

I'm glad I bought a computer because now I understand more of INK GUN BLUES. I have in mind the reference to MS-DOS, which I would previously have taken to be two contributions from Puerto Rico. More recently by ~~the~~ ~~writer~~ and I have made the acquaintance of interactive text adventures and I have conceived the marvellous project of rewriting The Enchanted Duplicator as a computer game. My inspiration so far is probably limited by the fact that I have seen only one game so far, the Colossal Cave, but I can see the start now...

YOUR NAME IS JOPHAN. YOU ARE LYING IN A CORNFIELD READING THE LETTERS IN PLANET STORIES WHEN A BEAUTIFUL GIRL APPEARS IN FRONT OF YOU. SHE SAYS HELLO. WHAT NOW?

I must consult Dave Langford about this.

Best,

Will
