Washington on 20 January 1962, was, "I have some definite plans for Professor Galbraith, Ed Murrow, and Arthur Schlesinger Jr. I can't reveal these plans because if there's a leak they might get out of the country before I'm inaugurated." These words were quoted on p. 70 of the 12 February 1962 issue of U. S. News & World Report, which is far from being an anti-Goldwater publication. I'm afraid I can't see the humor in a proposal to drive into exile three of America's most distinguished liberal intellectuals. That same winter, four other conservatives including William F. first am enrolled in a class at San Jose State College called NO-ZEN. The lectures are most interesting because there are no lectures. I have had three examinations in which I was most successful. I can attribute my success to the fact that I did not show up for the exams. To my good fortunes, the instructor did not even know that I was absent on these days because he was not there either. As a matter of fact, no one enrolled in NO-ZEN showed up.

"Being interested in my progress in NO-ZEN, I visited my professor's office last week. I had great difficulty in locating his office because there was no office. In my search I was directed to go nowhere, so I, of course, found nothing.
To my instructor's surprise, I didn't show up: but this didn't really bother him because he wasn't expecting me anyway.

One day upon meeting my professor ... I talked with him of my standing in the world, the Universe, and his class. Through his meditative practices he was able to eliminate his existense also, which made it very difficult to see him. My professor finally convinced me to forget about his class because it never had existed, nor did I exist, nor did he or any of the other students, for that matter, I ultimately understood him. It was then that I realized that it was the best course I had ever taken in college,"

STEPHEN BARR, Box 305, Nocona, Texas 76255: Let me tell you a story of how it was around here. Around 1925 or thereabouts a Negro killed a white woman in a neighboring town. There had been feelings against the "niggers" but they had never developed. This killing lighted the fuse! The Negroes were told they had 5 minutes to get out of town; most of them did. The ones who didn't were hanged alongside of the Negro who had killed theowhite woman. This spread throughout the county and as a result today there are no Negroes in Montague County. Even today Negroes avoid this county as if it wereathe plague. I never see a foreign person of any type unless I go to one of the larger cities like Dallas. Some day, we are looking for it, a group of Negroes will move into our town and try to settle down here, will they? I don't know. I really don't care (they tell me I'm too young to be considering things like this). I do know one thing though - there will be trouble in "An oak tree was boasting of his great strength and sneered at some nearby reeds because they were accustomed to bow before even the lightest breeze. TOM PERRY, 4018 Laurel Ave., Omaha, Nebraska: PV enjoyed as always. Especially enjoyed "The MacArthur Memorial" though as al-1 ways I wished you'd gone into more detail about the factual matters—especially the matter of the seven-days—in-May that MacArthur and others were going to pull on Roosevelt. I recall reading vague reports of such a plot in the past few years but don't recall that it was exposed at the time. If it came to the attention of a congressional committee, why weren't the traitors involved tried at the time?

((They were too influential. Besides involving big men in the American Legion and in Wall Street, the conspiracy to replace President Roosevelt with a Fascist dictatorship also implicated General Hanford MacNider -an industrialist in Iowa, Louis Johnson - later Secretary of Defense, and James Van Zandt - later Representative and senatorial candidate from Pennsylvania. -For the best summary of the plot and its discovery, see Angus Cameron's High Treason.))

"Assassination of Nikita Khrushchev" (what happened to the spelling 'Khrushchov'?) okay and good reading, though rather long I think to make the points involved. But perhaps for some people they can only be made this way.

((The Kirillic Tetter "E" is sometimes given the pronunciation "0" in Russian. If the Russians haven't adopted a consistent spelling system, I'm not going to try to reform their language. To be strictly accurate, the Soviet premier's name really ought to be transliterated "Hrushchov".))

Letter column good as usual. I liked the letter from Perdita; you are a lucky man to have an independently intelligent mate who can disagree with you like this.

... The (N)egro is demanding more and better jobs, there are only so many jobs so the only place to get jobs for them is to fire white men and the white men will not stand for that peaceably. When it is a question of survival, justice fades out of the picture. Today some of the (N)egro leaders are threatening insurrection and war if they do not get what they want, and right now... Such an insurrection would cost millions of lives among the whites but it would be the whites who would finish it. Once this nation paid a bounty for Indian scalps it might be a precedent.

((You overlook one matter. The struggle is not between white and black, but between segregationists disloyal to the Constitution, laws, and courts of their country, and integrationists loyal to them. The President, Comgress, and the courts are now on our side, and we don't have to argue with you any longer. From now on, all we have to say to you is: bend or be broken.))

⁻ ARTHUR GEORGE SMITH, 65 North Foster Street, Norwalk, Ohio: The (N)egro can not be assimilated into the white race, that is the trouble, we could and did assimilate a lot more of the Indian than most people will believe as well as acculturate many of them. ... We have acculturated the (N)egro, but it is impossible to assimilate him, instead the (N)egro would assimilate us. This natien is seven eighths white and one eighth (N)egro, but if the two races were completely assimilated every individual were 7/8ths white and 1/9th (N)egro we would be just another Haiti. For some reason the (N)egro genes are dominant.

