

9
0
7 0 Here it is, PROBABLY SOMETHING. If it's PROBABLY
1 0 SOMETHING, there's a very good chance that it 388-2655 ain't nothing, because if it were nothing then it * couldn't be something. Confused enough yet???

T S.
h * This is being typed way in advance on Dec. 12 PROBABLY for reasons given in the last issue. I'll m e D probably make it to the New Year's party if a r i it's when & where I think it is.

SOMETHING
n b Next week, a piece of fiction the likes of which d y this zine has never published before. It's also o being Typed Up Early so I won't have to fool with it during the fuss of returning, unpacking, the party if I make that, etc. Does DE PROFUNDIS really exist?

CRACKPOT SUGGESTION department

What would happen if the Mint took a hint from the Post Office and started letting stores, etc. stamp out their own coins (literally making change) the way the P.O. lets people make their own stamps with postage meters? Although this would raise total production of coins, those made privately would probably have to have the maker's name or permit number on them, thus adding to the problem of "COLLECTORS". Which effect do you people think would predominate?

MY 2¢ WORTH ON HOW TO IMPROVE APA-L sub-department

Why not define a "contributor" to any given disty as someone with a zine in said disty OR THE PRECEDING ONE? (Treat collators, etc. the same way you do now.) The main intent is to allow a "regular" to receive a copy every issue even if the Post Office lets him down or if he misses once due to exams, illness, etc. Also, any person who can't afford to print/mail whatever the copy count is, or who Can't Stand The Pace Of A Weekly Apa could publish fortnightly. Although fortnightly isn't as good as weekly, it's better than dropping out completely. I don't think this plan constitutes "rules" since there would still be no official membership list except for a slightly more elaborate version of what has been used as a list. Comments???

UNFINISHED COMMENTS ON DISTY #60 department

*FROM SUNDAY TO SATURDAY...In answer to your question, I seem to have a slight tendency (understatement) to make bad puns in conversations, etc. They may have thought that you were beginning to catch it from me.

ALL I KNOW IS WHAT I READ IN THE PAPERS department

There was an article about littering in the Dec. 8 L.A. TIMES. It seems that Keep America Beautiful conducted a poll of local anti-litter people in various states and found that 78% of them thought that local residents produced more litter than tourists. From this the headline writer concluded "Survey Shows Local Residents Drop 78% of Refuse Found on American Highways". Interesting logic, isn't it????? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?