In Print

IonNewcombe reports "The latest edition of AntipodeanSF 10 has been published, and it contains the following stories by Australian authors: "Earth Girls Aren't Easy" by Edwina Harvey ; "Inspiration", by Liz Martin and "Mind Over Matter", by Tony Plank .

Dreaming Down-Under at Borders

Jack Dann reports "Sunday, December 13, we had a spotlight reading and mass signing for DREAMING DOWN-UNDER at the new Borders superstore in Melbourne, which was great fun...and a real success. Rosaleen Love, Damien Broderick, Lucy Sussex, Russell Blackford, and Sean McMullen five minute readings from their stories; Janeen and I m-ceed (Janeen was a class act--I, of course, did "schtick"), and then everyone went to the front of the store to sign books. Believe it or not, there were more authors signing than there was table to sit at! Other DREAMING DOWN-UNDER authors in attendance were: Paul Collins, Andrew Enstice, Wynne Whiteford, Aaron Sterns, Chris Lawson, Sara Douglass, and Dirk Strasser But the stroke of genius came from HarperCollins' rep Norman Tilley, who came in a tuxedo with a brilliant DREAMING DOWN UNDER placard and his bagpipes. He stood at the door and played, and what a hit he was. (He's a terrific piper, incidentally.) Borders has asked us to do another reading/signing in April, so we'll be working on that." Lucy Sussex noted that there were times when the various Jam Factory noises made it a little hard to be heard.

The George Turner Prize

Transworld Publishers are once again offering their $10,000 prize for an unpublished science fiction or fantasy novel of 60,000 to 150,000 words. There is a $30 entry fee. The deadline is 5:00pm January 29 1999. Further details are available from The George Turner Prize, Transworld Publishers, Ground Floor, 40 Yeo St, Neutral Bay, NSW 2089.

Bullsheet Media Watch

Ali Kayn has an article on Internet Stalking in the January 1999 issue of Internet.au. Damien Broderick gets to nominate his favourite science books for 1998 in The Weekend Australian Review December 12-13, 1998. The report in The Australian 14/12/98, on the discovery of the most distant known quasar, quotes "It's a fair statement to say we're talking many billions of light years away," says Bruce Gillespie, site operations manager at Apache Point [Observatory New Mexico]. peterb@zip.com.au notes "Just a reminder that Smeg Radio - a weekly SF, fantasy and Cult TV radio program broadcasts live every Wednesday in Sydney on 2RRR 88.5FM from 7pm to 8pm. If you have any news you would highlighted, clubs you want promoted and stuff like that, just drop us an email."

Ticonderoga Publications Folds

Russell B. Farr notes "It is with some sadness that I announce that, at this point in time, Ticonderoga Publications has no plans to exist past December 31, 1999.

Ticonderoga Publications will fulfill its two present contracts, being the Sean Williams collection New Adventures In Sci-Fi, due for publication 31 March 1999, and the Stephen Dedman collection The Lady Of Situations, due in August 1999."

Literature

In response to Lucy Sussex story about shooting up Fred Street, noted ex-Aussie fan and sometime letter writer to New Scientist, Judith Hanna, notes: "Well, fancy that. We had one too you know, back in September. We lack, however, Lucy's literary parallels. Admittedly, I was off trolling around the Welsh Marches with Steve and Maureen Gell when it occurred, while Joseph [Nicholas] slept through it and didn't hear a thing. He says the double-glazing must have muffled the shot; I reckon it was probably alcohol-induced oblivion.

Mind you, our fatal shot wasn't an isolated incident. A day or so before, a crack-house round the corner had been raided by the fuzz. What isn't clear, however, is whether the victim was an innocent passer-by or involved in the trade. We assume the gunman was definitely involved in the trade.

Then, a couple of days later, a house the other side of our block sprouted coppers guarding its front gate, and clammung up when asked what was going on. The local papers said, thinly, that a gunshot had been heard about midnight, and when the police arrived the house was empty.

Since then, all's been normal - quiet except for the traffic."

Faans

"Hi! My name is T Campbell and this March I'm producing a lighthearted spec-fiction comic called FAANS. We've got a Website up and running (<FAANS.COM>) where you can read about the characters and write letters to them directly. Or you can always just write to me.

Hope this letter finds you well. If you'd rather not hear from me, just let me know... otherwise, I'll send you another note when the book actually comes out.

But if you think this is a great idea, tell your friends and tell them to tell their friends. (And their retailers, of course.) I can't do this without you, and I will not forget that.

The Bullsheet 1998 Australian Science Fiction Listing

December 16th 1998

The following is a listing of Australian Science Fiction first published in 1998. It does not include reprints. While attempting to be reasonably comprehensive, I have no doubt that I've missed some. Please feel free to contact me with the details of the bits I have forgotten or missed. I'm particularly interested in any misclassifications. I am aware that there is a very narrow line between young adult and general fiction and I have no doubt that some items may have slipped into the wrong group