"In areas where Western power still prevails the full weight of American diplomacy must be employed to sustain it. . Perhaps the answer is an interim African Protectorate administered by an association of western nations. . Such a policy would be denotinged in many parts of the world as reactionary, chauvinistic, and ordressive. Such recriminations we would have to endure. could at last get down to the job of raising the standard of living for the Russian people, helped by the Test Ban Treaty, the thawing of the cold War, and reluctantly reducing Stalin to

Although Consumer, Goods are still hard to get, and there are long waiting lists for things like Cars, Washing Machines etc., they are obtainable, and I was surprised at how many people did have a television set, while realising that this was mainly for propaganda purposes. To give an idea of the cost of verious every day articles, an apple cost 2/6d (I was told they were cheaper in the summer, and despite this high cost saw several people buying them) Eggs were 1/3d each, a bar of chocolate was 7/-, a pair of stockings about II (though they were thicker than the Western girl is used to, and probably last long because of this) a litre of milk was 2/6d (just over a pint and this applies to things like lemonade etc) Beer was 2/6d for half a litre. I was pleased to find that Restaurant prices wave very little higher than you would pay had you bought the food yourself. You can get a good meal for around 12/6d to 15/-, Clothes were expensive but of a much more darable quality, and were progressively getting more colourful. Rents were very low in comparison to ours, and I though the decentralisation policy now in force in Moscow a bit harsh. One has to obtain a permit to live or work in Moscow now, although this helps overcrowding becoming a problem and keeps rents down. Wages for skilled workers such as Teachers, Doctors etc., were an average of £15 per week, unskilled an average of £8 per week.

We paid a visit to a few Churches, and found them to be packed; but only with old people, we were the youngest in the congregation, and looked upon with some suspicion because of this. They tried to hide their faces when we photographed them coming out; and when I asked some young people why they did not attend services, I was told, "Well that is for the old people". This is generally the attitude, and as children are not taught any form of religion in schools it is reasonable to assume that it will eventually die out, though like Samuel Pepys! Mother-in-Law, "It will take an une ascionable time a dyin."

As for my general impressions, I found throughout that the surface one was very different once you penetrated it. The people looked drab as you watched them in the streets, but once you went into their houses they were lively, good humored and quite smartly drassed. The Buildings look austerely beautiful from the outside but are homely, although rather fussy - again in a Victorian manner - inside, with a prependerance of ernaments and high embroidered furnishings. came away with a great admiration for the way in which they have tackled a more than formidable task, and advanced far more than we ever could given the circumstances which exist ed after the October Revolution. Plus a feeling of great anticipation which I sensed in the Russian people about what the future held for them. These I must couple with one of great sadness, to explain I read George Orwell's "Animal" Farm" when I came back, and the character of the old herse Dobby, sums up this feeling. You may remember one of this pathetic creatures lines is "I'll work a bit harder, and a bit longer, and it's just around the corner." When I hear Khrushchev has told Nasser; You can forget the ten million you owe us," I think that an easier life is just that bit further round the corner for the Russians. When I hear of Missiles being sent to Cuba, and the countless other forms of aid which the Russians give to aid Socialist revolutions elsewhere. I think that a higher standard of living and higher wages are still further ground the corner for the Russian people. I am sure if they had not taken it upon themselves to bear this crushing burden, they would be an example we in the West would find very difficult to criticise in terms of affluence, technical advancement and education.

I must admit that I still prefer the British way of life, because in terms of spiritual and intellectual contentment it takes a lot of beating, and being an ex Royal Navy seaman, I've travelled to many parts of the world, and of course I am British so my roots are here. If it came to a choice between eurs and the Russian system, I would therefore choose ours. If it came to a choice between the Russian and American systems, well I don't know, I just don't know, it's a decision I would hate to have to make.

IT TAKES ONE TO KNOW ONE

According to Washington Post Rome correspondent Leo J. Wollemborg (Washington Post, 5 July 1964), "Italian Fascists and other rightwingers are expected to organize a letter-writing campaign aimed at persuading Americans of Italian descent to vote for Senator Goldwater." This project has been announced in Il Berghese, the clericalist-conservative Lo Specchio, and the Neo-Fascist Secolo d'Italia. This last daily said; "John F. Kenne dy and Republican Farty radicalism (sic) had placed the United States on the sliding platform of collectivism. Goldwater is fighting for the freedom of the individual."

Il Borghese's contributors "include survivors of the Nazi puppet regime, set up by Mussolini, and veteran Fascists and Menarchists, some of whom now sit in the Italian Parliament". Says Wellemberg, "Goldwater's approach appeals both to the resentments and to the hopes of the Italian radical rightists because it appears to them as a complete disavowal of the policies followed by the united States during most of the last 25 years." In Italian eyes, of course, the most important of these policies was the overthrow of Mussolini.
