MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS

As discussed in The Southerner with the main mailing, this is the post-mailing for the annual index.

However, the mailing weighed an ounce over two pounds — which I discovered after I had printed the postage and the OO. Given that I had to print additional postage anyway, (which I couldn't do until Monday morning), it made sense to swap the Sunday evening I would have spent bundling mailings with the Monday evening I would have spent preparing the index for printing.

And, then, just after I printed the first press run of this fractional OO, a zine from Dick Lynch, which had should have arrived on Saturday, appeared in our mailbox. I've gone ahead and included it since the mailings were not yet sealed and stamped.

Thus, a post-mailing is included with the main mailing, just to confuse the historians.

No details of mailing 236, including the deadline, have changed in the past twenty-four hours.
