

Think fast

Nominations are open for the 1990 DUFF race, which will send a North American fan to the Australian National Convention, Suncon, in Brisbane, Queensland, next Easter weekend (March 29–31, 1991). Even more to the point, nominations will close as of November 15, 1990. So if you are thinking of running this year, or if you are thinking of persuading someone else to run, the time to act is now.

The requirements are over there to the right. Here's the fine print. No more than five nominators, and couples count as separate people. The ten-dollar bond is not refundable. You pledge that if you win, you'll go, come hell or high water (but barring Acts of God). And the lucky winner takes on the responsibility of administering the fund in North America for the next two elections.

For unusual work-related reasons, I haven't been able to get the next Redback out by now.

It'll be out soon, but in the meantime I wanted to make very sure that you all knew it was time to file for the upcoming race. Think fast, run hard, and leave a good-looking fanzine.

What a candidate needs

Five nominators

Three from North America

Two from Australasia

$10 bond (in either currency)

Written platform (100 words or less)

Pledge that you'll go

Where the winner goes

Suncon '91

Brisbane, Queensland

March 29–31, 1991